How Our Army of 2,000,000 Is Fed 'On the Dot' Everywhere

Whether in France, in the Philippines or at Home, the U. S. Soldier Is the Best Rationed in the World, Though It Takes 4000 Beeves, 585,000 Pounds of Bacon, 4,925,000 Pounds of Bread and Flour, 520,000 Pounds of Sugar and 104,000 Pounds of Salt to Satisfy His Appetite.

WASHINGTON, May 1.

IT is the function of the Subsistence Division of the Quartermaster Corps to feed the United States army, furnishing three square meals daily to every one of the nearly 2,000,000 men, whether in France, in training camps in this country, in the Philippines, Hawaii or the Panama Canal zone.

Despite the enormous expansion of the American army during the past year, nothing has developed to mar the American soldiers' reputation of being the best fed in the world.

Major-General George W. Goethals, Acting Quartermaster-General, as head of the Quartermaster Corps, is resopnsible for the feeding of the army. The immediate responsibility, as stated above, rests with the Subsistence Division, which is presided over by Col. W. R. Groves, who holds his present commision as an officer in the National Army, an officer of long service in the regular army, with experience in the Spanish War and the Philippines, as cmmissary officer under Gen. Goehtlas on the canal zone, and in other affairs to which the army has turned its hand.

The food supply of the army takes on proportions so gigantic that figures fail to give more than a hazy idea of its immensity. For example, 4000 cattle must be slaughtered every morning to give the soldier his daily ration of fresh beef.

Nearly 7000 freight and refrigerator cars are required to bring the food for the present month's supply into the camps and cantonments on this side of the Atlantic.

The soldiers' food must be all right at all times—and must be there at the appointed hour. No excuses are accepted. The American fighting man in France may wait a week or a month for a new hat or any other article of equipment, if he can make the old one serve, but he cannot wait a day or an unnecessary hour for his dinner if he is to be the gingery, up-and-at-'em, 100-per cent efficient soldier.

Problem Long Ago Worked Out.

The provision of food in such quantities and with such promptness is not a feat that can be accomplished by sudden inspiration. It could be only the result of much thought and study. The army authorities gave the subsistence problem the requisite amount of thought and study long before the darker war clouds began to gather on the American horizon. At no time has there been serious criticism of the subsistence end of the Quartermaster's Department, not even when the Senate Committee was romping all over Quartermaster-General Sharpe, who is now a member of the War Council.

In the old days the Quartermaster Department, Subsistence Department and Pay Department of the army were separate branches, each having a separate organization and head. Even then the Subsistence Department was a closely knit organization which operated with marked success in such small maneuvers as were attempted by the American peace-time army.

Subsequently the three departments were consolidated and called the Quartermaster Corps. Under the reorganization much attention was given to subsistence supply, and special attention to the inspection service. Quality was recognized as a factor almost as important as quantity. Consequently the great war machine of today is well nourished not alone because it is regularly provided with food by the hundreds of tons, but because the food is of known wholesomeness down to the last ounce.

All Commissary Experts.

Under Col. Grove, or associated with him in the co-ordinated efforts of other branches of the Quartermaster Corps, are many well-known officers, some of them veterans of the army and some fresh from civil life, but all experts in commissary service.

In charge of the important Chicago depot is Col. Albert D. Kniskern, who has been the principal purchaser of the army's meat. At the Atlanta depot, which supplies the big camps and cantonments in the southeast, is Lieutenant-Colonel E. E. Deitrick, the officer whose plan of organization and whose capacity for administration were directly responsible for the success which attended the meeting of the hundreds of thousands of draft men as they came pouring into fill the ranks of the new National Army.

These officers are of long record in the regular service, but many important posts are filled by officers of the Reserve Corps. The principal assistant to Col. Grove at Washington is Maj. J. W. McIntosh, R. C., who before the war was a prominent figure in the Chicago packing industry. Another expert is Capt. J. H. Adams, R. C., who has been of the greatest value in the Washington office because of his long experience as a noncommissioned officer in the army. The buying of groceries for the soldiers in France has centered largely with an officer at the New York depot, Capt. John Tyssowski, also of the Reserve Corps, who in peaceful times was the buyer for a famous chain of restaurants.

One Day's Rations.

Back in 1898, when distinguished gentlemen on the floor of Congress were apprehending that the American soldier was being pampered with a diet too elaborate, the ration for the army consisted of one and a quarter pounds of beef, 18 ounces of bread and flour, two-thirds of an ounce of salt and one-third of a gill of vinegar. That was all, but it enabled the American soldier to dine far more extensively than did any of his foreign brothers in arms. Today the ration includes 17 food articles, each capable of extensive variation by substitution. The soldier eats them in Gargantuan quantities. Here are some of the things which Col. Grove and his organization must provide each day in the year:

Beef	2,000,000	pounds.
Bacon	585,000	pounds.
Corned beef hash..	36,400	2-lb tins.
Canned salmon...	41,600	cans.
Flour	2,925,000	pounds.
Hard bread	866,666	pounds.
Beans	195,000	pounds.
Cornmeal	44,000	pounds.
Potatoes	2,000,000	pounds.
Onions	650,000	pounds.
Tomatoes	163,000	cans.
Coffee	182,000	pounds.
Pickles	7,800	gallons.
Sugar	520,000	pounds.
Salt	104,000	pounds.
Soups	28,000	cans.
Catsup	23,000	bottles.

Many Divisions.

In the Washington offices of the Subsistence Division there are some 60 officers and civilian experts, with the necessary clerical assistants. Under its chief the division is divided into operating subdivisions, dealing with subsistence for the forces in the United States, subsistence for the forces overseas, food allotments, procurement, food inspection, purchase, planning, field bakeries and the like. Branches of these subdivisions specialize in beef, in milk, in flour, in canned goods and other required foods. The proportions of single purchases are almost staggering. The other day the division was casting about for a little matter of 57,000,000 cans of soup to supply the army for a stated period.

And so it goes down through some 250 items of supply running from ham to shoe strings and from metal polish to macaroni. An army which consumes daily salt in 50-ton lots and season its food with catsup, del-

What Would Happen if the British Should Have to Retreat Again?

By FRANK H. SIMONDS.

Two Strong Possible Positions Are Available for Our Allies if the Germans Persist in Their Effort, Reckless of Losses, to Destroy the English Army and Force Further Gains at All Costs.

Present Prospect Is That Further Retirement Will Be Unnecessary, but Even if It Should Be, the Germans Would Still Be Far From a Decisive Success.

By FRANK H. SIMONDS.

The Post-Dispatch's Military Critic and Author of "The Great War" and "They Shall . . . Not Pass."

THE return of the Germans to the offensive 10 days ago served to reopen the question of the possibilities of the campaign with respect of the British in Northern France. Sir Douglas Haig, in his memorable address to his soldiers at the crisis of the battle of Armentieres, when he bade them to hold to the last, since they were fighting with their backs to the wall, plainly indicated the difficulties of the situation created by geographical circumstances.

As it stands today the British are fighting on rather more than a hundred-mile front, with the Belgians holding at least 15 more, and this combined front is nowhere more than 40 miles from the sea and at certain points very much nearer. Thus, any considerable recession of the British army, another retreat like that following the defeat of the Fifth Army before St. Quentin, would bring the British almost literally to the beach and produce another situation like that of Sir John Moore at Corunna in the Peninsular War.

The first objective of the Germans when they made their great attack was to destroy the British army. To take territory, to advance, even to the channel ports, is a relatively minor thing now, as the fourth year of the war draws to a close and the German people are waiting on a new promise of speedy victory. Merely to compel the British to retreat, either toward the coast or southward behind the Somme would not be a sufficient German success to justify the promises.

German's Major Purpose Thwarted.

But the German did not achieve his major purpose at a single thrust; his successes in Picardy fall far short of smashing British military power. The second battle of the Somme must stand as one of the great victories of the war and the largest German success in the four years of western warfare, but it was infinitely removed from a decisive victory.

Having failed in his major objective—that is, having failed to accomplish all or most of his purpose in one battle—the German has been compelled to seek by other attacks to reach his goal. And his goal remains the destruction of British military power. He is seeking to drive the British army back to the channel, to push it into the sea or pen it up in so narrow a territory that he may achieve a colossal Sedan with the channel playing for him the part Belgium played in the famous victory of half a century ago.

British strategy, therefore, must face two very grave dangers. Another disaster like the second Somme would bring the Germans to the sea. They are nearer to tide water below Abbeville, at the mouth of the Somme, than they were to Amiens two months ago. The distance from Hazebrouck to Boulogne is no greater than that from St. Quentin to the environs of Amiens, which the Germans reached in 10 days after they attacked on March 31. When the Germans reach the sea, if they do, all the British troops north of the wedge the Germans would thus drive in British lines would be isolated from French and British troops to the south.

Southern Line Most Important.

Accordingly, it i s nilptahaHoIFT,retaoinshr

Accordingly, it is plain that the first and greatest of British concerns, of Foch's problems, is to hold the southern part of the British front almost rigidly where it now stands. The Germans attacking before Amiens are in the position of a man trying to saw the limb of a tree off close to the trunk. The British armies north of Amiens are in the position of a man out on that limb. He must either stop the saw or get off the limb, if he is to avoid a fall.

This is the explanation of the prompt counter attack of the British some days ago, when the Germans took Villers—Bretonneux, some nine miles east of Amiens. Petain at Verdun used to sell much French territory on the west bank of the Meuse to the Germans, because he had it to sell for a price. But on the east bank he clung to every inch, because any material German advance on this side of the river would have been fatal. In the same way, any material advance of the Germans about Amiens would be dangerous.

It is an extreme possibility, but it is a possibility, that in the future the British may have to retire out of all that corner of France north of the Somme and west of the present front. They may have to do this for precisely the same reasons that the Belgians had to abandon Antwerp and Western Belgium and hurry southward in October, 1914, to avoid being interned in a narrow circle about Antwerp.

But the problem of retiring south of the Somme for the British and Belgians would be a very great one, owing to the narrowness of the corridor between the sea and the front, and the absence of any network of railways. To all practical purposes, the Boulogne-Clais-Amiens railroad is about the only line that can be used for north and south traffic, for the line which runs south from Dunkirk to Amiens is already under fire and probably out of business for several miles near Hazebrouck.

A Difficult Military Move.

No more difficult and enormous problem in war has ever been presented than would be presented were the British to be compelled to retire southward out of the slowly narrowing territory which they now hold. At Amiens the Germans would be little more than 10 miles from salt water, but the British and the Belgians to the north are much more than a hundred miles from Amiens. In a word, the man on the limb is very far out on the limb, and he is unmistakably a very big man, who cannot move rapidly.

German tactics now seem to have fallen to the Verdun level. Aside from watching for the chance of some unexpected success at some point in the line, which could be immediately exploited and lead to a material change in front, the German is seeking by local offensives to complete his conquest of the whole of the main positions of the British and of the Belgians occupied by them on March 21, when he began his great attack. He has broken through these positions at two points, astride the Somme on either side of the Lys. This success has compelled a readjustment of British lines about Ypres and this produced the dislocation of a third considerable section of the allied line.

There is, in fact, only one considerable section of the front of March 21 which has not been disturbed, and that is the Belgian. A second section, the front of the British Third Army about Arras, has been pushed back only a little, but it is becoming compromised by the German advance north and south of that town on the Lys and the Somme. If the German can shake the British out of Arras, then he will have produced a dislocation of the entire British front and its withdrawal toward the sea. And each step he makes toward the sea, the more hazardous becomes the position of the troops to the north, because, while the line retires it does not shorten, and these troops remain just as far away from the Somme as before, with a much narrower gateway to get through in case they have to get through it.

British Positions Are Growing.

On the whole, the British positions get better as they retire toward the sea, because the ground slopes eastward and the high land is now behind the allies, except about Amiens, but this is a very considerable exception, since Amiens is the vital point. But if the ground imprpves for the defender, the communications do not. A very slight retirement from Arras or between Arras and Amiens, would bring the German in range, and effective range, of the lateral railway coming down from Dunkirk, which is already cut between Dunkirk and Arras. Save for this line, now only partially usable, the British have no north and south railway, except that on the channel coast from Calais down to the mouth of the Somme. By this time all munitions, supplies and material must be transported in case of a retreat, following a new German advance to the Dunkirk-Amiens line.

It is a very safe prediction to make that if the Germans advance a dozen miles further westward

> I DO not mean to be understood in this article as forecasting a British retirement south of the Somme. It is exceedingly unlikely. But it may become possible under certain circumstances, and I am trying to indicate the extent to which the effects will be minor rather than major, provided the British and Belgians get away in comparative safety. Get away they must and will, if the German keeps on his advances, unless, in the meantime the opportunity comes for an allied counter offensive elsewhere.—FRANK H. SIMONDS.

The dotted line shows the German positions today, and the black one their positions at the beginning of the great offensive. The shaded portion between these lines represents the territory the Germans have gained. The three possible positions to which the British-Belgian line could be drawn back safely, according to Mr. Simonds, are indicated in the straight lines.

Krupp Director Confirms Lichnowski's Memorandum, Blaming Kaiser for War

Amazed at Emperor's Action

Declared Just Before Fateful Ultimatum Was Sent to Serbia That Ruler Was Making a Grave Mistake in "Giving Austria a Blank Check in Dealing With Her Little Neighbor."

WASHINGTON, May 1.

COINCIDENT with the publication in Germany of the famous memorandum of Prince Lichnowsky (the unabridged version of which was published in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday), squarely putting the blame for the outbreak of the world war upon the Kaiser and the German militarists, there also appeared in circular form in Germany a letter written by a certain Dr. Muhlon, a former member of the Krupp directorate, now living in Switzerland, corroborating the charges made by the Prince. The Muhlon letter was briefly referred to in an official dispatch from Switzerland received in Washington on March 29 as having produced an animated discussion throughout the empire.

A copy of the Leipziger Volkszeitung of March 20, just received here, tells how, in a discussion of the Lichnowsky and Muhlon memoranda before the Main Committee of the Reichstag on March 16, Vice Chancellor von Payer tried to minimize the value of Dr. Muhlon's statements by asserting that the former Krupp director was a sick, nervous man who no doubt did not intend to injure his country's cause, but who was hardly responsible for his actions because of his many nervous breakdowns. Later, the Berliner Tageblatt printed the text of Dr. Muhlon's letter which was evidently written before the resignation of Dr. Karl Helfferich as Vice Chancellor last November. As translated by the London Times, Dr. Muhlon's memorandum reads:

His Talk With Helfferich.

"In the middle of July, 1914, I had, as I frequently had, a conversation with Dr. Helfferich, then Director of the Deutsche Bank in Berlin, and now Vice Chancellor. The Deutsche Bank had adopted a negative attitude toward certain large transactions in Bulgaria and Turkey, in which the firm of Krupp, for busines reasons—delivery of war material—had a lively interest. As one of the reasons to justify the attitude of the Deutsche Bank, Dr. Helfferich finally gave me the following reason:

"'The political situation has become very menacing. The Deutsche Bank must in any case wait before entering into any further engagements abroad. The Austrians have just been with the Kaiser. In a week's time Vienna will send a very severe ultimatum to Serbia, with a very short interval for the answer. The ultimatum will contain demands such as punishment of a number of officers, dissolution of political associations, criminal investigations in Serbia by Austrian officials, and, in fact, a whole series of definite satisfactions will be demanded at once; otherwise Austria-Hungary will declare war on Serbia.'

"Dr. Helfferich added that the Kaiser had expressed his decided approval of this procedure on the part of Austria-Hungary. He had said that he regarded a conflict with Serbia as an internal affair between these two countries, in which he would permit no other state to interfere. If Russia mobilized, he would mobilize also. But in his case mobilization meant immediate war. This time there would be no oscillation. Helfferich said that the Austrians were extremely well satisfied at this determined attitude on the part of the Kaiser.

"When I thereupon said to Dr. Helfferich that this uncanny communication converted my fears of a world war, which were already strong, into absolute certainty, he replied that it certainly looked like that. But perhaps France and Russia would reconsider the matter. In any case, the Serbs deserved a lesson which they would remember. This was the first intimation that I had received about the Kaiser's discussions with our allies. I knew Dr. Helfferich's particularly intimate relations with the personages who were sure to be initiated, and I knew that his communication was trustworthy.

"After my return from Berlin I informed Herr Krupp von Bohlen and Halbach one of whose directors I then was at Essen. Dr. Helfferich had given me permission and at that time the intention was to make him a director of Krupps. Herr von Bohlen seemed disturbed that Dr. Helfferich was in possession of such information, and he made a remark to the effect that the Government people can never keep their mouths shut. He then told me the following: He said that he had himself been with the Kaiser in the last few days. The Kaiser had spoken to him also of his conversation with the Austrians, and of its result; but he had described the matter as so secret that he (Krupp) would not even have dared to inform his own directors. As, however, I already knew, he could tell me that Helfferich's statements were accurate. Indeed, Helfferich seemed to know more details than he did. He said that the situation was really very serious. The Kaiser had told him that he would declare war immediately if Russia mobilized, and that this time people would see that he did not turn about. The Kaiser's repeated insistence that this time nobody would be able to accuse him of indecision had, he said, been almost comic in its effect

More Evidence of German Duplicity.

"On the very day indicated to me by Helfferich the Austrian ultimatum to Serbia appeared. At this time I was again in Berlin, and I told Helfferich that I regarded the tone and contents of the ultimatum as simply monstrous. Dr. Helfferich, however, said that the note only had that ring in the German translation. He had seen the ultimatum in French, and in French it really could not be regarded as overdone. On this occasion Helfferich also said to me that the Kaiser had gone on his northern cruise only as a 'blind;' he had not arranged the cruise on the usual extensive scale, but was remaining close at hand and keeping in constant touch. Now one must simply wait and see what would happen. The Austrians, who, of course, did not expect the ultimatum to be accepted, were really acting rapidly before the other Powers could find time to interfere. The Deutsche Bank had already made its arrangements, so as to be prepared for all eventualities. For example, it was no longer paying out the gold which came in. That could easily be done without attracting notice, and the

> I HAVE already shown that the contents of the unlimatum were pretty accurately known in Germany. Herr Krupp von Bohlen (head of the great Krupp gun works) with whom I spoke about these German declarations (denial of knowledge of the contents of the ultimatum)—which, at any rate, were lies—was also by no means edified. For, as he said, Germany ought not, in such a tremendous affair, to have given a blank check to a state like Austria. In short, Herr von Bohlen regarded the German denial of previous knowledge, if there was any truth in it, as an offensive against the elementary principles of diplomacy.—DR. MUEHLON.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Test of Irish Honor.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In a recent edition of the Post-Dispatch you printed a letter under the title "Ireland Likened to Belgium," which was nothing more than a boiled-down edition of the speech made by Jeremiah O'Leary at the German-Irish love feast that was held in this city about one and a half years ago. President Wilson told O'Leary and all of his stripe exactly what they are.

The writer voices the idea that the Irish are to be conscripted to fight for England, which is tantamount to the assertion that our young men are being called for the same reason. The President has many times defined our position with such vividness that no man with an atom of Americanism in him can possibly misunderstand it. No man with an American soul will, at this time, reiterate the time-worn, vicious, made-in-Berlin argument that the war is being fought solely in the interest of England. Our magnificent young men are fighting and dying shoulder to shoulder with our allies. The battle line in Europe is our battle line. In the ranks the thousands of noble young Irishmen who are fighting like demons, not for England, nor France, nor Belgium, nor the United States. They are fighting for the liberty of the world, for the sanctity of their homes, for mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts; fighting against that horrible thing which has revealed itself in the past three years, that suffocating blast of turpentine that has strangled every soul it touched. The contempt of the world will be the portion of all those who refuse to do their share in crushing this monster.

Is it the intention of the Sinn Fein Irish to start a German battle line in Ireland? Will their abettors in this country back them and endeavor to make our land a German base of supplies? If this is the program their career will end at about the same instant it begins. This war furnishes the test of Irish honor and the validity of her claim to our sympathy. Verbum sat sapienti.

German Propaganda in Congress.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Your editorial showing up Hitchcock's unfitness for chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations was timely. His position favoring an embargo on munitions, as all know now, was mere German propaganda. If Hitchcock didn't know that he is all the more unfit. Several members of the Missouri delegation favored an embargo on munitions which was contrary to the President's expressed wishes. In its issue of Feb. 14, 1916, on page 2903 of the Congressional Record, there appears a speech by Congressman C. W. Hamlin, who said:

"Mr. Chairman, there is another phase of this war situation which has given me considerable worry. I refer to the sale of armaments by our people to the nations now engaged in war. I recognize the fact to be true in permitting this traffic in arms and munitions we are entirely within our rights under the practices and customs of nations; but as a matter of conscience are we right? I have reached the conclusion that we cannot be consistent in praying for the war to end and at the same time placing into the hands of the belligerents the means of carrying it on. I will, therefore, vote for an embargo on arms and munitions if the opportunity presents itself."

How many more were there in Congress echoing the arguments of Berlin?

DEMOCRAT.

Compulsory Operations.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have been a reader of the Post-Dispatch for eight years. I read an article in Saturday's Post where a man at Camp Meade was sentenced to five years in prison for refusing to undergo an operation. I do not think this is right or just, and would like to know the opinion of the public in regard to same.

I am a man who is in the first class and who also has a defect, and was just wondering whether they would take the liberty of operating on me. I have lived for 12 years with my defect, and would not like to take a chance of having it operated on, and think such things should be left to the person in question to decide, and, besides, there are plenty of places where they could use him in lighter work, such as the Quartermaster's Department, etc.

I think it would be an act of honor for some person of prestige to take this matter up and see that the lad got a square deal, and see what he could do for him.

AN AMERICAN.

SHERMAN SHOULD APOLOGIZE.

Criticising, in the Senate, the Post-Dispatch for publishing the interview with Dr. Charles H. Weinsberg, president of the State German-American Alliance, Senator Sherman of Illinois grossly misconstrued the purpose of this newspaper.

The Post-Dispatch sent two reporters to obtain the interview, which was published in order to expose the disloyalty of Dr. Weinsberg and to give further convincing reasons for the abolition of the German-American Alliance, which was then on trial in the Senate. Two reporters were sent to obtain two witnesses to the accuracy of the interview, with the definite expectation that Dr. Weinsberg would be arrested for his utterances. Similar statements had been made previously to one Post-Dispatch reporter.

A warrant for Dr. Weinsberg's arrest was issued within an hour of the appearance of the publication, and the testimony upon which he was subsequently indicted was supplied by the Post-Dispatch reporters who interviewed him.

The attitude of the Post-Dispatch with regard to the publication of the interview was clearly indicated in the following editorial, which appeared on the next day:

> ### WHAT ABOUT DR. WEINSBERG?
> In the light of Dr. Charles H. Weinsberg's statement in the Post-Dispatch that Germany will win the war in six months and impose a German peace on America and our allies, the disbanding of the Missouri State branch of the German-American Alliance of which he is president, is a timely act.
> There is not a spark of the American in the man who holds and announces his opinion not only that Germany will crush France and destroy the allied cause in Europe, but that Americans with Britain, when this happens, will surrender and cravenly accept the autocratic peace terms of the Kaiser; in short, that America will shamefully lay down her arms, beg peace from the Kaiser and consent to his mastership of the world.
> Dr. Weinsberg is giving all the aid and comfort of which he is capable to the enemy and is throwing whatever influence he possesses against America's putting another man or another dollar into the war.
> Dr. Weinsberg's German-American Alliance ought to go at once, but what of Dr. Weinsberg?
> We know where he stands in the war, but his arrest and trial will demonstrate where he and others of his kind stand under the law.

In publishing this interview calling the attention of the District Attorney and the public to Dr. Weinsberg's attitude, the Post-Dispatch did what it conceived to be and still holds to have been its clear duty. We regard it as a public service.

Senator Sherman owes the Post-Dispatch an apology, which he ought to make on the floor of the Senate.

Judging from the signs which the draft contingents are chalking on their railroad coaches, it is safe to say that before the war is over the Kaiser will be got.

WAR TIME POLITICS.

Just as war conditions have reached every other phase of life, it is reaching the practice of practical politics. It has affected different politicians in various ways, but all are paying much heed to the issue raised with Germany.

J. B. A. Robertson of Oklahoma City, who is seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor in his State, has made a picturesque suggestion. He proposes to all candidates, that each leave the State until after the day for the primaries and devote himself to war work in some other community. The money that each had planned to spend in the campaign will be given to the Red Cross. While the candidates are thus helping to win the war, the people can decide. His challenge has not been accepted.

From Kansas comes another unusual suggestion. This probably will carry. The younger element of the Democratic party has suggested that the party shall not nominate a State ticket, but devote its entire energy to electing suitable members of Congress to aid President Wilson. The "old timers," who have carried the party banner to defeat almost without exception in Kansas, are talking of "white feathers," but the young men are talking patriotism so loud that the old ones are about hushed.

These young men would defeat Senator Thompson of their own party, because he has "made a muddle" of Democratic interests, but they would especially like to defeat some Republicans, including Representative Little, a Republican and the only Kansan who voted against the war resolution. They think their State sacrifices would bring them aid in their national issue battles.

NEGROES AND EDUCATION.

The negro cultivates two-thirds of the farm land in the South, and he owns one-tenth of it, Maj. Robert R. Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, told the educators assembled at the race relations section of the seventh annual session of the Southern Sociological Congress, in Birmingham, Ala. This session of the congress attracted wide attention from Southern newspapers. It is the only conference in which leading educators of the South meet, regardless of race, and discuss the future. Previously the Congress has felt itself rather ignored, but now it has won a place.

Monroe N. Work of Tuskegee Institute, who presented the negro's side, said that of the increased wage brought to the negro by the war activities, some of it had been spent foolishly for silk dresses and automobiles, but a far greater portion has been spent for livestock, invested in lands and in Liberty Bonds and Savings Stamps. He said that negroes had given $170,000 toward the Rosenwald Rural School fund. The only pleas in behalf of the negro were for adequate educational advantages, a fair wage compared with white labor and a square deal from policemen, Constables, Sheriffs and petty officers, who are too free with pistols and too anxious for fees.

Maj. Moton advised that the best way to help the negro to better things was to educate more of the race so there would be more intelligent leadership.

SPEED AND EFFICIENCY.

The adoption of the Overman bill by a large majority in the Senate, despite bitter opposition, should foreshadow its rapid passage in the House.

The debate in the Senate brought out every point of objection that could be urged against the bill. The measure was thoroughly threshed out and was whipped into sound form. The bill puts great powers in the hands of the President, but the powers are well defined and are all designed for a single purpose—the co-ordination of governmental departments and agencies for the efficient conduct of the war. The President cannot create any new offices or agencies, except a specially authorized agency to supervise the production of airplanes, airplane motors and aircraft equipment. In this field alone he is empowered to create new offices and fill them.

Under the bill the President can transfer functions from one bureau to another and thus consolidate and concentrate similar functions concerned in war under one head. The measure provides for efficient co-ordination of war activities, making for unity and efficiency and economy in war work.

As an efficiency measure its importance cannot be overestimated. One of the great difficulties of the administration in handling war work has been the division of similar functions in several departments and the division of authority over similar activities, resulting in confusion and delay. Much of the criticism of war work has been caused by failure due to lack of co-ordination and the concentration of function and authority. There has been pressing need for this kind of governmental reorganization required for the stupendous job of war preparation.

Time is now of paramount importance. In view of the situation in France we must make speed, and the Overman bill, in making for efficiency, makes for speed.

The House should give debate on the bill short shrift. It should be put through quickly, so that no time may be lost in organizing to the best advantage for the swift utilization of our resources to win victory and peace at the least possible cost.

WOMEN'S PRIMARY PLATFORM.

Arkansas is making a new Constitution by farming the work out to many committees, which will, in the course of time, report to the elected Constitutional Convention. One of the big topics before this convention will be suffrage. The last Legislature granted suffrage to women in primaries, but suffrage in elections is a constitutional question.

Primaries are important in Arkansas, where a nomination in the majority party is considered an election. So the women are taking their primary suffrage seriously and have an organization that reaches into the most remote precincts. Also they have a platform declaring that women should pay their poll tax and vote. Here are the chief planks:

1. Only candidates entirely favorable to full suffrage for women should be considered.
2. Women should see that candidates they support are pledged to extend the privilege of voting to citizens absent from the State on military duty. At present the soldiers cannot vote if out of the State.
3. Candidates must be pledged to bar all first-paper aliens from suffrage.

SEA MURDERS NUMBER 15,000.

Havelock Wilson, president of the British Seamen's Union, computes that 15,000 British seafaring men on ocean traders have been murdered by piratical members of the same profession in the employ of the German navy. The union's official boycott on handling anything of German origin or contributing in any way to German benefit has been extended from two years to five years and a half, to begin with the date on which peace is concluded.

What potency these 15,000 murders on the waters will lend to the idea of international solidarity and promotion of wageworkers' aims without reference to national boundaries, which was so much exploited by organized German workers in the past! Why limit the boycott to five years and a half? That is only one year for each 2727 murders.

It will be many times five years and a half before the chivalrous workers of the ocean trade cease to abhor all of the German name as something less than men and workers too contemptible for the association of manly men.

THE HYPHENATED VOTE AFTER THE WAR.

Kern County, in California, records, perhaps too enthusiastically, but still significantly, the sentiment of these times. Its board of supervisors has passed an ordinance making it an offense to teach German in the schools. Persons who violate the enactment are subject to the penalties of a misdemeanor.

The politician, than whom no political type was more familiar, who catered to the vote of this or that hyphenated description and who got on the ticket because of his assets in strength with that vote and who exerted a pernicious influence on public measures and administration by threats as to the attitude of such vote is going to be very scarce after the war. He will be out of a job and it will be a good thing that he is out of a job.

The vote that will have to be gained after the war is the American vote. It has had little consideration in the past, but it is coming into its own.

WRITERS—AND OTHERS.

HIGH time it is the critic took in hand
His pen, for comment on the scribbling band
Who've pushed poor Letters to the slipp'ry brink,
And wellnigh drowned her in a sea of ink.
Nor think to charge that we are over bold,
For some to sing are born, and some to scold.

First Pegasus enlists our timely aid,
Who has been turned to pasture on the glade:
Our modern bard, by ancient muses bored,
Prefers to quest for glory in a Ford.
Mounting the steed, we rise o'er the array.
And from a point of vantage view the fray.
Here Amy Lowell, pale Joan d'Arc of verse
That has been liberated from the curse
Of Meter, sense, and everything but length,
Against the walls of clearness hurls her strength.
Hail, conquering heroine! Twice famed is she
Who met and vanquished perspicuity!
We deemed, ere righted by your brilliant mind,
That poetry was a thing could be defined.
How strange to know a bard should never write
Unless his theme is either dull or trite!
How passing odd to know that thought should be Expressed in terms of incoherency.
Oh, ghost of Homer, break thy long repose;
Come back to earth and slay this tortured prose!
Shall Shelley's golden scepter droop in shame
Before the beanstalk wand of Boston's dame?

Now life is flavored with the novel tang
Of fabled humor dressed in Hoosier slang.
Both Lamb and Holmes are swallowed in the shade
Of that Gargantuan shadow cast by Ade,
Whose pungent pen would set us all careening
By forming words with neither sound nor meaning.
Micawber, Touchstone—each must hide his face,
Since wit dwells only in the upper case.
O, laughter, laughter, thou are somewhat forced—
Now literature and grammar are divorced!

Filth cannot yet restrain its noble rage,
And "sloppy stories" smell from every page.
Elaine must sell her virtue, or disclaim
All promise of contemporary fame.
Though fact and fiction once were doughty foes,
Each fell to earth when "Susan Lenox" rose.
Cooper and Scott have sheathed their trenchant blades,
But Chambers fills the lists with ladies' maids.
And common lusts, rechristened "Common Law,"
Admiring plaudits from the boxes draw.
Then, as we're sure the very worst is done,
Up springs a "Turmoil," sired by Tarkington;
(Though those who read the tale are apt to find
The name descriptive of the author's mind.)
We modern folk are oft compelled to hear
Far stranger things than startled Balaam's ear.

Poor common sense expired without a groan
When Bernard Shaw ascended logic's throne.
Hume, Mill and Bentham are alike forgot,
For now we know what is, of course, is not.
Oh, sage of Erin, doff thy motley dress—
Truth doth not rest upon contrariness!
Philosophy attains its lowest tide
When all experience is set aside.
To tweak the public's nose and take its gold
Proves only that the doer hath grown bold;
He cannot well aspire to lead his brother
Who faces one way and proceeds another?

Now, to conclude our rhyme, we might say else
How Kipling compensates for H. G. Wells;
How Carman still atones the sins of Frost;
How Bennett bears a banner not quite lost,
But worth, though 'compassed with absurdity,
Bears on its brow its worthiest eulogy.
The sun's best heralds are its morning rays—
And we essayed to banter—not to praise.

WAR PAPAS.

FRANCE, April 15, 1918.

HAVING babies born while you're away battling for the safety of small nations has certain advantages.

At home or abroad, its certain that you'll be walking the floor every other night or so—and a gun can't have the croup—or whooping cough. In the early morning, there's little to be said one way or the other. Babies and bugles are both bad.

Having babies born while abroad is something like having money in the bank. You're reasonably sure its there—but its not like having it sewed up in the old mattress.

Sentimentally speaking it's kind of tough on the trooper not to have a chance to play with his tot's toes when they are tiny—for I've understood that when you catch them young enough, toes are tantalizing.

A ROSE IN PARADISE.

NOW, hast thou shaken thy thorns all off, sweet rose,
Beyond the hailing fire of earthly pain;
Thy leaves are kissed with eternity's freshet rain,
And shame nor sorrow break thy fair repose.
Soft magic petals o'er thy shoulders bend
As tinseled song through vale and thicket ring
From far rillet or near immortal spring.
Forsaken, lost—no. He doth ever send
A-wafting down the bright sequestered skies
A message through His deep endearing eyes
That spells Octavia's name in Paradise.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

On Teaching Patriotism.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

PATRIOTISM has been described as a passion which inspires one to serve one's country. It should be the same passion which animates a man to defend his household against a burglar or his land against someone who would swindle him out of the title or drive him off. Patriotism should be more than a mere sentiment of filial duty to an impersonal parent; a motherland or fatherland of poetic fancy. It should be a passionate determination to defend a patrimony and the rights that go with it; to repel, at any cost, the invader of your heritage; the would-be appropriator of your land and your goods and your chattels and destroyer of the liberty to which you are entitled inalienably.

Walk up to a boundary line of private property—town lot or country estate—and say to the owner: "I shall cross this boundary. I shall possess myself of your home. I shall work my will upon your household. I shall take over your household goods."

Will it require a brass band and a flag to stir up that man's passionate desire to serve his own interests? Will it require a course of lectures? Will that man, after having been aroused to action by music, pageantry, exhortation, swell with pride, strike an attitude, shed a tear and declare sentimentally his willingness to die in the service of his bungalow or his farm? Will he, if he is one lacking in a feeling for the dramatic, without ready reactions to anthems and flags, not keen upon duty for duty's sake, tell you that he has a brother George who owns a share in the property and that he will go in to dinner and let George defend the joint property and the joint rights?

The fundamental difference between the man who, at the drop of the hat, and regardless of risk of life, will fight the invader of his personal property and private rights and the man who must be roused by the devices of oratory, music, theatric display to willingness to fight for his country is that every one is educated to appreciation of rights in private property, while millions understand but dimly their rights as citizens, the value of those rights, and why, and how much, it behooves them to fight at the drop of the hat when a land-grabbing, cut-throat nation headed by an unscrupulous ruler proposes to cross the boundary and work its will.

It is well to feel a sentimental devotion to one's country, as to one's mother and father, but it is well also to feel for one's country the passionate devotion that every one, even the meanest, feels for his property and personal rights, and to understand that a call to arms in its defense is not, in the language of an imbecile who wrote a string of verses once popular among the superficial, a call to "shed one's blood for a flaunting, foolish flag."

Assuredly the schools might do much more than has been done to teach American children, American boys and girls, that patriotism is not a virtue merely; an emotion to be experienced with a glow of sentiment and self-approval when the band plays "Yankee Doodle" or "The Star-Spangled Banner" in times of peace, or when soldiers are marching to their music in the streets and the front pages of newspapers are black with war headlines, and that the man who does not feel for the country and the rights it guarantees, the passion he feels for his home, his personal property, his right to walk abroad unmolested, is an ignoramus or a fool, in addition to being an ingrate and a coward.

Propaganda Suggestions.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

IT would be interesting, extremely interesting, to know what branch of the pro-German propaganda in the United States is behind the suggestions (1), that enlisted men be granted furloughs to help in farm work at the moment when every available American soldier is needed in Europe; and (2), that changes in the designs of ships, involving further delay in construction, be made at a moment when every ton of shipping which it is possible to obtain quickly is vitally necessary for the transport of men and supplies across the Atlantic. There is labor enough idling in the country to help out on the farms without taking a man from the ranks, and a year and a half has already been lost in shipbuilding, largely, no doubt, through the machinations of plotters in changing designs and specifications. Is the nation to be duped again, or, rather, is there to be no end to the duping of the nation?

Not in Leading Strings.

From the New York Evening Post.

WHERE was Senator Brandegee's memory when he said that the President "gives his word to Senators, and they do just what he says?" Within a year and a half the Senate has refused upon several important occasions to follow the President. Does the Connecticut Senator not remember that the Senate passed the illiteracy test bill against the President's expressed opposition? That it repassed it over his veto? That it failed to ratify the Colombian treaty he sent to it? That it declined to pass an important part of his railway strike legislation? That it lagged months behind the House on such measures as the Porto Rican citizenship bill, heartily urged by the executive? That it was the scene of a greatly condemned filibuster against the President's armed ship bill? That its reluctance to pass the food control bill grew into a public scandal?

Events in the Social World

Fewer Weddings This Week Than Last, but Engagements Continue Without Abatement and Furnish Main Topic of Conversation in Social World.

THERE was a decided slump in weddings the past week compared to the previous red-letter week. Engagements, however, continue without abatement and form the main topic of conversation in the social world aside from war work, of course. The season of the year which we are just entering upon is the intervening period between the return of the winter tourists and the time when the summer vacationists take wing and has always been one of social inactivity, so were it not for the engagements and war weddings just now society would indeed be at a loss for excitement.

The only important wedding of the week took place yesterday afternoon when Miss Edmonia Taylor Bryan becanme the bride of Maj. Henry Wise Hobson. The ceremony was quietly performed at the Bofinger Chapel of Christ Church Cathedral at 5:30 o'clock with the Rev. B. T. Kemmerer officiating. Mrs. Bruce Seddon served as matron of honor and wore a gown of yellow organdie and carried a shower of pansies. Miss Georgette Madill was the maid of honor and wore a blue organdie gown with a shower boquet of pansies. Lieut. Henry C. Bryan, from Camp Funston, the bride's brother, served as best man. Capt. Arthur Wear and Capt. Semple from Camp Funston and Arthur Clark were groomsmen.

The bridal robe was of white satin with a court train of the satin lined with chiffon. Her veil of rose point lace was the same worn by her grandmother, the late Mrs. Francis Bryan, and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

A small reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Taylor Bryan of 4346 McPherson avenue and has been one of the belles of society since her debut two seasons ago. She is a representative of many of the old and prominent families of St. Louis on both her father and mother's side of the house. Maj. Hobson formerly resided in Denver. He was graduated from Yale in 1914 and is a grandson of the late Governor Wise of Virginia. He will take his bride to Fort Riley to reside while he is stationed at Camp Funston. All the plans for the wedding were hurriedly arranged as the bride only returned Tuesday from Fort Riley where she has been visiting Col. and Mrs. Tilford.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Gleason, daughter of the late Dr. Louis A. Gleason and Mrs. Gleason of Hannibal, Mo., to Capt. Rodgers Dudley took place on Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Charles Adams How of 5566 Clemens avenue. The bride's litle niece and nephew, Margaret and James How, were the only attendants. The bride is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke in Massachusetts and took a post-graduate course at Columbia University. Capt. Dudley is formerly from Hannibal, Mo. but resided in St. Louis before joining the Medical Reserves Corps. He is an honor graduate of the University of Virginia and later studied in Vienna. His bride will remain in St. Louis while he is in France.

ONE of the interesting engagements announced the past week, the wedding to take place on Tuesday, is that of Capt. Theodore White and Mrs. Edith Hayt of Denver, Colo. Capt. White is the son of Mrs. T. Ewing White of 411 North Newstead avenue. He was graduated from Cornell in 1910 and has been a popular beaux of society. His mother, and her sister, Mrs. George J. Atkinson of Columbus, O., who has been her guest, and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kiton White, will depart today for Denver to attend the wedding. Capt. White is now stationed at Camp Funston with the 314th Ammunition Train.

THE engagement of Mrs. Judson E. Boughton of 6138 Waterman avenue to Prof. Shirley Howard Weber was announced during the week. Mrs. Boughton is from the East but has resided in St. Louis for several years. Prof. Weber is formerly from California, but now occupies the chair of Greek and Latin at Washington University. He is a Princeton graduate. The wedding will take place in June.

ON Thursday at the Bellerive Country Club, Mrs. Oliver C. Smith of 5618 Cabanne avenue entertained with a luncheon for 20 guests at which the engagement of her sister-in-law, Miss Ethel Smith, to John F. Cannon Jr., was announced. Miss Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. McB. Smith of 5343 Maple avenue. She was graduated from Hosmer Hall and then spent two years abroad and was in Paris when the war broke out. Mr. Cannon is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John F. Cannon and is a graduate of Westminster College at Fulton, Mo. His father is the pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church and for many years was pastor of the old Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church. The wedding will take place in the early fall.

Ladies' and gents' hats cleaned, pressed and dyed like new. J. J. Ryan, 617 Lucas.—Adv.

THE engagement and marriage of Miss Melba Nelson to Lieut. Henry Schmitz was made known the past week. The wedding took place yesterday morning in Seattle, for which place the bride departed on Tuesday. She is the daughter of Mrs. J. J. Nelson of 4252 Shenandoah avenue and a sister of Mrs. H. P. Brady of the Lucerne apartments. Lieut. Schmitz is stationed at the Seattle Navy Yard and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Schmitz of Seattle.

ANOTHER engagement was that of Miss Ruby Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carter of 5375 Maple avenue, to Clark Way, son of Mrs. James Clark Way of 5575 Waterman avenue. Miss Carter was educated at Mary Institute and Mr. Way is a Washington University graduate. The wedding will be an event of June.

NEXT Saturday is the date chosen for two weddings of interest, one here and the other in Kansas City. The first is that of Miss Lora Herbel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Herbel of 5001 Raymond avenue to John M. Thomsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Thomsen of Fulton, Ill. The ceremony will take place at the residence of the bride's parents. The marriage of Miss Marjorie Rowan of Kansas City to Lieut. Karl H. Hodge, son of Mrs. H. W. Gildehaus of 3424 Hawthorne boulevard, will take place Saturday morning in Kansas City. Lieut. Hodge is stationed at Camp Funston in the artillery and was a well-known member of South Side circles before his entrance into the service.

A ST. LOUIS auxiliary of the French Red Cross Society is being formed to carry out more efficiently the work undertaken here the past winter when funds were raised and sent to France to aid the French Red Cross Hospital No. 106 at Millau, Aveyron, France, of which Mme. Prevot is the head. She is the mother of Lieut. Paul Prevot who was stationed at Scott Field for several months as instructor but who has returned to France and is now at the front. This hospital has a capacity of 100 war beds per day and has been in operation continuously since 1914. So scarce are materials for bandages in France at this time that dressings are sometimes used over and over again until they drop to pieces. An urgent appeal is sent to every one to assist in this great need and arrangements have been completed through the French Ambassador at Washington to permit the St. Louis Auxiliary to send bandages and supplies direct to the hospital under the official seal of the French Republic. Mrs. Taylor Bernard, Mrs. F. V. Dubrouillet and John C. Wilkinson are the executive committee and any donations should be sent to Mrs. Dubrouillet, treasurer, 5123 Westminster place. The Advisory Board consists of Mmes. Daniel Sidney Brown, Joseph W. Folk, Caroline L. Blackmer, Mary C. Culver, John C. Wilkinson and Miss Elizabeth Cueny, Messrs. John O. Ballard, F. V. Dubrouillet, Isaac Orr, L. Guy Blackmer, Thomas H. Cobbs, James E. Fogg, Guido Pantaleoni, Thomas L. Lovelace, John B. Kennard, the Rev. Taylor Bernard, the Rev. Z. B. T. Phillips; the Rev. Arthur Lee Odell, the Rev. John Boden, Capt. Andre Hardieu, president of the French High Commission to the United States, and his excellency, the French Ambassador at Washington, Monsieur J. J. Jusserand.

ON Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock the rose room of the Buckingham Hotel will be the scene of a card party given by the St. Louis branch of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae to raise funds for the new Collegiate Bureau of Occupations which the St. Louis branch, co-operating with the Government Department of Labor, opened April 15 at 802 Chestnut street.

Mrs. Walter Kirchner, president of the association in St. Louis, has announced that a prize will be given to the member selling the greatest number of tickets for the card party. The other officers of the St. Louis branch of the Associate of Collegiate Alumnae are: Mrs. Ludwig Schneidt, vice president; Clarissa B. Brockstedt, secretary; Genevieve Apgar, treasurer; Alice Flickinger, councillor, and Mabel McQuston, director.

The patronesses for the card party are: Mmes. B. F. Bush, F. E. Cockrell, W. H. Elliott, J. D. Filley, F. W. Fredrichs, Philip Fouke, George Gellhorn, G. E. Hoffman, Dean Martha G. McCauley, Mmes. George Mangold, G. V. R. Mechin, Philip N. Moore, J. Pitzman, A. E. Reton, F. S. Roth, Oreon E. Scott, S. L. Tower and Mrs. Fanny Bonner Price.

UNDER the name of the Federation for Soldiers Week End Recreation beginning yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Kauffman have turned over their home known as "The Arches" with its handsome grounds including a swimming pool and Japanese garden to the soldier boys where they may spend Saturdays and Sundays during the summer months. Mrs. Kauffman was the hostess yesterday assisted by the Auxiliary of the Baptist Orphans' Home and it is planned to have a different organization assist at each week end. Mrs. Joseph Folk who is a member of the auxiliary has offered to furnish an entertainment each Saturday. Yesterday evening a real old-fashioned barbecue took place for the boys. Ladies of Webster and Kirkwood will entertain the boys over Saturday nights and they will return after breakfast to "The Arches." This organization has the full approval of the Y. M. C. A.

On Friday evening May 24 and the following afternoon matinee, at the Odeon, will be given a children's play in two acts written especially for this occasion by Mrs. Rosalind Mahler with 123 children in the cast from 3 to 16 years of age. These performances will be for the benefit of the Federation of Soldiers' Week End Recreation. The play is entitled "Miss Yankee Doodle" and dance-solos, ballets and songs with costumes made especially for the occasion will be included in the program. Seats and boxes may be secured now from Mrs. Jacob Mahler, 4911 Washington boulevard.

"The Cleanest Laundry."
Colonial Laundry Co. —ADV.

ONE of the most important of all the important war works and in which many of our most prominent women are interested is the canteen work at the Y. M. C. A. hut at Union Station. The object of this hut is to care for sailors and soldiers passing through St. Louis, who have only a short time here and no friends or relatives to do anything for them. The hut is very attractively arranged, with a piano and various musical instruments, books, magazines, writing materials, etc., and a canteen with all modern conveniences for preparing food for the boys has been installed. Adjoining the hut proper is a large hall with a stage and stage settings arranged, where entertainments are given in the evenings for the boys and provision is made where they can stay all night if it is necessary. Mrs. Charles Cummings Collins is the very able head of the canteen and has a corps of efficient assistants, a different group being in charge each day.

Among the long list of assistant are Mmes. M. F. Chase, Lindell Gordon, Howard O'Fallon, Guido Pantaleoni, Chouteau Dyer, Albert T. Terry, E. K. Love, Vincent Price, F. B. Menner, Robert Kaime, Robert Walsh, Edward G. Hotchkiss, E. D. Nims, Oliver Garrison, Robert Mudd, Newton R. Wilson, L. R. Gifford, James K. Payne, Wallace Culver, Frank Hamilton, Gouverneur Calhoun, Ed Gould, Alden Little, Robert S. Hoxie, Glenn Hill, James Hill, Robert Burkham, T. L. Anderson, Fidelio Sharp, W. G. McRee Jr., George Tracy, Harvey Jones, Frank Blelock, B. T. Kemmerer, George Dock, C. C. Connor; Misses Julia Tyler, Yvonne Merrill, Marian Allen, May Thompson, Cora Pittman, Maud Gamble, Katherine Edwards, Charlotte and Gladys Knowlton, Hazel, Mildred and Marguerite Morrill, Lucile White, Mary Blaine Tompkins and numerous others.

A soldier from France passed through not long ago who had visited many canteens, both in France and in this country, but he said that this one was more like the French canteens that any he had seen. One can see how important this work is when some of our own St. Louis girls have braved the perils of an ocean trip at this time to do this same work over there. It means much to a strange soldier or sailor to find a welcome and a place to rest where refreshment can be obtained on his long journey and with the cheery words and good wishes accompanying him on his departure he feels a revived hope and courage in the work that confronts him.

TOMORROW morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Wednesday Club auditorium, there will be a May Morning Musicale which is a special call meeting of the American University Society. The soloists will be Mmes. Karl Kimmel and J. H. McKelvey, Messrs. John Besse, John W. Bohn and Claude Saner. The latter is a former grand opera star and is now stationed at Jefferson Barracks in the Quartermaster's Corps. Miss Edith Gibbins will be the accompanist. Cadman's Song Cycle entitled "The Morning of the Year" will be given, and Mr. Saner will give some added solos.

A beautiful lot of real Italian filet laces and medallions, just received, at very low price, at the Florentine Shop, 4315 Olive.—Adv.

THE Current Topics Section of the Wednesday Club, of which Mrs. Oreon E. Scott is the retiring chairman, gave a studio tea on Friday afternoon in compliment to Mrs. George O. Carpenter Jr., the new chairman, and Mrs. Henry Hopkins, the new secretary. The afternoon was arranged by Mrs. John T. Wallace and there were on exhibition about 30 portraits by Schevill, the artist, who has painted the portraits of a number of prominent St. Louisans, among them Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus, Mrs. Clement R. D. Meier, Miss Jane Shapleigh, A. L. Shapleigh and others. A portrait of the artist's wife, who is a former St. Louisan, and a sister of Mr. C. R. D. Meier, was among the collection. This studio tea was said to be one of the most artistic entertainments given in a long time, and a large number of fashionable women were in attendance. It came as a needed and legitimate relaxation after the war work in which every woman is so keenly interested.

MISS NANCY COONSMAN of 6171 Delmar boulevard, accompanied by her mother, departed last night for San Antonio, Tex., where tomorrow she will become the bride of Emanuel Hahn, formerly of St. Louis, but now a Lieutenant in the Aviation Corps. Miss Coonsman is the daughter of Mrs. Robert Coonsman and is a well-known sculptor. Lieut. Hahn is the son of I. N. Hahn of 4858 Fountain place and attended the University of Wisconsin. Lieut. Hahn is recovering from an injury received recently and as he will be unable to see active service for awhile the wedding was hurriedly decided upon. Mr. Hahn, the bridegroom-elect's father, is already in San Antonio, and will attend the marriage. The bride expects to remain in San Antonio with her husband for two months.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams of Webster have received word from their son, Robert McCormick Adams Jr., that he has finished his course at the Cloyne school at Newport, which is an officers' training school, and will soon receive his commission as an ensign in the navy. Mr. Adams was graduated from Princeton and attended the law department of Northwestern University and resided in Chicago before joining the naval reserves.

Mrs. John Fraser, formerly Miss Marion Smith, daughter of H. T. T. Smith of 55 Kingsbury place, stopped for a visit with her father en route from Vancouver Barracks to Fort Benjamin Harrison, where she will join her husband, Maj. Fraser.

Miss Marguerite Smith entertained the Liberty Girls' Club at her home, 3936 Lincoln avenue last night with a "kiddies' party." The house was decorated with red, white and blue bunting, American flags, flowers and ribbons. Those present were the Misses Kathleen Taber, Mildred Manewal, Helen Speckhals, Imelda Reid, Margaret Fitzgibbons, Florence Schoemaker, Aurelia Mazzoni, Rose Rossi, Margaret Daly, Marie and Hyacinth Lohmann, Helen Halpin, Clara Hackmann, Marie Links, Mildred Hickey, Anna and Marguerite Smith. A SIMPLE WAY TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—ADV.

DIRECTOR OF KRUPP WORKS CONFIRMS LICHNOWSKY'S NOTES

amount, day by day, reached considerable sums.

Foolish Thing for Germany.

"Immediately after the Vienna ultimatum to Serbia the German Government issued declarations to the effect that Austria-Hungary had acted all alone, without Germany's previous knowledge. When one attempted to reconcile these declarations with the events mentioned above, the only possible explanation was that the Kaiser had tied himself down without inviting the co-operation of his Government, and that in the conversations with the Austrians, the Germans took care not to agree upon the text of the ultimatum. For I have already shown that the contents of the ultimatum were pretty accurately known in Germany. Herr Krupp von Bohlen, with whom I spoke about these German declarations—which, at any rate, in their effect, were lies—was also by no means edified. For, as he said, Germany ought not, in such a tremendous affair, to have given a blank check to a state like Austria; and it was the duty of the leading statesmen to demand, both of the Kaiser and of our allies, that the Austrian claims and the ultimatum to Serbia should be discussed in minute detail and definitely decided upon, and also that we should decide upon the precise program of our further proceedings. He said that, whatever point of view one took, we ought not to give ourselves into the hands of the Austrians and expose ourselves to eventualities which had not been reckoned out in advance. One ought to have connected appropriate conditions with our obligations. In short, Herr von Bohlen regarded the German denial of previous knowledge, if there was any trace of truth in it, as an offense against the elementary principles of diplomacy; and he told me that he intended to speak in this sense to Herr von Jagow, then Foreign Secretary, who was a special friend of his.

"As a result of this conversation Herr von Bohlen told me that Herr von Jagow stuck firmly to his assertion that he had nothing to do with the text of the Austro-Hungarian ultimatum, and that Germany had never made any such demands. In reply to the objection that this was inconceivable, Herr von Jagow replied that he, as a diplomatist, had naturally thought of making such a demand. When, however, Herr von Jagow was occupying himself with the matter and was called in, the Kaiser had so committed himself that it was too late for any procedure not according to diplomatic custom and there was nothing more to be done. The situation was such that it would have been impossible to intervene with drafting proposals. In the end, he (Jagow) had thought that noninterference would have its advantages—namely, the good impression which could be made in Petersburg and Paris with the German declaration that Germany had not co-operated in the preparation of the Vienna ultimatum."

Herr Muhlon authorized the Humanite, a Paris Socialist paper, through its Swiss correspondent, to publish the following remarkable letter, which he addressed from Berne, on May 7, 1917, to Herr von Bethmann Hollweg, then Imperial Chancellor:

Resigned From Works.

"However great the number and weight of the mistakes accumulated on the German side since the beginning of the war, I nevertheless persisted for a long time in the belief that a belated foresight would at last dawn upon the minds of our directors. It was with this hope that I put myself to a certain extent at your disposal, in order to collaborate with you in Rumania, and that I indicated to you that I was disposed to help in Switzerland, where I am living at present, if the object of our efforts was to be rapproachment of the enemy parties. That I was, and that I remain, hostile to any activity other than reconciliation and restoration I proved soon after the opening of hostilities by the definite resignation of my directorship of Krupps' works.

"But since the first days of 1917 I have abandoned all hope as regards the present directors of Germany. Our offer of peace without indication of our war aims, the accentuation of the submarine war, the deportations of Belgians, the systematic destruction in France, and the torpedoing of English hospital ships have so degraded the governors of the German empire that I am profoundly convinced that they are disqualified forever for the elaboration and conclusion of a sincere and just agreement. The personalities may change, but they cannot remain the representatives of the German cause.

Cannot Repair Crimes.

"The German people will not be able to repair the grievous crimes committed against its own present and future, and against that of Europe and the whole human race until it is represented by different men with a different mentality. To tell the truth, it is mere justice that its reputation throughout the whole world is as bad as it is. The triumph of its methods—the methods by which it has hitherto conducted the war, both militarily and politically—would constitute a defeat for the ideas and the supreme hopes of mankind. One has only to imagine that a people exhausted, demoralized, or hating violence, should consent to a peace with a Government which has conducted such a war, in order to understand how the general level and the chances of life of the peoples would remain black and deceptive.

"As a man and as a German who desires nothing but the welfare of the deceived and tortured German people, I turn away definitely from the present representatives of the German regime. And I have only one wish—that all independent men may do the same and that many Germans may understand and act.

"In view of the fact that it is impossible for me at present to make any manifestation before German public opinion, I have thought it to be my absolute duty to inform your excellency of my point of view."

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF BRITISH ARMY RETREATS AGAIN

on any considerable front, if they should reach the line of Aire-St. Pol-Doullens, the British would have to abandon all of France north of the Somme, and their evacuation would be difficult in the extreme and might bring disaster.

Meantime, the German is seeking to produce just this result. He has temporarily abandoned the great attack, although probably only temporarily. He is industriously undermining and breaking down the few remaining anchorages of that British line which he assailed on March 21. He cannot get forward any further before Amiens or Hazebrouck until this is done. Kemmel, Notre Dame de Vimy, there are the chief pillars of the old line south of Ypres and north of Arras, and when these are gone, when a general withdrawal to the Dunkirk-St. Omer-St. Pol-Doullens line is inevitable, and this is the last line; when the Germans reach and threaten this, if they do, a retirement south of the Somme is assured.

Not Decisive German Success

But supposing for the nonce that the British have to retire behind the Somme, this will not mean that the Germans have won the war or even that decisive success which alone can repay them for their sacrifices. It is true that the loss of Dunkirk, Calais, and Boulogne will gravely handicap British transport, for these are three very important bases and at Calais the British have erected vast industrial establishments to avoid channel transport. But Havre and Rouen remain more important, if less convenient, British bases, and there are other ports south of the Seine which can easily be used.

Nor will the evacuation of this region of France surrender anything vital to French existence. It would be a bitter blow; it would mean the evacuation of a rich and beautiful country; it would mean the abandonment of all the remaining fragments of the Lens coal districts; but it would not mean the surrender of any vast territory, 3000 or 4000 square miles would be the extent and it would mean that the allies not alone shortened their lines, but took position on a front on which they would not be exposed to the great dangers incident to the proximity of the present front to the channel.

For the French the loss of these remaining portions of Flanders, Artois, Picardy would be a bitter blow; for the British the arrival of the Kaiser at the channel and the subsequent arrival of the projectiles fired by the Kaiser's supergun at Dover would have a real menace. But neither for the French nor for the British would this German progress threaten ruin. It would not bring the German victory he is seeking, it would not bring the end of the war, and the German peace, provided the allied retirement was not attended by any disaster and the moral effect was not sufficiently un-

HAIR OFTEN RUINED BY WASHING WITH SOAP

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF BRITISH ARMY RETREATS AGAIN

favorable as to break French or British morale.

Germany Exhausting Her Reserves.

If the end of the campaign of 1918 saw the German at the channel and the allies behind the Somme, but also the German reserves exhausted by casualties suffered in a long and terrific struggle, the ultimate gain should be for the allies, because America is sending them reserves for next year's campaign and the German has no reserves for next year; he is using his principal and his income. This year he is anticipating the recruiting harvest of several years and sending the extremely youthful into the furnace in the hope of a decision, as Napoleon did in 1813 and 1814.

What counts this years is that the allies shall be able to endure the German tempest, survive the storm and be ready to fight again next year. If we do not have many hundreds of thousands of men in the battle line this year, we shall certainly have more than a million next, and that million will be exactly like a fresh reserve for the allies, who are also making heavy drafts upon their remaining resources in man power.

This fact all the allied leaders recognize. It is not to be supposed that Foch will permit the desolation of more regions of France, will consent, if it can be avoided but his major strategic problem is to avoid disaster until the full force of the German attack is spent, and it is patent that the seeds of disaster are to be discovered in the geographical situation of the British and of the Belgians, with respect of the French armies to the south.

The Strategy of the Allies.

The allies have so far chosen to let the German do the attacking. They contemplate wearing him out by defensive tactics and only then seeking their decisive success. This policy really contemplates waiting until 1919 . It has obvious dangers, dangers revealed when the Germans won their first great success on March 21 and 22, disclosed again in the very considerable success at Armentieres on April 9th and 10th. Neither the advance at the Somme nor at the Lys would be of great importance if it were not for geographical conditions. But these conditions give to relatively small German advances unmistakable values.

We are bound, then, to reckon as possible a general British retirement, and the evacuation of all of France north of the Somme and west of the Oise. We are bound to perceive that if the German is able in the next two months to accomplish as considerable an advance as he did in the first months of his offensive the allies will either have to undertake a counter-offensive of their own or retire out of the Channel regions to escape the possibilities of a major disaster.

Plenty of High Ground Remaining.

Such a retirement, if it comes, will hardly come as a single operation, unless the Amiens joint is actually threatened or even broken. It is far more likely that the British and the Belgians, evicted from the Ypres-Yser front will retire on the Dunkirk-Hazebrouck-Bethune-Arras line and make a stand there, which may hold up the Germans permanently, or it may result merely in a temporary check to German advance. But if the check be temporary, there is still another stand to be looked for, and this stand will be made just where the high ground coming east to the Channel, breaks down in the Flanders Plain, namely on a front before Calais and back of St. Omer, and thence via Bethune to Arras. Once the British and Belgians have drawn their front in thus, the danger of a great disaster will be in the main abolished. They will, to use the figure I employed a moment ago, be getting and nearer to the trunk of the tree and to the place in the limb where the saw is applied.

But in all this it is obvious that the Amiens joint must hold. Foch indicated his appreciation of this fact when, in his first utterance, after he became Commander in Chief, he guaranteed the safety of the city. This was the way this great soldier sought to reassure the allied public and he stook this way, because in his military mind, the value of Amiens was unmistakable.

Americans in Line Here.

Defending the lines just east of Amiens, Foch placed a French General, Fayolle, who commanded a group of French armies at the Somme two years ago, and knows the country. Under him he put, not merely French armies, but the British army which replaced the wreck of Gough's forces. This British force is commanded by Rawlinson. In this group, too, were placed the Americans who were sent up to be brigaded with British and French troops.

Recognizing that Amiens is the critical point in the line, it is also essential to perceive its advatnages. It would be unwise to send the mass of the allied reserve army into the north, even if the situation otherwise required it, because of poor communications and peril of isolation, but the reserves can be stationed south and west of Amiens without any peril, and, while stationed there, they cover the road to Paris. Thus, the defender of Amiens should have no difficulty in getting reserves in unlimited quantities and without any delay.

FEEDING OUR ARMY OF 2,000,000 MEN IS IMMENSE TASK

uges from Heidelberg tuns, puts some tax upon the resourcefulness of its supply officers. The army smokes 115,000 pounds of tobacco and 60,000 cigars as it goes about its daily work. It munches 65,000 cans of candy and requires 26,000 cakes of barber's soap for its morning shave.

Formerly the work of the food purchase was distributed. Depot Quartermasters in various sections of the country bought supplies in conformity with the tone of their localized market area. Soon, however, it became clear that this function must be centralized in Washington under the control of the divisional experts. As a result, the division operates along lines of high efficiency. Its system of records shows constantly the state of supplies at home and abroad, enabling it to follow any commodity from the point of production to the port of embarkation, while the volume of purchase permits direct relation with the manufacturer and the elimination of the middleman. By the application of this central control principle there was saved to the Government in the purchase of rations items needed for the month of April $161,750.59.

This centralized control is also a factor in expeditious action. Not long ago there came from Gen. Pershing a requisition for 24,000,000 rations to be supplied "at once." By the terms "ration," it should be explained is meant the complete food supply of one soldier for one day. Within 24 hours the division had located points of production capable of supplying this huge demand, had placed the orders and was able to report the fulfillment of the requisition under way.

Systems of Purchasing.

While the buying is thus controlled, the actual purchases are not made in Washington. The purchasing depots at various points telegraph to the divisional officers price quotations on supplies, with recommendations as to their acceptance. The division's experts study them in connection with their market reports and confidential lists of prices from the big food industries. Then from the divisional office goes the telegraphed word to the depots to purchase or decline. In the case of supplies in which there exists a shortage, purchase is made in cooperation with the Food Administration.

From the depots the food goes to the various camps and cantonments, where it is issued to the fighting organizations by the Quartermaster in charge. Each company, battery or troop, each separate detachment, operates its own kitchen, with its enlisted cooks, working under a Mess Sergeant. Here the food is prepared for breakfast, dinner and supper.

The wholesomeness of every food article must be assured before it can be placed in the soldier's possession. The army, for instance, dare not risk a single pound of tainted beef. Let that single pound go into the meal of a little group of men on listening post out in No Man's Land. It brings sickness. Sickness means inefficiency. And if those men are inefficient the safety of the whole army, relying on their vigilance, is jeopardized. The army must KNOW that its food is of high quality. Not to know is to gamble with the lives of the men in the trenches and the fate of civilization. The army does not gamble.

The army's system of inspection is thorough and uncompromising. It begins at the source of supply and continues until the food is actually consumed. Every safeguard is employed. In charge is the Inspection Branch of the Subsistence Division, which conducts what might be termed inspection control, rather than field inspection. The functions are comparable, perhaps, with those of the New York office of the Standard Oil or any other widely distributed corporation. It makes sure that the various inspections are always in process and that there is no defect in that process.

Each depot of the Quartermaster Corps is a central subsistence business of its own. The subsistence officers here are held directly responsible for the quality of the goods they receive. But long before the supplies ever reach the depots they have been carefully passed upon by expert inspectors in the packing houses, in the canneries and in other sources of origin. The records at Washington show the capabilities, character and standard of every establishment purveying food to the army. The inspectors know fruits, vegetables, meat and other articles of purchase. The army specifications are clear and exact. They must be met. The inspectors make sure they are met. And the receiving officers at the depots, assuring themselves that there has been no deterioration in shipment, thus make their contribution to that continual inspection which ceases only when the food has ceased to exist.

The Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture, with representatives throughout the country whose duty is to report on conditions in the perishable food markets, gives full help to the army inspection. The Bureau of Chemistry, of the same department, also lends its powerful assistance, carefully examining and analyzing all the foods which come into question. Samples are frequently drawn from shipments, the analysis made and the result placed on file with the inspection branch's central office. Any discrepancy between the original sample and delivery brings prompt action.

Military Baking Companies.

The fresh bread of the army comes from the military bakery companies, whose unique institutions which, with their portable ovens, trundle along, one with each division, turning out crisp, fresh bread by the thousands of loaves, regardless of location, weather conditions, or even German shell fire. Very interesting, very resourceful organizations are these bakery companies. With their ordinary equipment of stoves they have been known to maintain the temperature inside their canvas mixing tents at the proper temperature of 85 degrees when the thermometer outside stood at 10 below.

The organization and administration of these bakery companies comes under the bakery branch, at the head of which is Lieutenant-Colonel Dietrick, a cavalry officer, who first became actively identified with the work when ordered to organize such troops for border service at Fort Sam Houston in 1915. It was the bakery branch and Col. Dietrick which also faced the problem of feeding the hordes of draft men as they trooped into their camps last summer.

The problem was, first, to provide bakery companies necessary to produce the bread for the new army. There were on hand in the United States nine bakery companies with a strength of four officers and about 450 enlisted men. These companies were equipped and there was sufficient equipment in reserve on hand in the depots to supply 12 companies. It was necessary to order at once equipment for 100 new bakery companies, and to use every effort to have about 20 per cent on hand within three months. This was done. It was also necessary to provide for an expansion of these nine bakery companies, with a personnel of 450 men, into 88 bakery companies with a personnel of 8880 enlisted men. This has also been done. In order to accomplish this it was necessary to establish at once schools at which officers and enlisted men could be trained as bakers. These schools were established. To date 170 officers and approximately 9000 enlisted men have been trained and are serving as army bakers.

Training School for Cooks.

Prior to the war the strength of a bakery company was one officer and 61 enlisted men. On account of the increase in the size of a division in our army it was necessary to draft new regulations, increasing the strength of the bakery company to two officers and 101 enlisted men and increasing the equipment from 12 units to 15 units, or 15 ovens. On July 16 the bakery branch secured authority to proceed with the organization of these new bakery companies. On Aug. 20, 30 of the new bakery companies had been organized, equipped and trained and were on hand to produce bread for the National Army and the National Guard.

The second problem was to provide cooks and messing arrangements for the new army and to co-ordinate the work of numerous civilians who desired to provide food and messing facilities for the troops and to start schools for training army cooks.

Prior to July, 1917, there had been four army schools for bakers and cooks, with an average capacity of about 100 students. It was customary for Regular Army organizations to detach men and send them to these schools to be instructed as cooks and bakers. Numerous civilians had volunteered their services to instruct cooks in this manner, but it was decided at once that it would be impracticable to follow out this system of separating cooks from their organizations and sending them elsewhere for instruction. This is apparent when it is considered that 12,000 cooks were required for the National Army alone. It was decided that the only practicable method would be to train the cooks of the army in their own kitchens, and to establish schools at every large camp in order that this might be

Why Gray Hair
Is No Longer Necessary

New, Clean, Easy, Harmless Treatment. First Bottle Gives Satisfaction.

After having been tried and proven successful by hundreds of their customers, leading stores are recommending "Canute Water for Gray Hair" to those who wish the color of their hair restored. Famous-Barr Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co. sell it, and all questions one naturally asks are here plainly answered.

IS IT ABSOLUTELY SAFE TO USE? By all means—yes. You may use Canute Water for Gray Hair without the slightest fear or injury to the hair, scalp or eyes, as it contains none of the injurious elements of the ordinary hair dye, being entirely FREE from acid, sugar of lead, sulphur or coal tar products of any kind—making it harmless to the hair and scalp as ordinary water. It is for external use only.

IS IT A DYE? Positively not. That is just the thing it isn't. Canute Water is a simple and natural method of reviving the youthful color of hair that has turned gray from age, illness or other cause. Proof that Canute Water is not a dye is that it has no numbered shades—the same bottle is good for all shades of hair, while, as the reader knows, dyes are numbered 1, 2 or 3.

HOW IS IT APPLIED? Very easily. Just wet your hair with it and allow to dry in good, fresh air. Nothing hard about that, is there? Apply on hair once daily, and day by day observe the hair becoming darker and darker. And by the time you have finished the first bottle the youthful color of your hair will be restored. It will then remain that way, and simply require a retouching once every week or two as the hair grows.

CAN THE DARKENED COLOR WASH OR RUB OFF? The color will not wash off. Shampoo the hair all you like—you may even use a hot curling iron, as not even that will affect the color. On the contrary, the more you shampoo, the hair the softer and fluffier the hair will become. Remember, it will only be necessary to use Canute Water for Gray Hair afterward once every week or two on the new hair that grows.

Believe us, after a week you'll thank yourself for having tried it. Sold at the above-mentioned stores for $1.00 a bottle or by mail direct. Friedman Canute Co., 27 East 22d St., New York City.—ADVERTISEMENT.

done. It was considered from the first that if the cooks for the army could be trained while under military supervision and control, more satisfactory results would be obtained.

The vital problem was to feed the new National Army, which was assembled in unorganized masses at the 16 National Army camps, and which, for this reason, was not provided with officers, mess Sergeants and cooks, as the Regular Army and National Guard were provided. Authority was finally secured on July 23 to proceed with the organization of a force sufficient to look after the messing arrangements and cooking for the new National Army.

Plans had already been formed prior to this, and five Regular Army officers, all cavalry officers, who had formerly been trained in the School for Bakers and Cooks at Fort Riley, Kan., were prevailed upon to join in this work. These officers were assigned, one each in the five territorial departments, and 16 of the most competent noncommissioned officers, who had graduated from the Army Schools for Bakers and Cooks or who had been on duty at these schools, were sent to these officers to be trained in the administration and organization work of new schools. These men were commissioned Captains about Aug. 10, and one of them was on hand Aug. 15 at each of the 16 National Army cantonments, prepared to proceed with the organization of a School for Bakers at each of these camps.

Meanwhile, by transfers from organizations of the Regular Army and by the utilization of the enlisted personnel of the four Regular Army Schools for Bakers and Cooks, an average of 12 competent graduate mess sergeants was secured for each National Army cantonment, or approximately one for each regiment of the new army. Twelve officers, graduates of the first training camp, were ordered to each of these National Army cantonments to act as regimental mess officers, and reported Aug. 20 for instruction in their new duties.

Civilian cooks were hired at the rate of one to each kitchen in each cantonment and assembled on Aug. 25. The officers and cooks were all given a preliminary course of training in mess management and the system of accounting for the army ration before Sept. 1.

It is well to acknowledge the hearty co-operation and assistance of a committee of hotel men throughout the country, who assisted in hiring the 4000 cooks necessary for the National Army, during the period from July 20 to Aug. 15. This association was so organized that one of the hotel men took charge of each cantonment as chairman of the committee and provided the necessary cooks for that cantonment.

A Sample Day's Ration.

Never at any time while the drafted men were assembling—and of course they reached their camps at all hours of the day and night—were the kitchens unprepared or unready to serve a hot meal. Not since America started to go to war has the commissariat of the army broken down. The soldier, with his issue ration varied and augmented through use of the cash saving which the Government allows him when he does not draw the full value of his allotted food, lives as well as or better than the average civilian.

Here is the sample day's menu—not a special day's menu, but representative of such meals as are regularly provided:

Breakfast — Oatmeal, and milk, fried liver and bacon, onions and gravy, fried potatoes, coffee, bread.

Dinner — Vegetable soup, roast beef and gravy, mashed potatoes, stewed tomatoes, peach cobbler, bread.

Supper—Beef, baked potatoes, rice pudding, tea, bread.

Senator James Wadsworth of New York rose recently in the Chamber of the upper house to say:

"Another thing we ought to remember at this time is that the American Army has been fed as well, if not better, than any other army on the face of the earth. * * * It is one of the things in which foresight and organizing ability were shown, and we ought to be grateful for it, and I am glad to pay my tribute to the officers and men who accomplished that great feat."

KOREAN WOMEN GAIN RIGHTS

No Longer Slaves of Husbands and Are Engaging in Industry.

SEOUL, Korea., February 28 (By A. P.).—Korean women are no longer slaves of their husbands as in former days, but are ready to assert their rights. Many of them no longer depend on their husbands for support as of old, but try to obtain their own living by engaging in various branches of industry. Some of the younger women have gone to Japan of late to work in factories, and whenever invitations are issued by factories in large cities such as Seoul and Pyongyang for girls or women, the applications invariably exceed the number required. There is no doubt that this is largely due to the growing economic pressure felt by the Korean people, but it is also partly due to the sense of independence that their women-folk now entertain.

The time does not seem to be remote when the Korean women will be as independent as their Japanese sisters.

WILL SING ANTHEMS OF ALLIES

Musical Program at Grace M. E. Church to Be in Original Tongues.

A special musical program, consisting of the national anthems of all the allied nations, sung in their original tongues, will be given tonight at Grace M. E. Church, Skinker and Waterman avenues.

A feature will be a new Jewish hymn, "Shir Hag'uloh" ("The Song of Deliverance"), composed by Pinchos Jassinowsky, a graduate of the Petrograd Conservatory, who has recently settled in St. Louis. Jassinowsky, who is also a singer, will give the hymn in Hebrew. The text was written by Dr. J. Blaustein, a teacher in the New York public schools. Jean Muster will talk of his 14 months' experience on the battle front in Europe.

Ruling on Sale of Dried Fruit.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Contracts for the sale of dried peaches, apples, prunes or raisins from new crop fruits cannot be made before June 1 under a ruling today by the Food Administration. The administration originally ruled that dried fruits could be sold by May 1 of the year in which the crop is produced. The change was made to allow the various interests affected voluntarily to agree upon a reasonable basis on which business could be done, protecting the producers, manufacturers and consumers.

Filipino Girls Plant Gardens.

MANILA, Philippine Islands, May 11.—Girl students of the University of the Philippines, following the example set by the boys last year, are now spending their afternoons after classes in planting and cultivating gardens laid out in various unused portions of the college campus. Their principal interest is in their vegetable gardens, but they are also laying out flower gardens and ornamental hedges which promise to make the "girls' corner" the most attractive spot on the campus.

The method which the Treasury will encourage is intended to standardize interest payment on converted bonds.

A Woman's Capital
Just as you turn to your wife to organize your home, so your wife turns to you to conserve capital and make it productive.
Most women, during their husband's or father's life-time, give little or no thought to the management of capital. Then suddenly they find themselves with capital on their hands.
Consider how much better it would be if you would establish a trust by your will, administered by a trustee.
And how admirably such a trust would work if this responsible company were named as Trustee and the life-long training of its officers were used to invest and manage your capital.
Any of the officers below will be glad to discuss this matter with you confidentially and without charge.

WILL TAKE CENSUS OF MOTOR TRUCKS IN MISSOURI

Measure Is Precautionary in Case of War Need—Use of Trucks in St. Louis Growing at Disproporionate Rate.

An important recognition of the truck as indispensible for both commercial and war-time activities has been given by the National Council of Defense. The council has made requests of all State councils, and particularly of the Missouri State Council of Defense, through Secretary W. F. Saunders, that a census of the motor trucks of the tSate be taken with a view to possible mobilization of the trucks of the various States in case of their need for war purposes.

This wold not mean that the trucks would be commandeered, but that in case of sudden emergency they would be used locally for transportation to and from railroad stations of war material and troops. It is probable that the local Automobile Dealers' Associtaion will be enlisted in this work and one of its officials made mobilization officer.

The use o motor trucks in St. Louis has grown in the past six months to a degree that has not been reached by any other city in the country. In a comparatively short time the horse-drawn vehicle will be a rarity on the streets of St. Louis.

The heads of big businesses and their service managers are fast learning that a well-driven motor truck will do from three to four times the work of a horse-drawn vehicle and at less expense.

They have also learned that the upkeep is less, particularly since horse feed is so high in price, and they have learned that although the truck may get sick at 5 o'clock in the evening tat the service stations of the various truck agencies can, in nearly every instance, have it ready for the road by 8 o'clock next morning.

Even where, through an accident, the damage to the tduck has been severe, it is never fatal. A truck never dies. A horse's broken leg canont be replaced, but thetruck's broken axle can be replaced in less than two hours.

Recently Edward Schwartz of East St. Louis was driving a Garford truck across the Big Four tracks in East St. Louis when it was struck by a Big Four train. The truck was knocked 50 feet by the train, but as soon as the driver had recovered his wits and his equillibrium, he took the wheel and drove it away. The damage was slight.

The plinciple reason for this was that all trucks are now being built in the most substantial manner possible, and they withstand the hardest usage, even though that usage cometimes amounts to an attemp to dislocate a railroad engine.

MARIE DRESSLER RIDES IN THE BIDDLE CAR.

LOOKS LIKE SOLID SILVER

The all-aluminum Biddle car has been used in St. Louis for the past four weeks through the courtesy of the Biddle Motor Sales Co. of Missouri in the Liberty Bond drive. A photograph was taken of the car with Marie Dressler and her party, with Manager McMyler of the Biddle company at the wheel, as they were being transported from one speaking engagement to the other. The car is known as the Battleship Victoria. It was designed for the New York show and exhibited at the Astor Hotel, also at the Chicago Salon, and later at the St. Louis Automobile Show in February.

The car has no paint on it and shows the aluminum in the bodies furnished on all Biddles. In the sunlight it looks like solid silver.

NEW CORD TIRES GET FIERCE ROAD TESTS

The new cord tire which is being offered for the first time by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. is the result of two years' intensive experimentation. As soon as the cord tire promised to become popular the Kelly company immediately began to experiment in cord construction along independent lines and fully a year ago they produced cord tires which were delivering mileage in excess of their well-known fabric tires, but this was not considered sufficient.

It was only after exhaustive tests had been made with 500 cords run on heavy test cars, the lightest of which weighed 5200 pounds, and when the average mileage on the front wheels of these cars was 14,000 miles and the rear wheels had delivered 11,725 miles average, that the company felt it had a cord tire which was worthy of its name. These 500 tires ran over 6,000,000 miles over the worst Ohio roads during the worst winter in recorded weather history. The tests were so severe in some cases that the cars broke down, but still the tires held on.

"On a recent trip to the Akron factory," says C. A. Jessup of the Kelly St. Louis branch house, "I interviewed the factory superintendent and also the designer of this cord tire and endeavored to draw them out as to their personal opinion of these tests. Neither one of these men is inclined to say much about his own achievements, so all I could get out of them was that they were satisfied they had produced a mighty good tire. I therefore decided I would do a little investigating on my own account. As I had to go to Cleveland I concluded that I would ride into that town from Akron on one of the test cars. It just happened that this was the heaviest car, weighing 5400 pounds wihout the driver. I looked at the rear tires before I started and they showed some wear, which in ordinary tires would indicate about 4000 miles. I asked the driver how far they had gone and I was surprised when he told me they had already delivered over 11,000 miles. These cars are equipped with a special instrument called a recordometer, which is attached to the running board of the car, and this instrument shows not only the mileage but the stops and the average speed an hour. Looking at this instrument, I found that the tires had been averaging about 320 miles per day (the cars are run day and night) and very few stops had been made, while the speed was seldom less than 30 miles an hour and had run from that up to 60."

MAY WRITE BILL TO PREVENT JAY WALKING

It is considered certain that the bill recently introduced in the St. Louis Board of Aldermen at the request of George C. Dyer, t orequire a driver's license of every person driving an automobile in the city of St. Louis will be reported unfavorably by the Legislation Committee of the Board of Aldermen. Active work in opposition of the bill was done by practically all of the local automobile organizations.

At a hearing before the Legislation Committee, Thursday afternoon, at the Board of Aldermen, H. C. Barker and Paul J. Fisher appeared for the Automobile Club, F. J. Riefling, Henry C. Menne and Albert Von Hoffman for the Southside Automobile Club, Joseph A. Schlecht, P. H. Brockman and Robert E. Lee for the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association, and E. S. Marvin and W. F. A. Uhlenhaut fo rthe Motor Accessory Trade Association.

All of thes argued vigorously and effectively against the proposed measure, and its only advocate was Dyer. It was shown by those who spoke that police records of various cities show that 90 per cent of automobile accidents were the fault of pedestrians and only 10 per cent due to the carelessness of automobile drivers. It was also indicated that accidents are as apt to occur to the most expert driver as to the neophyte, and it was shown that the licensing of drivers every six months would in no sense tend to lessen accidents.

Chairman Taylor P. Wyrick of the Legislation Committee, and C. E. Udell and R. H. Eilers, other members of the committee, seemed committed to the idea that regulation of pedestrians would be the most practical step to be taken. It is possible that the automobile interests will cause the introduction of a measure which will prohibit jaw walking, crossing streets in the middle of the block, and giving absolute control in the downtown district of foot pedestrians as well as of automobiles to the traffic officers on the corner.

EMPIRE MEETS FAVOR.

Manager Wallace of the Knight Motor Co., 3327 Locust street, has been much gratified by the way country dealers are taking up territory on the Empire car. He has closed several accounts in both Illinois and Missouri on the Empire line and the 4-50 has proved a good seller among the farmers and small town folks. It is a big five-passenger car in a rich golden brown, a handsome and reliable car developing 40 horsepower. The company is also finding the sport model six-cylinder, four-passenger car a seller. The factory reports they are all sold on these unless orders are sent in by May 1.

PACKARD OFFERS $5000 PRIZES TO TRUCK MEN

To promote maximum results in motor truck transportation, the Packard Motor Car Co. offers a total of $5000 in awards to owners and drivers for greatest efficiency in hauling. The awards will be based on certified records of Packard truck operation over a period of three months beginning June 1. All Packard owners and drivers are invited to participate. There will be three awards of $1000 each for owners and three of $500 each, three of $100 each and three of $75 each, nine in all, for drivers.

"In making this announcement," says W. F. Schmitt, the general manager, "our first aim is to give substantial and active assistance to the Council of National Defense. It recently appealed to the country urging more extensive and more efficient use of motor trucks to help existing transportation problems. We believe this test will result in carrying full loads, careful rotuing and proper maintenance of trucks, all important actors in efficiency and the saving of freight cars for Government use.

"Our second aim is to introduce more widely to owners and drivers the national standard truck cost system form, adopted and advocated for general use by the Truck Owners' Conerence, Inc., of Chicago. It has been proved that important economies to owners result from keeping such records; and also that drivers frequently better their wages by putting dwon in black and white the savings they effect for their employers.

"Preparations for the inauguration of the test on June 1 are already completed. Entry blanks, the rules and the standard cost orms are in the hands of all Packard dealers, where they may be obtained any time up to June 1. But I urge every owner and driver to get them at once, study them over and then sit down and figure out what they are going to do to operate more efficiently to get one each of the $1000 and $500 awards.

"Every Packard truck, no matter how old, is invited to enter," continued Mr. Schmitt. "The trucks will be divided into three classes to put the different capacities on an equitable basis. Te one and one-half and two-ton trucks will be in class A, three and four ton trucks in class B and the five and six ton trucks in class C. There will be no competition between classes.

"The award to the winning owners in each class will be $1000. The first awards to the most competent driver in each class will be $500, the second $100 and the third $75."

TO ATTEMPT 8-HOUR RUN KANSAS CITY-ST. LOUIS

An effort will be made Monday to set a new official "elapsed time" record from Kansas City to St. Louis. The official record for the trip between the two Missouri cities has long been a matter of controversy, several fast trips having been reported, but not officially checked. The best unofficial time is reported as 9h., 15m.

The new speed test will be made by E. J. Krause Jr. of Webster Groves, who left St. Louis yesterday in a 1918 Hudson Super-Six speedster, in which he will try for the new record. The car carries full regular equipment, including two spare wire wheels.

Otto Bowman, the manager of the service department of the Hudson-Phillips Motor Car Co. and a former member of the Hudson racing team, accompanied Kranse and will act as driver for the return trip. The return route has not been decided as it is planned to investigate road conditions on the various routes and determine which promises the most speed.

Hal Brace, president of the Kansas City Automobile Club, will check the car out at Kansas City at 5 a. m. Monday, and Paul J. Fisher, secretary of the St. Louis club, will check it in at the Hudson salesroom, Leonard and Lindell Plaza. The tourists plan to make the trip in approximately eight hours and there is reported to be a wager that better time will be made than the fastest train schedules between the two cities which is eight and a half hours.

The road mileage, by the shortest route, is 305 miles, so that an average per hour of 38 miles must be maintained. This means 60 to 70 miles on the good stretches. A strap has been placed across the back seat for the benefit of the two observers who will occupy the rear seat, for Krause does not plan to slow up for any bumps or rough going.

Should the record be lowered it will add another to long string of records held by the Hudson Super-Six for cross-country work. The most notable of these is the transcontinental record of five and a half days. A feature of this was that the car after beinf officially checked in at New York immediately started back to San Francisco and again lowered the former record.

NEW AUTO CLUB PLANS INSURANCE FOR MEMBERS

The recently organized South Side Automobile Club of which H. J. Riefling is president, is making a deal with a local mutual insuranec organization to furnish cheap insurance to its members. The club also is planning for an arrangement with two of the country clubs, where members of the South Side Automobile Club can have associate membership in the country clubs for the summer season. One of these is the Riverview Club. A meeting of the club will be held on a day next week not yet set by the board of directors. About 200 new members have been added to the roster since the last meeting.

TO SELL INTERNATIONAL.

Eugene D. O'Reilly has been appointed an agent for the sale of International motor trucks in St. Louis. Quarters have been secured at 4156 Olive street and arrangements have been completed to give day and night srvice to International truck owners.

The International line, which is the product of the International Harvester Co., is made in several different chassis in size ranging from three-quarters-ton to two-ton capacity. Different wheelbase lengths are provided in each size to accommodate various kinds of work.

O'Reilly was formerly a member of the M. B. O'Reilly Realty Co., and for the past year has been engaged in the motor car business.

35 MASTER TRUCKS SOLD IN ST. LOUIS

"The business firm of today that is not operating trucks has about as much of success as the Kaiser has to dominate the world," was the way Charles B. Hanna, sales manager of the Easton Auto Repair Co., expressed himself as to the future of the motor truck business.

Since Jan. 1 Hanna reports his company as having sold 35 Master trucks, which he represents in this territory. The largest individual deal was with the Missouri Motor Transporation Co. which purchased three two-ton jobs, one 3½-ton size and a two-ton dump body truck.

Hanna returned last week from a visit to the factory at Chicago in company with William Graham and Hurbert Mueller. Each of these men already operate two Master trucks and at the factory each placed an order for a third.

The factory has assured Hanna that there will be no difficulty in getting delivery and has promised shipments each week of four trucks, dividing it between the two and three ton sizes.

POWER

Two-Power-Range Eight

Ready to Romp

An effortless, light-hearted frolic!

That's what the Peerless Eight makes of the ordinary day's work of utility driving.

The soft, easy flow of eighty horsepower makes it a romp.

Would you crawl at a snail's pace behind retarded traffic? You may do so with utter smoothness.

Does the traffic open up? The advantage is yours for you have the "pick-up" to leave the cars about you as though they were stalled.

And the limit of speed for the open streets is a romp for your eighty horsepower.

And you waste not at all.

For all this is done in your "loafing" range of power—on half rations.

Many a lesser powered six—even many a four—would starve on the fuel that carries your Peerless romping through the day's work.

"Loafing" Range

Ready to Race

But not every day is a work day.

With your Peerless you sacrifice none of the holiday joys—you are equally as ready to race as to romp—you have your "sporting" range.

You may master the road whatever the adverse conditions; you may make Time laugh at Distance.

You have only to open your throttle wider to release her double poppets and utterly change the character of her performance.

Gone now the soft flow of eighty horsepower "loafing"—as you reach her "sporting" range there comes a deep growl of brute power, all-conquering.

In her "sporting" range she is as mighty as she was gentle in her "loafing" range.

Let us show you the joy of these startling contrasts in performance—and the practical economy gained without sacrifice.

MICHELIN

Twelve Tire Tests No. 1

This series of twelve tests is designed to take the uncertainty out of tire-buying.

WEIGHT

ONE of the best ways to judge a tire is to weigh it. Of course, weight might be due to many factors that do not improve quality. But once assured that only quality-giving materials are used, weight is an excellent guide to durability.

In selecting tires, therefore, have us weigh the different makes you are considering.

When you make this test you will find an astonishing difference in tires. For instance, five popular non-skids (34 x 4 size) weigh as follows:

Michelin	26 lbs.
Second Tire	25 lbs.
Third Tire	22¼ lbs.
Fourth Tire	22 lbs.
Fifth Tire	21½ lbs.

Considering all non-skids made, Michelin Universals weigh 12 to 15 per cent more than the average, the percentage varying with size of tire.

This extra weight means that you have a right to expect extra mileage from MICHELINS.

PEERLESS CARS ARE BUILT LIKE A BRIDGE

"Now that the motor car has been made thoroughly practical for every business use, automobile engineers are concerned in making many refinements in designs and construction. The Peerless car is particularly noteworthy in this respect," says S. S. Primm of the Park Automobile Co. of St. Louis. "Their engineers have worked tirelessly to get the proper weight distribution and balance of materials with greater strength and lightness. They have borrowed from all engineering principles to accomplish their purpose.

"A notable feature in the construction of the chassis is its bridge design. eFeling that the same principles apply, those of great strength and flexibility, tehy are using the same bracing. Formerly the frame depended for its rigidity upon deep channel-shaped side members. To give these the necessary strength they had to be of fairly heavy construction. This extra weight was elt to be unnecessary by the Peerless engineers and they have been successful in greatly reducing the weight of the frame side members by using a principle familiar to bridge design, the truss.

"This construction permits far greater strength with greatly reduced weight, for the truss rods furnish exceptionally strong bracing throughout. The frame of the motor car when in action is subjected to about the same strains as a bridge, as it is virtually a bridge between the front and back wheels. It must carry all of the weight of the body and passengers and at the same time be both rigid and flexible to uneven road action. The constant play on the frame of usual design is very likely to cause crystallization of the steel, which is not true in the truss design. There is no new principle involved in this type of bracing, as it has been used for a great number o years in bridge building. Its application, however, to the frame of the automobile was first adopted by the Peerless Motor Car Co. to accomplish greater strength with considerably lessened weight."

CONSULTED THE PUBLIC IN OVERLAND BUILDING

From a plant which shipped 465 passenger cars in 1908, the Wllys-Overland Co. has grown in less than 10 years to the second largest automobile manufacturing plant in the United States and is now in a position to materially aid in speeding up the war program.

"When this wonderful growth is taken into consideration," says H. R. Henry of the Overland Automobile Co., local dealer, "it speaks volumes of praise for the far-sighted vision of the officials of the company. For the underlying reason behind this successful development has meant that its product has met the popular demand.

"The policy of the company has been to sense the motor needs of the greatest number of people and build a substantial motor car best adapted to meet them. Many factors are to be considered in forecasting the desires of the motor buying public, but the officials have held unalterably to five main tenets. These being appearance, performance, comfort, service and price.

"The appearance of Overland cars must be neither too exaggerated nor too commonplace. They have all the big car style of design, with plenty of room and good color harmony.

"Their performance is built upon a motor designed for thrifty use of gasoline with ample power, mounted upon a durable and dependable chassis. They must be easy to operate, with narrow turning radius.

"In comfort they must have the easiest riding qualities it is possible to obtain. To make this possible, much thought has been expended upon the cantilever spring suspension and length of wheel base. An important feature is the Overland service found everywhere."

FIVE-TON DENBY HERE.

The first five-ton Denby truck to be received by the Martin Motor Truck Co. reached St. Louis last week. It is of mammoth size, the top of the radiator being slightly over six feet from the ground. The wheelbase is 170 inches, with 143 inches of loading space.

Disc wheels are used both front and rear, with 40x12 rear tires and 36x6 on the front wheel. The frame is of eight-inch pressed channel steel. A special feature is the rear springs, which are 56 inches long and four inches wide, being made up of 28 leaves.

The power plant is a four-cylinder Continetnal motor, 4½x5½, developing 50-horsepower at 1075 R. P. M., and a four-speed transmission is used that gives gear ratios ranging from 72 to 1 and 12 to 1. The weight of the chassis is 3725 pounds. As in all other models, the final application of power is by internal gear.

C. F. Morphew, the Denby dealer from Omaha who was in St. Louis last week, told of a road test he witnessed at the factory in which the five-ton model was loaded wtih seven tons, pulling two three-ton trucks each loaded with 7500 pounds, was taken out over country roads.

NEW TRUCK BUILDERS.

An important announcement in the automobile industry this week is that of the formation of the Power Truck and Tractor Co. of Detroit, Mich., which has just been incorporated for two and a half million dollars. The organization includes a number of well-known men in the truck, tractor and passenger industry,

A well equipped factory has been purchased in Detroit, the heart of the automobile industry.

"The demand for quality motor trucks far exceed the supply" states an officer of the new Corporation. Our company will build a quality 1-ton, 2-ton, 3½-ton and 5-ton model and two tractor models. Standard units of the highest class will be used. Our designers have the quality construction idea paramount in their mind."

LOCAL AUTO TRADE TO HELP WAR BOARD

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Automobile Manufacturers & Dealers' Association Saturday, it was decided to hold a general meeting of the association jointly with members of the Motor Accessory Associtaion, Wednesday evening, May 5. The meeting will be to put into operation the conservation of service so as to guarantee more mechanics for Government and war service. This was inaugurated by the National Automobile Dealers' Association at the suggestion of the War Board.

The directors of the national body will meet in St. Louis May 17 and 18 and will be entertained while here by the local association.

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

EFFICIENCY—that is the watch-word of today. It means speed. It means the elimination of all waste in time and effort. It means the co-relation of brain and muscle in making each minute a productive minute.

If we are to win the Great War, we must introduce this doctrine into every phase of our daily life. As a nation, we must learn to challenge each tick of the clock and insist that it register Action.

In this connection, please remember that the automobile is one of the most efficient Time and Labor saving devices that has ever been developed. It has become the pace-maker of modern progress and to eliminate it would mean to turn back the calendar a quarter of a century.

In every profession and every field of business you will find the motor car performing its work with economy and dispatch.

It carries thousands of executives to and from their offices each day. It permits them to keep appointments on the dot. It multiplies their usefulness and broadens their scope of activities like no other form of transportation.

So, by all means, buy a motor car—but get a good one while you are about it. Look for a manufacturer's reputation rather than four wheels and a painted body. Look for enduring quality—that is all we ask—and you will be led irresistibly to the Paige.

LIBERTY SIX

AS YOU sit at the wheel of a Liberty you will notice the surprising ease of its clutch action. The pedal yields almost to the weight of your foot. Yet it engages a pressure of nearly a ton.

You will find it remarkably easy to steer. You will shift gears at a finger touch, with positive smoothness and flexibility through all speeds.

The Liberty feature of easy driving was perfected by a notable group of engineers, who have helped make other cars world famous.

And because they have deliberately set out to make it so you will quickly sense the difference in the way the Liberty rides and drives.

One Reo touring car and 13 Dort cars were driven from the warehouse of the Kardell Motor Car Co., in St. Louis to Cape Girardeau, Mo., Thursday by Minton & Thompson, dealers there.

The dealers at Paducah, Ky., Jerseyville, Ill., and two other points in Illinois drove Mitchell cars home from the warehouse of the Mitchell Motor Corporation of St. Louis Thursday. The latter company has a force of men now at the Kardell factory at Racine, Wis., to drive cars to St. Louis.

The Automobile Club of St. Louis has made arrangements for a mutual insurance for its members. The club is also putting on a membership drive.

The agency for the St. Louis district for the Mason tire has been taken by the Gerdleman Auto Supply Co.

J. D. Perry Lewis of the Lewis Automobile Co. reports that 18 Chandler Dispatch cars, painted the robins egg blue have been sold in St. Louis since the February Automobile show.

L. N. Isbell, special factory representative of the Knight Tire & Rubber Co., arranged last week with the Scudder-Gale Grocer Co. to distribute the line of Blackstone tires made by the Knight company.

At a meeting of the Fourteenth Ward Welfare Association, May 3, a resolution was passed condemning Board Bill No. 3, requiring every automobile driver to have a license. The resolution was sent to the Board of Aldermen.

I. W. Immasche, formerly of the Stutz and Jordan agencies in St. Louis, has joined the sales force of the Clarence Guenther City Tire Co., local Michelin dealers.

R. F. Fitzgerald, formerly with the Hudson-Phillips Co., has joined the sales force of the Brandle Motors Co., for the sale of Chevrolet cars.

George P. Schulte, formerly with the Motor Truck Sales Co., has been appointed sales manager of the Dearborn Motor Sales Co. by the manager, C. A. Aldrich.

I. G. McNiece, president of the Cadillac Automobile Co., and Arthur G. Rahmberg of the sales force spent several days at the factory this week. McNiece made arrangements to secure a number of open-type Cadillacs in special paint colors.

STUTZ CAR IN NEW HOME

The Supreme Motor Co., which was organized two years ago to take over the distribution of the Stutz line in this territory, is now well established in its new home at 3039 Locust street.

The move which was made shortly after Denmark Donnelly became general manager, gives the company one of the best show rooms on Locust street. The building is 60x140 feet, about one-third of the space being taken as show room, leaving ample space for service.

The display of 1918 models being shown comprise three models; a four-passenger car, a red roadster and a seven-passenger gray touring car.

CADILLAC POPULAR WITH MOVIE MAKERS

"The moving picture players seem quite fond of the Cadillac Eight," said I. G. McNiece, president of the Cadillac Automobile Co. ,yesterday. "Yes, the Lasky Studios out in Hollywood, Cal., houses 22 Cadillacs in one big garage. These cars are used continuously in making the famous Paramount pictures. Many of the motion picture stars have chosen the Cadillac for their personal use, among whom are Mary Pickford, "Fatty" Arbuckle, Julian Eltinge, Douglas Fairbanks, Sidney Drew, Clara Kimball Young, Olga Petrova, Cecil B. De Mille and others. 'Fatty' Arbuckle owns a standard type 57 town limousine. He does not, like many theatrical folks, go in for fancy colors, queer looking tops and freak cars, nothwithstanding his queer antics in the pictures."

MOTORCYCLISTS TO TURN GIPSYS JUNE 22 AND 23

June 22 and 23 are the dates the Federation of American Motorcyclists has set for the 1918 Gypsy Tours.

Last June 22,000 motorcycle riders turned gypsies for two days and took part in the first annual Gypsy Tour.

With the greatly increased interest manifested in motorcycles since the United States entered the war, there is no doubt but that 25,000 to 30,000 riders will participate in the Gypsy Tours this year. It is not necessary to be an F. A. M. member to take part in the Gypsy Tour, and anyone interested in the tour, whether a member or not, can obtain detailed information by communicating with any one of the motorcycle manufacturers or with T. R. Thomas, secretary of the Federation of American Motorcyclists, Akron, O.

GET ACQUAINTED WITH INSTRUCTION BOOK

In the face of the fact that automobile construction is being constantly reduced and that it will soon become much harder to secure cars, it is surprising how many motorists still abuse some of the simplest rules of operation and upkeep, according to P. H. Brockman of the De Luxe Automobile Co., Oldsmobile dealers in this city.

"As a matter of ordinary economy, every man who drives a car," continued Brockman, "should familiarize himself with at least the simpler rules of automobile maintenance. The best way to do this is to get on speaking terms with the instruction book that is supplied with each car."

"The engineers that design any automobile go to a great deal of pains in their experimental work to determine how a car can be made to deliver the very best that is in it."

"For instance, Oldsmobile instruction books state very clearly that certain grades of oil should be used in the transmission and rear axle. Yet cases are constantly brought to our attention in which greases have been used. These units are designed to be lubricated by oil and it is an injustice to the car to use anything else. And so it goes. Every make of car is different—has certain peculiarities of its own—that demand more than a general knowledge of upkeep. The answer is the instruction book."

"Furthermore, any man who is careless in this direction does not realize how much he is missing in the way of smooth operation; or how great chances he may be taking.

"But the main thing to consider now is that it is almost criminal wastefulness to neglect to give a car the best treatment possible."

for the best examples of Truck Operating Efficiency

Attention is called to the following announcement recently made by the Council of National Defense:

> "The Council of National Defense has given its formal approval to all measures designed to facilitate the use of the motor truck in transportation wherever it can be utilized. It is urging all communities as far as possible to adapt the motor truck to their local needs and encourage its use in any way to help existing transportation problems."

To promote maximum results in motor transportation, the Packard Motor Car Company offers a total of $5,000 in awards to owners and drivers for greatest efficiency in hauling. The awards will be based on certified records of Packard truck operation over a period of three months, beginning June 1. Best results are obtained through full loads, careful routing and proper maintenance of the trucks. To win the awards records must be kept in accordance with the National Standard Truck Cost System. Transportation experts not connected with the Packard organization will be the judges. Full particulars will be furnished by us or any Packard dealer. Every Packard truck owner and driver is invited to compete for the awards.

EFFICIENT HAULING is now a patriotic duty. It will release railway cars for government use.

THE 1918 BLUE BOOK INCLUDES ARMY ROADS

That good roads development had a great impetus during 1917 is evident from statement by the data department o the Automobile Blue Book, whoise experts compiled the road data for the 1918 volumes, now ready for the motor tourist.

New roads, the reconstruction of old ones an dthe reclamation of many others that formerly were impassable compelled the redrafting of 167,903 miles of roads for the new Blue Books.

The magnitude of the vast improvement on these roads is better understood when it is brought to mind that affiliation of Federal and State governments was responsible for the expenditure of almost $120,000,000 or highways betterment last year. Besides this, the establishment of many National Army and National Guard cantonments was followed almost immediately by the construction of additional hundreds of new highways direct to the camps.

Special routes to all of the cantonments have been included in the new volumes. The logging of these roads was in most cases made from cities nearest to which the camps are located, so that the tourist who plans to visit any of them need only take his Blue Book way to the large city near the cantonment to find in the same volume detailed guidance to the camp which has his particular interest.

The new books total in excess of 415,000 miles of minute roads data, charts and maps. That graphic detail which tells the motorist at what speedometer mileage he should turn right, cross railroad, pass stone church on left or continue straightaway past yellow schoolhouse is more informative than even the previous intensive effort of these pathfinders has made it.

Points of interest notes have been increased threefold. Whether local beauty, historic interest or sports will induce his spending any considerable part of his time in a town may readily be learned by the motorist long before he starts on tour by reference to this department, which is more comprehensive than ever. These notes are so keyed that in each instance they are on the same page as that on which the route through a town is given.

The maps have been completely revised. Hundreds of new ones have been added and besides the redraftings of old ones, most of them have been enlarged, new detail added and larger area covered.

Head notes are a feature. They summarize in short paragraphs the kind of road, how much of it is traveled, nature of the country, whether hilly, mountainous or level, and whichsections are difficult or impassable. They tell the motorist at a glance what the trip will probably hold in riding comfort and fuel expense, whether he will have boulevard or difficult country road to traverse.

ENLISTS CAR DRIVERS BY UNIQUE METHOD

Use of freight cars almost exclusively for shipment of food, coal, munotions etc., has made it necessary for automobile dealers to adopt a system of driving a great many cars from the various factories to their home cities. This, in turn, has necessitated the finding of drivers, sometimes in large numbers.

A dealer in Savannah, Ga., recently had occasion to drive a considerable number of cars from the factory in Detroit to Savannah. He let it be known to a friend or two that he would pay a man $75 to go to Detroit and drive an automobile to Savannah, the driver to bear whatever expense he contracted over and above $75. The offer got around; the newspapers printed it, and the dealer was overwhelmed with acceptances.

The men who finally were selected to make up the driving party included a college student, whose father took him out of school to make the trip, several grocers, the City Court Sheriff, a wholesale grain dealer, a commission merchant, an insurance man, a lumber dealer, a physician and several mechanics.

The party of 34—several of the men being accompanied by their wives—started away from Detroit in 17 Dodge Bros.' motor cars.

EVERY FELLOW HAS MOST URGENT REASON

"The most interesting thing about the retail automobile situation is not the exceptional demand for cars, but the reasons given for that demand," says J. C. Kardell, Dort distributor. "Nearly every customer mentions some highly useful purpose for his anxiety to obtain early delivery. In many instances it is direct activities in connection with the war. In others, the desire to immediately increase facilities to carry on his regular business.

"Then, too, the opening of the baseball season, following closely the renewed activity of the sprinkling cart and lawn mower, focuses man's thought upon the necessity of action in the matter of that new car. This is a psychological certainty every year."

TO SELL IMPERIAL LINE.

A contract for five years has been entered into between the Bittle Leftwitch Co. and the Imperial Oil Co. of St. Louis whereby the Bittel-Leftwich Co. will handle the greases and oil products of the Imperial Oil Co. at its various service stations. As part of this, a decarbonizing service will be installed at the stations at Grand and Lindell avenues, Kingshighway and Delmar and Webster Groves. This will include the oxy-acetylene burning of carbon from cylinders of cars owned by users of the oils and greases.

The Imperial Oil Co. will move its ofices into a new building at 1907 Locust street, which is being built for the company, about June 1.

SELLS TIRES ON NEW PLAN

The St. Louis Tire & Rubber Co., 3024 Locust street, is offering automobile tires under a new plan. It is connected wtih a co-operative system of 60 stores, giving an enormous buying power, and has contracts with nearly all of the large tire companies for surplus stock, which gives it at all times a wide range of selection in tires. These tires are being sold by this company on its personal guarantee of 3500 miles of service. Phillip Reinsberg is president and manager of the company, who has recently come from Chicago.

TESTS THAT MAKE OR BREAK A NEW CAR

"A test on a speedway by a specially prepared car driven by a veteran race driver certainly does not test the kind of a car that a purchaser buys," says L. J. Ollier, vice-president and director of sales of the Studebaker Corporation, in discussing the value of methods used by automobile makers in the testing out of new models, with Edward Weber of the Weber Automobile Co. of St. Louis.

"But," continued Mr. Ollier, "there is not the slightest doubt as to the value of genuine road tests under conditions that approximate those under which a car would be driven during its life in an actual owner's hands. Most any car makes a gaad appearance when it is new—most any car can be specielly built and tuned to make an enviable race trac krecord—but it is in the test of actual performance that an automobile proves up.

"No more convincing illustration could be cited to prove the value of factory road-tests than the amazing performance of the three new Series 19 Studebaker cars. No motor cars, to my knowledge, have ever been subjected to such downright abuse and punishment. Surely never has an owner, no matter where he might live or tour, ever asked his car to do as much.

"After months of study on the plans for our new cars, in which each of our own highly trained engineers participated, together with some of the ablest men in the industry, we felt sure that nothing has been left undone that would contribute to the mechanical perfection of what we know now to be the last word in motor car construction.

DROVE USED CARS HOME

W. J. Lovett of the St. Elmo (Ill.) Auto Supply Co. in St. Louis, Thursday, purchased and drove home several good used cars, purchased through Charles A. White of the used car department of the Hudson Phillips Motor Car Co. He closed the agency for the Kelsey "Streamline Body" for Ford cars with the Wielandy-Reller Auto Equipment Co. for 12 Innilois counties, also for the Hassler Shock Absorber and for Evide batetries and Columbia ires.

GIRL DESCRIBES TOURING ADVANTAGES

The splendid record of an Overland light four touring car on a three-State tour has been reported to the factory by a 14-year-old girl in a letter that, from the standpoint of composition and concise statement of fact, would do credit to a much older and experienced writer.

The letter was written by Eva Fisher, daughter of R. E. Fisher of Carlton, Tex., who made the trip with her parents.

In part she writes: "On this trip through West Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, we traveled 1895 miles. We made the tour in an Overland light four, with a two-wheel trailer attached. The trailer and contents weighed 920 pounds. The car and contents weighes 3117 pounds—a total weight of 4037 pounds.

"On the entire trip we used 115 gallons of gasoline, an average of 17 miles to the gallon.

"We were gone 31 days. The most important towns we visited were Dublin, Comanche, Brownwood, Cleman, Ballinger, San Angelo, Fort Stockton, Alpine, Sierra Blanca, El Paso, Tex., Deming and Lordsburg, N. M., and Duncan, Ariz.

"We had all kinds of roads—sand, rocks and chugholes and mud by the wholesale. We ha dthe heaviest mud this side of Deming, N. M., in the lower Rio Grande valley. We pulled through this mud with chains and didn't stick. In this same mud we saw cars pulled out by Government trucks, although our car loaded, went through unassisted.

"The only repair we had on the entire trip was one new fan belt. If we had possessed a needle and thread we could have mended the old one."

NATIONAL SHIPPING CLERK IS NEEDED

Millions of cubic feet of space will be saved in the ships carrying supplies to Europe if suggestions made to the Government by officials of the Olympian Motors Co. of Pontiac, Mich., are adopted.

According to a plan submitted to the War Department by Fred K. Parke, president of the Olympian Co., hundreds of tons of munitions and various articles necessary to the maintenance and comfort of the soldiers abroad can be packed in space which is now going to waste.

Mr. Parke pointed out that in packing munitions being manufactured by the Olympian Co., only 2½ cubic feet were occupied in a box containing seven cubic feet, because of the irregular shape of the article. Many articles could be packed in the waste space, such as repair parts for airplanes and motor trucks, comfort kits for soldiers, Red Cross knitted goods, bandages and other hospital supplies, says Mr. Parke.

It was suggested to the Government that there is an enormous amount of waste space in shipping such things as wagons, trucks, automobiles, tractors and guns, which could be utilized by packing in between with small things. Newspapers, socks, shirts, candy, tobacco, magazines, books and a hundred other things could be packed in the wastet space beween large, irregular pieces instead of being boxed or crated and shipped separately, Mr. Parke told War Department officials.

WESTCOTT PRICE UP; IN EFFECT MONDAY

On May 5 the price of Westcott touring cars will advance $150, and on others the increase will be $100. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday through the Brandle Motors Co., St. Louis distributer of the Westcott.

In making known the fact of the impending raise, the Brandle company sales manager, William King, stated that, in view of the high character of the units which have been belnded into the car, giving it unusual popularity with the discriminating car user, it was surprising that the hgher price had been so long in coming.

"With delays of from 30 to 60 days in the delivery of new model Westcotts, the Brandle company is in a strong position to satisfy demand for the Westcotts, having taken in quite a number of all models of these cars during the past winter in anticipation of the raise of price," King stated.

"Only a limited number of the cars thus acquired remain with us, however, and these, until May 6, will be promptly delivered at the present prices, $2020 for the touring car in St. Louis, freight and war tax paid, and $1970 for the touring of chummy roadster, freight and war tax paid. Within the past two weeks several sales of Westcotts have been made by us, in the country as well as the city."

A Westcott chummy roadster was driven from St. Louis to Joplin last Sunday, for entry in the automobile show there, and arrived in perfect shape.

AUTO MAKERS TAKE NOTHING FOR GRANTED

The astonishing thing about a good modern automobile is the way it stands up and gives service under every possible road condition in every part of the world. Rough roads, hills, mud, sand, only seem to bring out the car's inbuilt stamina. But, to the owner who sits complacently behind the wheel, free from the worry of frequent mechanical difficulties, there is seldom a thought as to what is really back of the car's goodness.

Yet this quality does not just happen—there is a reason for it.

Automobile manufacturers take nothing for granted. That is, those recognized leaders who have created and consistently maintained a reputation for quality, accept no one's so-so when it comes to the materials that enter into the construction of their cars. They build longevity and service into their cars by making sure in advance.

Some sage has said that the training of a child should begin with its grandparents. Automobile engineers believe that the inspection of a car should begin with the raw material.

The Studebaker Corporation, one of the world's largest and best-known manufacturers of automobiles, obtains surety of manufacture partly from exact engineering calculations, partly by scientific tests in wonderful chemical and physical laboratories, and partly by exhaustive road-tests.

Studebaker has invested a large fortune in its laboratories and equipment. The research and chemical laboratories, for instance, occupy nearly 15,000 square feet of floor space and employ a large force of skilled men, each man holding his college or university degree. And here it is interesting to note that these Studebaker laboratories are larger and more completely equipped than any of the universities from which the men employed graduated.

DRIVE-AWAYS SOLVE RAILWAY PROBLEMS

"Judging by the present trend of conditions I am convinced that even the most favorable of summer weather shipping conditions will not release any appreciable amount of railway facilities for the transportation of automobiles."

"This opinion," said Mr. R. L. Emerson, sales manager of the Olds Motor Works, writing to the De Luxe Automobile Co. "is based on a pretty careful study of the conditions which I have had an opportunity to make in practically every large distributing center in the country."

"Of course the railroads suffered severe setbacks during the terrific winter. But though they are now able to greatly increase their carrying capacity, this is largely offset by the movement of war materials which are being completed in steadily increasing volume."

"How very fortunate it is that automobiles can be delivered to their destination under their own power. For if it were not for the daily drive-aways there would be mighty few new cars put into use this season.

"Usually at this time of the year dealers and distributors in all the cities have good stocks of cars on hand that have been received from the factories during the winter. This year no such condition exists—there are practically no accumulated stocks of motor cars."

CHOSE THE OLYMPIAN.

S. Ban Co., an export house of Portland, Ore., who have offices in Japan and China, sent two representatives to the Chicago Automobile Show this year to thoroughly investigate all the motor cars exhibited.

Both investigators were told to work independently at the Chicago show—to examine and look at each model and then make a written report as to what cars, in the medium-priced class they thought, would be best fitted for the use of the people in Japan. The report received by Mr. Shimo, manager of the S. Ban Co.'s export department, from both investigators, showed the first choice of both men was the Olympian chassis, which was exhibited at the Chicago show.

TRUCK DOES THE WORK.

Splendid feats of hauling by motor truck over shell-torn roads in the war zone do not greatly overshadow the performance of motor trucks in the far Western lumber camps.

H. W. Shuman of Madera, Cal., has the contract for hauling freight for the Madera Sugar Pine Mills, which are located 60 miles from Madera, back up in the mountains. This mill is one of the largest on the Pacific coast, producing between 250,000 and 300,000 feet of lumber per day. The company owning the mill operates about 20 miles of logging railroad, with five locomotives, about 15 logging donkey engines, and employs between 700 and 800 men.

When it is understood that absolutely everything that is used by this immense lumber camp, from locomotives to provisions, including men, is hauled 60 miles over mountain roads, some idea of the enormity of the hauling can be obtained.

The lumber is sawn at the mill, then it is clamped together with steel clamps, and sent down a flume 60 miles to Madera, where it is finished, loaded and shipped. These steel clamps are hauled back to the mills by motor trucks and used over again.

Mr. Shuman says that before he installed motor equipment to do this work it took at the beginning of the season from 10 to 12 12-horse teams, and never less than seven at any time of the year. For the past two years he has handled this work with three Federal trucks, but has added two more big Federals because of increased amount of materials necessary for the mills. These trucks are of three and a half ton capactiy.

DON'T CAMOUFLAGE YOUR LICENSE PLATE

Motorists should be careful that the spare tire on the rear of the automobile does not hide a part or all of the number on the license plate, advises the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.

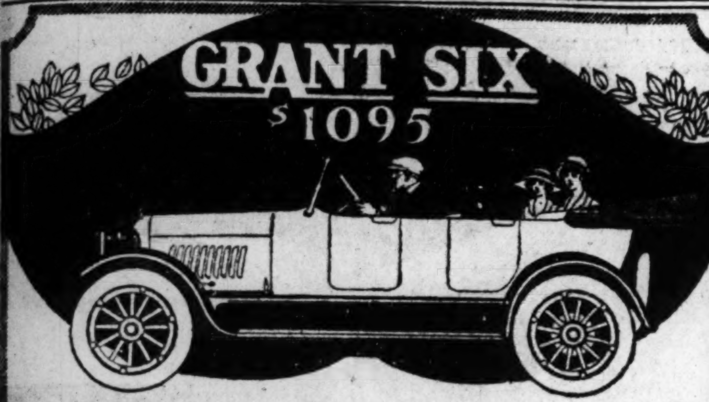
Owners of automobiles should also see that the plate is properly lighted at night. The police in many sections are rigidly enforcing the law and motorists will find that paying a fine is an expensive way to learn of such mistakes. The St. Louis police will shortly begin to make arrests for this.

UNCLE SAM COMES FIRST

"Men most keenly alive in automobile matters today have witnessed a marvelous change in sentiment toward the passenger car," said Frank B. Ansted, president and general manager of the Lexington Motor Co. of Connersville, Ind. "There is no question but that the best champion the automobile business has ever had has been the unprecedented demand upon time and energy which have made the automobile loom up as one of the big factors in winning the war. Men in every walk of life find they have to have automobiles. The farmer, the salesman, the contractor, the business man—all have added duties. Time is of paramount importance and the motor car is essentially a time-making machine first of all.

"This sentiment is reflected at our plant in Connersville where far-sighted dealers and distributers are clamoring for cars. They are patriotically aiding in relieving congestion by driving them through even to far distant points as they realize that the continually increasing requirements on our vast war program must mean a cut in production.

"Conditions of this sort can only mean that someone who waits will be disappointed in delivery. We are going to do our utmost to give the Government everything they need first. This is our plain duty. After that we will then do our best to supply all of the orders for Lexington cars. But it stands to reason that the most forehanded customers will not wait, but will get the cars they need now."



The Car For The Thrifty

PUT a gallon of gasoline into your GRANT SIX and get back 20 miles of travel. Put in a gallon of oil and you may expect and will get perfect lubrication for 900 miles. The tires that come with the car should carry you 7000 miles or more before they wear out.

In buying a GRANT SIX you save $200 to $300 at the start over any other car that will give you equally good service, and you save on fuel, oil and tires every day you run it.

The extremely moderate price and high economy of this car must appeal to everyone who considers thrift a national duty. And most people will agree that the quiet, good taste of the GRANT SIX is wholly in keeping with the spirit of the times.

In mechanical simplicity and refinement the GRANT SIX is far in advance of most cars. Its engineers have kept before them the ideal of the trouble-proof car. You will never hear anything but praise for the GRANT SIX overhead-valve engine, for the cooling, oiling and electrical systems, for the full-floating rear axle. And if you want to know what 46-inch cantilever rear springs mean in the way of riding comfort, ask any GRANT SIX owner.

Owing to reduced output of this new model we advise placing your order at once. Price $1095 f. o. b. Cleveland

A Time for Conservation

Making old things last longer—getting the full use out of everything from shoes to automobiles—is the spirit of the times—the passing of the American people from extravagance to thrift and conservation.

A Big Plant Devoted Exclusively to Renewing Motor Cars

Here in our big shops, we are helping the idea along with the renewing and refinishing of automobiles—an institution unique in character in that we are able completely and skillfully to eliminate the ravages of time and weather. Your car is good for another year. It is its appearance that causes the longing for a new car. A coat of paint, a new top and a touch here and there will work wonders.

Repainting and Refinishing

In our big third floor paint shop, high above the dust and dirt, we paint cars—just a little better: whether it be a simple revarnish job or a "full burn off" affair—at prices that are below the average expectation.

Auto Tops Remade and Recovered

Our second floor is the trim shop where worn and leaky tops are recovered or coated and repaired, Jiffy and door opening curtains made, new curtain lights sewed in and general repairs furnished. Prices lower than elsewhere from the employment of modern ideas and fast workmen.

Upholstery and Seat Covers

Worn upholstery can be repaired or recoated—if not allowed to go too long. A set of seat covers will at all times add a trim, clean appearance to old cars as well as new and costs but little in our modern shops. Investigate this.

Our Body Building Department

A complete wood working and metal shop for the many body repairs that are needed, with experts in each line. Here we build the famous "Biltwell" delivery bodies for Ford cars.

Five Official Service Stations

We are the official St. Louis distributors and have Service Stations on five of the most important parts of cars, where expert mechanics adjust minor difficulties and make such repairs as are required through wear and tear. These are

Houk Wire Wheels

New spokes, hub caps and parts always on hand—table for truing damaged wheels.

Remy Magnetos

Factory trained mechanics in charge with same machinery and stock of parts as at the factory. Fast, quick repairs and adjustments.

TELLS ABOUT A CHRONIC TROUBLE

Mr. John O'Brien, 659 N. 15th St., Philadelphia, writes: "I had been troubled for years with chronic constipation, until my whole system seemed poisoned, and I suffered with headache, languor, depression and general impaired health. I began taking Sulpherb Tablets and got immediate relief, I am, after many months, still regular in habits, and thank you, and hope they will become known to thousands, etc." If your blood is bad, tongue coated and you are constipated, with stomach and bowel irregularity, get a tube of Sulpherb Tablets of your druggist right away. They are made of sulphur, cream of tartar and herbs—so don't accept ordinary "sulphur" tablets.—ADV.

Child Turns $60 Over to Red Cross.

Miss Dorothy Loper, 11 years old, of 4155 Shenandoah avenue, has turned over to the St. Louis chapter of the Red Cross $60, the net proceeds of an entertainment given under her management last Monday night at Strassberger Conservatory.

LOOK AND FEEL CLEAN, SWEET AND FRESH EVERY DAY

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.—ADV.

JANE COWL HERE IN A WAR PLAY TONIGHT

Will Appear at Jefferson in "Lilac Time"—Gertrude Hoffman at Orpheum.

Miss Jane Cowl, the comely and talented young actress who comes to the Jefferson Theater tonight in the war play, "Lilac Time," and who adds to her fine and touching performance as its heroine the distinction of part authorship of the play, has explained that this is an attempt to escape from the lachrymose roles with which she is mostly associated in the public mind.

She has the part of Jeannine Berthelot, a French peasant girl living behind the battle lines, and the story is that of her love for Lieut. Philip Blythe, a young English aviator. There are no scenes of battle, but the atmosphere of the conflict surrounds the action. Many of the characters are British officers and soldiers, and their cheeriness and heroism are vividly portrayed.

Love at the springtime of youth and of the year is the theme, and when Lieut. Blythe sails away in his airplane on a hazardous mission, we are given to understand that he has wooed not wisely but too well. In the original version the play ended with a powerful tragic scene in which Jeannine at the window, with her baby's cap clutched in her hands, hears the news of her lover's death. In the later version this scene, the climax of Miss Cowl's acting, is retained; but the tidings prove false, Lieut. Blythe returns, and makes everything all right with a wedding ring.

Among the other members of the cast are Orme Caldara as Lieut. Blythe; Henry Stephenson as Maj. Halloway; T. J. McGrane as Capt. Standing; and Percy Waram as Capt. Paget.

Blanche Bates Coming.

Next Sunday night Miss Blanche Bates and Holbrook Blinn will present at the Jefferson another war play, "Getting Together." It was written by Maj. Beith (Ian Hay), the author of "The First Hundred Thousand;" J. Hartley Manners, author of "Peg O' My Heart" and other successful plays; and Percival Knight. Several songs were composed for the production by Lieut. Gitz Rice of the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

The American Theater will be closed May 27, the date of the special performance of "Out There," to be given for the Red Cross. The tour of the company includes stops in only 10 cities, with a single performance in each. The play, a tragi-comedy of the war, was written by J. Hartley Manners. In the remarkable cast will be Laurette Taylor, George Arliss, George M. Cohan, James K. Hackett, James T. Powers, Chauncey Olcott, George McFarlane, H. B. Warner, Burr McIntosh, Mrs. Minnie Madden Fiske, Viola Allen, William Elliot and Arnold Daly.

Gertrude Hoffman, the dancer, who on her last appearance here won an acquittal in police court after an inquiry into the alleged superscantiness of her attire, will be the headliner at the Orpheum this week, in an act said to be both artistic and novel. Others on the bill are Kajiyuma, who attempts to carry on two trains of thought simultaneously; Frank McIntyre, the 300-pound comedian; Fannie and Kitty Watson, Frances Kennedy and Johnny Clark and a company.

Melodrama at Victoria.

"Lost Youth," a Yiddish melodrama, which ran 14 weeks recently on New York's East Side, will receive a single performance tomorrow night at the Victoria Theater. In the cast are two famous Yiddish actors, Max Gabel and Miss Jennie Goldstein, supported by Elias Rothstein, Goldie Shapiro, Frances Sincoff, Annie Rothman, Jacob Wexler and others.

The Columbia features three acts—"The Six International Tourists," "The Miniature Revue" and "The Five Funsters." Robinson's military elephants have first place at the Grand; Edmund Hayes and a company will hold forth at the Gayety, and the "Big Revnue of 1918" will be seen at the Standard.

GIVES UP HIS BEER TO BUY BOND

Laborer With Family of Eight Makes $50 Subscription.

Willis Tullock of 1506 South Third street, a laborer earning $17 a week with which he supports a family of eight, subscribed yesterday for a $50 Liberty Bond, telling B. J. Voorhees of 5706A Etzel avenue, who sold him the bond, that to pay for it he would have to give up his bucket of beer each night after work and would be forced to cut down on his smoking.

The incident was related by Voorhees to Norman Stewart, vice president of the Walter L. Flower Co., 312 South Eighth street, declaring the spirit shown by Tullock was the finest he had encountered during his efforts as a bond salesman. Stewart sent Tullock a check for $10 to aid him in paying for the bond.

U. S. Shipmaster Tells How He Was Freed by Wreck From German Raider

Vessel Ran Aground in Danish Waters

Igotz Mendi's Commander Locked His Prisoners in Hold and Sought to Convince Neutral Officials That He Had a Harmless Merchant Ship, but They Guessed His Purpose and Peremptorily Ordered That They Be Released.

THE Post-Dispatch herewith presents the eighth and concluding installment of Capt. Cameron's fascinating story of his eight months as a prisoner on German raider, five of them on the Wolf, while they searched the high seas for undefended allied merchant ships to destroy. Capt. Cameron's own ship, the Beluga, loaded with gasoline, San Francisco to Sidney, was overhauled and sunk by the Wolf near Australia. The Captain and his wife and daughter and the 10 members of his crew were taken prisoner. Later the Captain and his family were transferred to the Igotz Mendi, a captive Spanish ship.

By Capt. J. Stanley Cameron,
Of the Late Merchant Ship "Beluga."

WE ran the blockade between the Faroes and Iceland in fine, clear weather and did not even see any smoke. So I commenced to think that it was quite possible, it being winter the British were not paying much attention to this particular spot and were keeping bases on the Norwegian coast, especially in this district around the Naze at the southern extremity of Norway. On the night of Feb. 18 we received a wireless from Berlin that the Wolf had arrived safely, and on Feb. 19 we picked up the Norwegian coast some 60 miles north of Bergen.

Saw Only Big Ship

From her we proceeded down the coast, bucking a heavy head wind and sea at about five knots per hour, passing inside the light on the island outside of Stavanger and thence down the coast and around the Naze. During this time it was fine and clear weather, and a cruiser could have seen us at 20 miles distance easily, but the only vessels we saw were a Stavanger pilot boat and a Danish passenger vessel bound northward.

We were a disgusted bunch. For myself, I was so sure I was afraid to speak to anybody. Here I had been kidding myself and letting others kid me that when we got this war somebody would surely pick us up. And then to come down this coast in beautiful, clear weather and not even see anything resembling a patrol boat was very disappointing, to say the least.

From here on, all I could see ahead of me was the Gates of Germany and the certainty of spending from one to five years a hungry prisoner in a Teuton detention camp. I would have sold out cheap at this time, believe me.

By this time I had given up all hopes of getting free and had reconciled myself to going to Germany. If it had not been for the family I would have jumped overboard and had a swim for neutral land at some place when we passed fairly close.

The following day, while crossing from Norway to the northern end of Denmark, Jutland, it set in foggy and Lieut. Rose was strutting around with a smile on his mug, saying: "Just the weather I want; made to order. I am all right now."

Ship Runs on a Beach

I didn't argue the point, as I thought he was right. About 3:30 in the afternoon we picked up a fog whistle ahead, of the character we call a "blatter" on the Pacific coast. I was standing on deck, just under the bridge, and Rose spoke to me. I nodded my head toward the signal and asked him what it was, and he said: "Oh, that's the lightship." I thought at the time it was a peculiar character for a lightship, but dismissed the thought, thinking "different ships, different fashions."

Rose told me he had told the British Colonel that this signal was a German torpedo boat, with which he had arranged a meeting and that the Colonel had gone inside to tell the rest of the prisoner "passengers," which would give them all a scare. He also suggested that I should go inside and tell them it was a U-boat and that I recognized the sound of her signal. I laughed and told him I had made so many remarks regarding the blockade that I was afraid to speak to them. Shortly after this I went into the cabin and was standing looking out of the porthole and talking to my wife when I noticed that we had altered our course, by the bearing of the fog signal, and I knew that Rose wanted to pass the lightship close aboard. Suddenly I felt the vessel smell the bottom. I looked at the wife and said: "Holy poker! I thought I felt her smell the bottom." No sooner had I said this than the Igotz Mendi runs slap bang on the beach, about 350 yards off shore and less than half a mile away from the lighthouse.

Would Swim to Freedom

Rose mistaking the lighthouse signal for the lightship's signal was a lucky piece of business for us, because I knew for an absolute certainty when I felt the way of the Igotz Mendi had taken the beach that it would require the assistance of powerful tugs to get her off again.

I guess we all realized just how much this stranding meant to us, and the very nearness of freedom kept everybody quiet and busy with his own thoughts and plans. I know that for one I had decided to get over the side and swim for it, providing the vessel should give any indications of getting off the beach.

Right after the stranding, the weather being foggy, we were allowed on deck. One of the neutral sailors, a Dane named Jensen, identified the spot where we were ashore and gave me the good news that the little town of Skagen was only about two miles distant and that one of the best life-saving crews in Europe was stationed there. In about an hour a lifeboat drew up alongside.

We were all chased inside again. Rose invited the Captain of the lifeboat on board, and took him into the chart room just above the saloon for a drink and a talk. Our lady prisoners immediately commenced playing a game of "button, button, who's got the button?" laughing and talking at the top of their voices, so that this man on top of the saloon would know that there were women on board.

Put on a Crying Act

Also little Nita did a crying act that could be heard, I am sure. Shortly Rose came down with a black scowl on his face and said: "You people can cut out the noise now, as the stranger has gone ashore." Somebody asked Rose why he didn't introduce us to his friend, and Rose answered:

"What do you think I am—a fool?" Nobody went on record with an opinion, so the matter was dropped. In the meantime Lieut. Wolff had gone ashore and had phoned from the lighthouse at Scow Point, where we were ashore, to a salvage company in Skagen, saying that we were a German merchant ship bound from Gergen, Norway, to Kiel, and that we had run ashore in the fog; and that if a tug was sent immediately we could be pulled off easily, but if we were allowed to lie any length of time the ship would bed herself in the sand and it would mean a long delay in getting off.

I understand he offered 25,000 kronen ($5000) for the job. At any rate, the manager of the salvage company ordered his largest tug, the Viking, around, but instructed its captain not to put a line on board until the manager had gone down overland and investigated a little. Lieut. Wolff meatime had returned on board and reported to Rose, who was immensely tickled and told us that about midnight a tug would arrive from "a near-by town" and pull us into deep water, and that by 4 o'clock in the morning, at the latest, we would be on our way to Germany once more.

Talked of Neutrality Laws

This news led to great consternation among us, and some great arguments regarding neutrality laws were carried on. On all the trip the Colonel had been quoting the Geneva convention, until we all concluded that this particular convention was held for the express benefit of the medical officers of the army.

I asked the Colonel if he remembered anything in the Geneva convention regarding the grounding of a belligerent prize on neutral ground. He answered by saying that clause so and so, paragraph so and so, expressly stated that all medical officers should be exempt from—— At this point I butted in and told him to go to hell; there were women and children and other prisoners on board as well as medical officers.

All throughout the trip this man had behaved like a dog in the manger, being the quintessence of egotistical selfishness, and despised by us, one and all. The conclusion of all our argument was that might was right in this war and that the Germans would do just what they liked, providing they could hoodwink the Danish officials.

The manager of the Danish salvage company, on arriving at the lighthouse and talking with the various people there, concluded that perhaps things were not just right with the Igotz Mendi and that he had better get in touch with the Danish naval authorities before doing anything. He called up the commander of the Danish cruiser Diana and stated the case, saying that things didn't appear to be just right.

Investigates the Ship

The commander, a Lieut. Nagoni, getting in touch with the authorities, phoned the manager

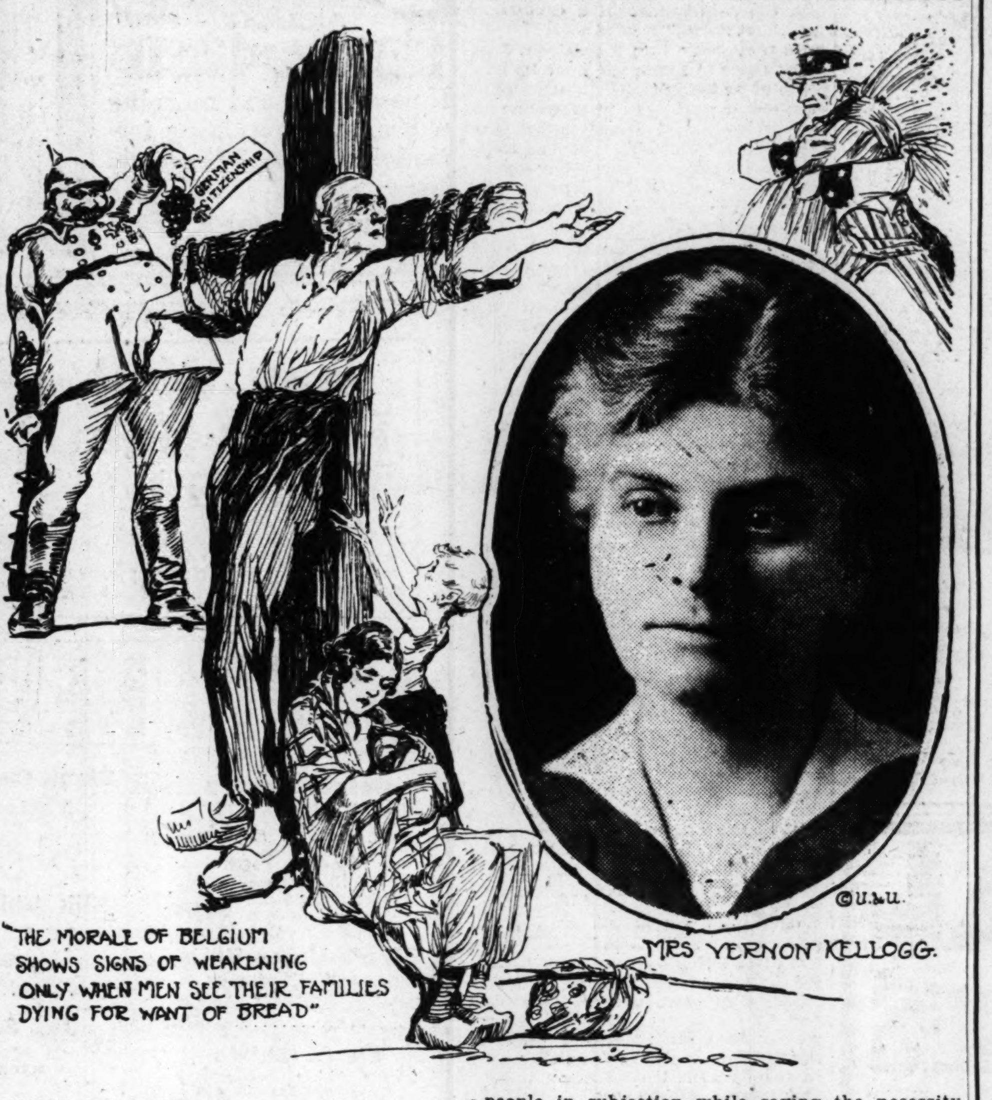
Belgian Fortitude a Lesson to Americans in Making Sacrifices for War, Says Woman Helper



"THE MORALE OF BELGIUM SHOWS SIGNS OF WEAKENING ONLY WHEN MEN SEE THEIR FAMILIES DYING FOR WANT OF BREAD"

©U.&U.

MRS VERNON KELLOGG.

Mrs. Vernon Kellogg Tells Marguerite Martyn of Her Personal Observations of German Ruthlessness Which Has Failed to Break People's Morale—Cardinal Mercier a Tremendous Figure Because He Has Become Merely a Man.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

"IT was the spirit of Belgium which saved us all in the first place. The spirit of Belgians remains unconquered, though the people are imprisoned, isolated, held in subjection under oppression and persecution. The only time a shudder of fear goes through Belgium is when they hear of some man who, watching his family starve before his eyes, gives up to despair, saying: 'I have fought this thing with all my strength for three years. I cannot stand it any longer. I give up. I will go and work in their munition factories or their mines or their fields.' Then, and then only, is it whispered from mouth to mouth, 'Is our morale weakening? Is our spirit breaking?' "

Thus vividly did Mrs. Vernon Kellogg, in private conversation, without the caution she employs as public speaker, present the impression of Belgian courage which she, as an American woman, has had rare opportunity of observing.

She brings a picture of courage. She also pictures how, out of the ashes of devastation, looking far forward, there springs hope of a socially reorganized Belgium, a vision toward which the people yearn and which they will grasp if only they can hold out physically.

Only Women on Commission.

Mrs. Kellogg was the only woman member of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium. Her husband is the author of that fascinating sketch, "Headquarters Nights," which is an intimate view of high German officials with whom his work on the commission brought him in close contact. It also describes the author's resultant conversion as a scientific pacifist and his complete surrender to the belief in more force as the only way of fighting force.

Mrs. Kellogg joined her husband and worked beside him inside that electrified wire inclosure with which the enemy has surrounded the occupied territory of Belgium and out of which not even the elaborate courtesy extended to the commission would permit one of the Commissioners to venture once he had entered there.

The speaker came to St. Louis to address the Advertising Men's Club Thursday evening, with an especial appeal for clothing for the Belgians. Her principal activity is in connection with the Food Administration at Washington.

She does not repeat wild, illogical tales of German atrocities. Some of the stories of dismembered children, outraged girls, crucified infants, which have gained wide circulation, she rather discredits. But she saw the system of terrorization maintained by authority as the perfectly logical and practical means of keeping the people in subjection while saving the necessity of keeping a large army in Belgium.

The worst conditions existed, she admits, in localities where military rules did not permit the Americans to venture. And Mrs. Kellogg tells only of what she saw with her own eyes.

How Germans Terrorize the People.

"I saw so much that was heartbreaking, in long-drawn-out suffering, that any one individual instance would seem not worth mentioning in comparison," she said. "I saw hunger everywhere. I saw men strapped to crosses, saw crowds of them herded in inclosures, where they were made to stand until they dropped of exhaustion, saw them forbidden every trifling liberty, persecuted and oppressed unless they would offer themselves into slavery to Germany. I saw the forcible deportation of women and men. I saw the whole people followed and watched by absurd military regulation. And we detected much insidious propaganda, such as the abetting of the so-called Flemish movement to encourage bad feeling against the Walloons.

"Just the natural sufferings incident to the sweeping away of all industries, to a people so thrifty and industrious and prosperous as the Belgians had been, would seem to have been enough to break the spirit, without recourse to extraordinary means.

Belgium's Militant Cardinal's Powers.

"I do not claim for the Belgians a larger share of virtues than are to be found elsewhere in the human family. There are all kinds of Belgians, good and bad. But the fact remains that there have been few surrenders. Only rarely in cases of absolute insupportable sufferings such as I have mentioned and among stupid, dull peasants of less than average intelligence, was there any weakening.

"Undoubtedly Cardinal Mercier was the greatest spiritual force. That a prince of the church, not just a good priest, but a prince, with all the exaltation the title implies to people trained to the monarchial view, should have come down and worked with and among them as he did, had a tremendous effect.

"Before the war there was strong Socialistic movement in Belgium, and strong labor organization that held forth in civic centers. There was also in opposition a vast class distinction and a strong aristocracy still intrenched in their feudal estates.

War Eliminates Class Distinctions.

"The rush with which the war came swept everybody into its current. Rich and poor, good and bad, mighty and lowly, nobody was untouched by it, nobody escaped. There was accomplished in a trice a union of all classes. There has been brought about a social revolution. In the line of the hungry waiting for charity soup there were not only the poor and the industrial class, but after a time those who had ben rich and the aristocrats as well.

"Reduction to a common need of the bare necessities has created a real basis of sympathy and understanding. The Princess Isabel de Ligne one day was working in one of the reliefs where

Every American Must Get Into Trenches in Spirit, Says Baker

Secretary Warns Against Proxy Fighting

Head of War Department, in Address at Philadelphia, Declares It Is Imperative That All Hands at Home Be Ever on the Shoulders of the Men at the Front, Encouraging Them to Hold the Enemy and That We Sacrifice Without Stint to Keep Up the Morale of the Expeditionary Forces.

THE moral and spiritual issues of the great conflict are most eloquently presented in this passage from the great speech which Secretary of War Newton D. Baker delivered at Liberty Hut in Philadelphia on his return from France. The power of sacrifice in inspiring the soul of a people as evidenced in the demeanor of the French, the English and the Italians is held forth to all Americans as a splendid example. In urging every individual to do his part, the Secretary declares that each should so act that before the war ends he may feel that something he has done got over there and counted for victory.

By SECRETARY OF WAR BAKER.

NOBODY in France has the least doubt as to the character of this war. Nobody, so far as I know, has the least doubt about the way this war is to be prosecuted and won. We are fighting against an adversary who has elected to make force the center of its system of political philosophy and belief—pure, naked force. It is not the philosophy on which you and I or civilized people anywhere would prefer to model their lives; it is not the doctrine upon which a permanent and beautiful civilization can be built. But the British, the French, the Italians, we accept that challenge as it has been made. There is no answer except cold, relentless, adequate force in reply.

They are under the impression on the German side that there is saving grace in mere physical force without morality of purpose. Children in philosophy, they have failed to realize that no accumulation of mere force in the world can ever triumph, for when force is divorced from morality there is something in morals that engenders a counter force adequate to overcome it, so when they start out with the doctrine that by guns and discriminate slaughter of men, women and children—a doctrine essentially hateful may be imposed upon the consciences and liberties of men, they fail to take into their reckoning that the consciences of men cannot be the permanent resting place of such a doctrine. And so there is no doubt as to the outcome; there is no doubt as to the means to the outcome.

Only a Heart Break Can End the War.

We read in the daily newspapers how that writhing line that stretches from the channel to the Alps has bent or twisted here or there, and we hold our breaths and say, "Will the line hold, or will it break?" Of course, it matters which it does, but the ending of this war will not come when a line is broken.

This war cannot end until a people's heart is broken. And those who have looked into the faces of the people of England, of the people of France, of the people of Italy, those who have seen the refugees, that long line, seemingly endless, of men, women and children, leaving the territory about to be occupied by the adversary; old men, old women, young women, little children, as they trailed along that road with such little belongings as could be rescued, perhaps carried in a child's cart, drawn by a dog, while even the babies of the family carried out some little thing equal to their strength, and the old grandmother, preserving the sentiment of the family rooftree to the last, carries perhaps the bird cage in her hands—those who have seen that line as it wended its slow way off, they know not whither, but to be absorbed into the great beating heart of their fellow countrymen—those who have seen that line, and have seen the faces of those people and the faces of the people to whom they went, know that mere force can never break that heart.

Young people sometimes wonder what we older people mean when we say that there is a blessing and sanctification in sacrifice. Ah, if we lived in any of these countries, we would not have to accompany them with any volume of explanation. The people of England, France and Italy are not merely maintaining their army in this war out of the superabundance of their riches.

Sacrifice Must Be Our Watchword.

The civil population is making the sacrifice to maintain those armies; they are not only sending their sons and even their daughters to do such work as they can do about these establishments, but they are keeping their workshops busy, they are drawing the belt tighter; where it is necessary, they are doing with less in order that all the national energy may be concentrated upon the single object, and as one walks through any of those countries he sees written in evidences which cannot be put into words that there is a sanctification about sacrifice; that there is an elevation of spirit which comes from giving that which it costs to give.

We in this country must needs have this spirit. We can't send our army to France to fight for us and go on our way; there is no proxy fighting in this war, and can be none. We must fight with them, fight with our spirits, believe in it, fight with our confidence in the ultimate triumph of the right, fight with our sacrifices of our means in order that these Liberty Bonds may be adequately sold and that the sinews of war may be supplied.

I don't know whether it is true that there is any such thing as cosmic or psychology, or that the composite thought of the world ever gets itself focused and made audible for all to hear, but I do firmly believe true that if we all in the United States intend that the right shall prevail, and will it with our whole beings, there would be a tremendous stimulation and strengthening of the part of our effort which is represented by our army in France. Nobody can afford to take any other view; nobody can afford to escape his share of the blessing of sacrifice; nobody can afford to allow this war to come to an end without feeling that he has been in France at least in spirit; that something he did here got over there and counted for the victory that is to come.

An Inspiring Trench Example.

I heard of an incident which seemed to me very beautiful. In order to expedite and hasten the application of America's military power as an addition to that already there, we are brigading our troops with French and British divisions in order that they may rapidly acquire the actual experience of the front line. A group of our soldiers were in the front line trench for their first training in actual warfare, and a regular army officer whose name I dare not mention, but known, perhaps, to many people here, spent the whole night walking along in that front line trench in the dark, touching men on the shoulder, asking them how they got along, giving them a word of cheer and encouragement. It was their first baptism of actual fire, and they were raided that night and acquitted themselves brilliantly. The next day, when some of their officers were sitting around the mess exchanging experiences and telling frankly how they had felt when, in the loneliness of the advance outpost and in the darkness of a moonless night, they heard the adversary attack, one man spoke up and said:

"Early in the night this officer (naming him) came through the trenches and put his hand on my shoulder and said: 'Captain, how is everything here?' And I told him: 'Well.' And he patted me on the shoulder a couple of times and said: 'Good. Hold them!'." And, he said, "the officer disappeared up the trench, but all night long, when the fight grew fast and furious, and when strange and hitherto unexperienced sensations were crowding thick around, and I was disposed to feel lonely and unfamiliar and to doubt whether I was equal to that responsibility, all night long I could feel that hand on my shoulder and a voice say, 'Hold them.'"

Put Our Hands on Soldiers' Shoulders

We must put our hands on the shoulders of these boys in the trenches. They hear what goes on in America; they hear what we are talking about; they learn whether our hearts are as stout as theirs; they learn to know whether we see the big things which they see, and when opportunities come for America to express her spirit, and she does express it, as she always has in this war, in certain, clear and vigorous and firm, decided tones, they hear it and it is a hand on their shoulder in the dark and moonless nights, and it is the voice of their friends and their country saying to them, "Hold them!"

WRECK RELEASED CAPTIVE CAPTAIN ON GERMAN RAIDER

of the salvage company that he would come right down and investigate.

At about midnight the Diana arrived and Lieut. Nagoni, being a gentleman and also a shrewd and wide-awake officer, took his chief officer on board the Igotz Mendi, telling him that he, the commander, would keep the captain of the Igotz Mendi busy answering questions in the saloon while the chief officer should have a good look around and gather what information he could.

As soon as the Danish commander arrived on board we were all pushed and shoved into our rooms and the doors closed. When Rose started to take Lieut. Nagoni into the chart room above the Lieutenant said:

"Oh, no, Captain, let's go into the saloon; it is not customary to entertain the commander of a cruiser in the chart room."

So they came into the saloon. Just as he came through the door he saw some of us being hustled out of sight—but said nothing. Shortly one of the ladies would shout down the alleyway: "Oh, Mrs. So and So, won't you come to my room for a minute? Don't be frightened." All this for the benefit of the Danish officer in the saloon.

In the meantime the Danish chief officer was wandering around the Igotz Mendi, taking notice of all he saw. While strolling through the bunkers, where our "temporary" warm place was, he noticed Nita's "Kewpie" doll lying where she had dropped it. There were men standing around all through these quarters. Suddenly the officer turned on a man standing there and said:

"You're not a German."

The man answered, saying: "No, sir; I am a Dane."

"Well, what are you doing here?" was the next question.

The Dane, Jensen, told him he was from the Wolf and was working here on the Igotz Mendi, and that there were American and British prisoners on board, including some women and children. After completing his rounds, the Danish officer went on deck and told Lieut. Nagoni that he was ready, and, calling him aside, told him what he had found. Lieut. Nagoni then gave orders to disable the wireless plant and told Rose that the tug could not assist him off the beach and that at the end of 24 hours the vessel would be interned, providing she was still under the German flag. He advised him to land any prisoners he had.

Of course, during all this talk we prisoners knew nothing at all of what was going on and when we saw the Danish officers leaving we came to the conclusion our case was lost, and as there was an armed sentry pacing back and forth in front of the two doors leading from the cabin to the deck, it looked black indeed, and I for one felt very, very disappointed.

Get Ready to Go Ashore.

The strain was beginning to tell on my wife again, so we both lay down on the bunk with our clothes on and listened to Rose on the bridge, ringing the telegraph and working his engines in a vain attempt to get his vessel off the beach.

As I lay there thinking, I could not but pity Rose, realizing how he must have felt. Just imagine what his feelings must have been on realizing that after spending 15 months on a raiding and mine-laying cruise, and always evading his enemies, he had run his vessel aground almost at the gates of Germany, and in place of receiving the Iron Cross, first class, there was the possibility of his facing a courtmartial on his arrival home, providing, of course, he was lucky enough to escape internment.

Thinking this, I fell asleep, and at 6:30 a. m. of Feb. 25 (will I ever forget the date!) I was awakened by one of the German seamen named "Hans" knocking at my door and saying:

"Kapitaine, Kapitaine, wake up and get ready to go ashore in the boats."

"I'll bet we broke all speed records getting on deck. Rose asked me to get into the life-saving boat first, as the Danish crew couldn't speak English, and then I could help the balance as they came down the ladder. I got Juanita firmly on my back and then climbed down into the boat. There was a large sea running, and as the Igotz Mendi was stationary on the bottom and the lifeboat was riding on the seas, one moment it would be even with my feet and in another would be 15 feet below. The idea was to jump at the instant the boat was even with me.

This was easy enough with myself and wife, who understood such things and had had previous experiences, but to the balance of the passengers it was hard to make them let go at the right time, they all having a tendency to hang on until the boat had started to go down again. Then if they should let go the drop was so great that the men in the lifeboat could not hold them when they tried to catch them.

In some cases it was necessary absolutely to tear the passengers off the ladder by main force. However, we finally got all the women, children and men into the boat and started for the beach.

I have seen various life crews at their drill and I spent a season on the beach at Cape Nome, where everything is surf work, but these old Danes, averaging 50 years, were in a class by themselves. On entering the breakers they dropped a kedge anchor with a long line on it and literally slacked the boat through. A gigantic comber, one of those curling ones, just commencing to break, would rush upon us; up, up would go the stern of the boat and just at the instant that I would expect her to go end for end the old "Sinbad" tending the anchor line would check her and in another instant we would rush for the beach, just as the Kanakas ride the surf on a board at Honolulu.

When we finally grounded the men from the beach ran out and seized the women. The balance then ran the boat higher up the beach. The natives must have thought we were a bunch of raving maniacs the way we carried on on getting our feet on good terra firma again. We danced, we shouted and cheered and made damn fools of ourselves generally. But to my mind the situation warranted it.

What a fitting climax to an adventure of this kind—eight months a prisoner on a Teuton raider and to be set free at the very gates of Germany at the eleventh hour and fifty-ninth minute. It is hard to realize just what this meant to us all, possibly the very lives of my wife and kiddie, as I feel sure that they could not have stood much more, and at the best there was from one to a possible five years of being buried alive in a German internment camp and living under the conditions that I now know to exist in that country.

THE END.

ST. LOUIS DRIVER OF AMBULANCE IN ITALY TO RE-ENLIST

Maury F. Jones Writes to Parents That He Will Continue "to Help in This Great Cause."

Mr. and Mrs. Loraine F. Jones, Ivy place, Kirkwood, have received a letter from their son, Maury F. Jones, who is driving an Italian army ambulance, saying that his second enlistment of six months will be up May 24, but that he intends to re-enlist "to help ni this great cause." His first six months' enlistment was in France. Jones is driving an ambulance donated to the Italians by the city of Memphis. He departed from St. Louis June 5 last.

His letter, which is dated "Italy, March 21," is in part as follows:

"A few days ago I had an interesting 24 hours at one of the posts near by. I was fortunate enough to go up the afternoon when a Duke and General were visiting the post. There was music from the military bands, races and other contests by the soldiers, and afterwards the presenting of a number of cash rewards by the Duke for good service among the soldiers. Afterward I had supper at the officers' mess, and then sat around with them till 11, when I had a short run, and was ready for bed when I returned about midnight. Got up in the morning, washed at the pump in the courtyard, had bread and coffee, and shortly afterward made two runs, bringing in on the first run a very seriously wounded Major—had to run the car for a mile or so not so fast as I could have walked.

"My enlistment here is up May 24, and I would, of course, want nothing better than to go home and see you, father and the rest that are dear to me, but now that everyone is taking a part in one way or another, I don't feel that I want to come back, but will stay and help in this great cause, signing up again in the service, unless conditions should change, such as it being taken over by the United States Government, in which case it would mean the duration of the war and probably a year afterward before one could get passage back."

BELGIAN FORTITUDE LESSON TO U. S. IN WAR SACRIFICES

women may earn 60 cents a week to save them from charity soup. She was surrounded by little seamstresses, telephone girls, working women of all kinds. The Princess was a member of the royal family who might reasonably one day be in line for the throne. She expressed herself thus to me on this point:

"'I don't think we ever will attend the same tea parties nor perhaps have the same tastes nor cultivate the same associations after the war. But never again will any of us, high or low, fail to recognize that those in the class farthest removed from us are subject to the same wants and are capable of the same suffering and the same heroism.'

"So there is a great bond through which the Belgians are supporting one another, and a great hope for a better understanding and better conditions after the war. This hope sustains them spiritually.

Spirit of People Marvelous.

"As I have said, the spirit of the people has been marvelous. The world could not blame them if they surrendered even now. They have not surrendered yet. There is just one thing they cannot stand out against. There may not be a limit to spiritual endurance, but there is a limit to physical endurance. The body weakens and the will is gone.

"The American Commission, though obliged to leave Belgium, has by no means surrendered its work. The American people no longer are asked for individual money contributions. Since the United States' loan to the Belgian Government they have money with which to pay for supplies. The relief is well administered by Belgians and neutrals. They only ask the United States to produce the supplies, food and clothing. They need above all things especially wheat and fats.

"It is a pretty hollow expression of sympathy," concluded Mrs. Kellog, "pretty empty gratitude—for as the undoubted savior of the world Belgium is entitled to our gratitude —it is sheer hypocrisy if we cannot from our abundance send them the things which they have got to have. The thing which above all others they have got to have is wheat. There are 10,000,000 people within the wire inclosure. They must have 68,000 tons of wheat a month. They should receive 110,000 tons.

"Tell Post-Dispatch readers that there come to the Food Administration reports of people who are not content to take the allotment of six pounds a week. There are whole communities which are doing without wheat altogether."

EUTERPEAN LADIES' CHOIR CONCE

The Euterpean Ladies' Choir of Carondelet, under the direction of H. D. Fraser, will give their sixth annual spring concert at Grover Cleveland High School next Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock.

The choir will be assisted by Marion Elsa Taucke, contralto; Gladys Bamberger, soprano, and the American Trio, composed of the following musicians: William G. Brown, violin; Emil J. Sommer, cello, and H. [illegible], piano.

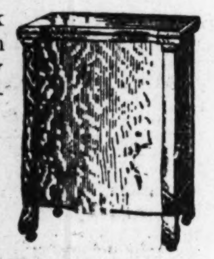
$12. This is the last week of our $12.00 allowance. This offer postively closes Saturday, May 11th. $12.

Your last opportunity this week to obtain an allowance of $12.00 on your old machine in exchange on any style of the FREE; either the Cabinet, Drophead, or Electric model.

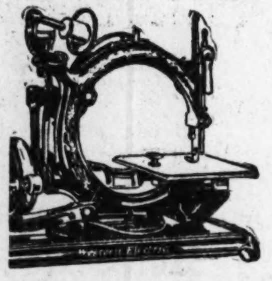
The new 1918 Cabinet Models in plain, Colonial and Mission styles are here. Finished in mahogany, American walnut, fumed oak, golden oak, Early English and wax oak.

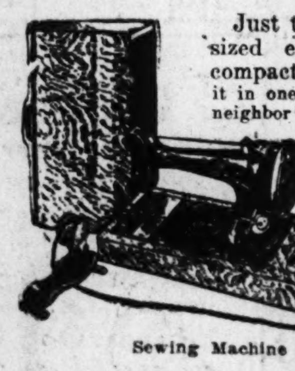


The Western Electric

Portable Automatic Chain Stitch Machine is priced at $56.50

Let us demonstrate this wonderful machine to you.





Just think of it—a complete, full-sized electric sewing machine so compact, so light that you can carry it in one hand upstairs, or down, to your neighbor's or to the war-relief work rooms. When your work is finished, you put the machine out of the way on a closet shelf. The electric motor does the hard work and relieves you of the tire of pedaling.

Special weekly or monthly terms may be arranged if desired.

ARE YOU RUPTURED?

Right now at the beginning of Summer is the most important time of the year to see that your Truss is in perfect condition. Summer is very much harder on a Rupture than Winter, and if your Truss is worn, if it is loose, if it is ill-fitting, if it is broken, if it is uncomfortable, if it does not hold your Rupture properly, if it is not the exact Truss for your particular Rupture, you should not wait but see about it at once. We have two expert Truss men who thoroughly understand ruptures. Come and talk it over with them. It will cost you nothing. If you need a Truss, we carry the most complete stock in the state, and at prices you can afford to pay—$1.50, $2.25, $3.00, $3.75 to $8.50.

All Wrinkles Soon Vanish—How To Do It

Secrets That Make the Mirror Tell Wonderful Stories of Beauty. A Hair "Forcer" of Remarkable Power.

BY VALESKA SURATT

It is unfortunately true that all that many women get from using ordinary face creams is—more wrinkles. Try this skin rejuvenator mentioned below. It is a veritable wonder. Crows' feet and mouth wrinkles will vanish in a hurry. Instead of 50 you will look more like 35, and this will happen in a few weeks' time. It costs so little. Get two ounces of eptol at the drug store and mix with one tablespoonful of glycerine and half a pint of water. See how quickly the deep lines and hundreds of little wrinkles will disappear and your skin becomes plump and youthful. Never forget this secret, and always use it—liberally—too, every day. Tell your friends about it. Let every one have the benefit of it.

EXASPERATED—A frequent warning has before been sounded very often in these columns about the use of hair "burners" commonly sold. Instead use the "dissolving" method, which is remarkable. Moisten the hairs with sulfo solution, which you can get at the drug store for one dollar. This will make the hairs literally wither away in a few minutes. It can't hurt the tenderest skin, and it always does the work. It leaves the skin soft and fair, without spots or redness.

SPLENDID—Nothing in the world can surpass this formula as a skin beautifier. I know it to be a fact. By mixing one ounce of sintone, secured at the drug store, with two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of water, to form a cream, you have a real marvel for beauty making. Those spots will leave your cheeks, muddiness will vanish, and in its place you will soon, very soon, have a complexion that the rose itself will envy. Don't fail to try it.

• • •

MRS. S. O. S.—Hair should at once stop falling if you will use my hair formula. Every one who has tried it says it is perfectly astounding how it makes hair grow and stops hair falling. Get one ounce of beta-quinol from your druggist and mix it with one-half pint each of water, or with one pint of witchhazel if preferred. Use this every day and your dream of long, silky, beautiful hair will truly come true. In making up this mixture you will find it will give you over a pint of the hair grower at a smaller cost than that of any prepared hair treatment, and besides, you have the best you can get anywhere. It will not fail to give results.

MISS G. F. O. C.—Yes, you can easily remove blackheads in a few moments, even while you are engaged in your toilet. And to think you have been years trying to get rid of these embarrassing blackheads! On a hot wet cloth sprinkle some powdered neroxin, which you can get at the drug store, and rub this over the affected skin. You will find the blackheads will be entirely gone in a few moments. Continue this method every few days.

• • •

WAITING—It is no wonder you become embarrassed from your excessive arm pit perspiration. You can stop that unnatural condition, and also remove all the unpleasant odor instantly, by applying hydrolized talc to the arm pits. You can get it at any drug store. It beats any prepared article sold for this purpose.

"EFFY"—A glorious head-wash. Yes, here it is, and a wonder, too! Just dissolve a teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of water, and use as a head-wash. You will be surprised at the remarkable cleanliness of your scalp and the glossiness of your hair as a result. For twenty-five cents you can get at the drug store enough eggol to last for many weeks.

• • •

MRS. N. P.—Ordinary face powders sold will not stay on—except in spots sometimes. That's why I had my own face powder made up finer in texture than anything yet produced. It is free from that annoying chalkiness, and is sold as "Valeska Suratt Face Powder" at drug stores in white, flesh and brunette tints for fifty cents.—ADVERTISEMENT.

555 DRAFTED MEN GOING TO BARRACKS WEEK FROM TODAY

Names of 380 Announced by 17 City Ward Boards, and 175 to Be Detailed From Remaining 11.

3 COUNTY BOARDS TO SEND 19 EACH

Will Be First Contingent of St. Louis Men to Be Sent to That Post for Distribution Among Camps.

Seventeen ward draft boards of St. Louis have announced the names of 380 men selected to be sent to Jefferson Barracks one week from today. The remaining 11 wards, which have not yet announced their selections, will send 175 men at that time, making a total for the city of 555. Each of the three St. Louis County boards will send 19 men.

This will be the first contingent of St. Louis drafted men to go to Jefferson Barracks, where drafted men from Illinois have been assembling since last Thursday. Those from Iowa, Kansas and Missouri will continue to arrive at Jefferson Barracks until about May 20, by which time about 13,000 will have been mobilized there.

The men will be sent from Jefferson Barracks to permanent training camps after being uniformed and given final physical examinations. Heretofore all St. Louis drafted men have gone directly to Camp Funston, Kan.

Among the men to go next Sunday from the Twenty-first Ward is Kenneth R. Williams of the Beers Hotel, outfielder for the St. Louis Browns.

Following are the wards which have announced their selections and the names and addresses of the men:

St. Louis Wife Doing Good Work

"I have been bad off with stomach and liver troubles and bloating for many years. No doctors or medicine helped me. On the advice of my druggist I bought a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and I don't want to miss a single dose. It has given me more benefit than all the medicine I have ever taken. I feel I am doing good to recommend it to others." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Judge & Dolph 3 stores, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Yale Graduate New Mayor of Tokio.

TOKIO, April 6 (By A. P.).—Viscount Inajiro Tajiri, graduate of Yale University, has been elected Mayor of Tokio in succession to Baron Yoshindo Okudo, who died about a year ago. Lately he has been teaching political economy at the Imperial University and his lectures have been very popular among the students. He has a serene and happy view of life.

"Man Without a Country" Film at Royal Theater This Week.

The film version of Edward Everett Hale's patriotic classic, "The Man Without a Country," will be shown this week at the Royal Theater, on Sixth street near Olive. The familiar story of the sufferings of a man cut off, through his own disloyalty, from all association with his country, and not permitted to hear that country's name spoken, has been adapted to the screen in a series of dramatic incidents.

It's a little harder to get help now but Post-Dispatch Wants are bringing applicants.

EASY TO-DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Luster With Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—ADV.

MEN BEIG SENT OUT RAPIDLY FROM GREAT LAKES STATION

GREAT LAKES, Ill., May 4 (By A. P.).—All men who entered the navy training school here last winter had been called to active duty by May 1. During December and up until Jan. 15 thousands of apprentice seamen reported at the station. Unusual calls from the fleet have taken every one of these men as fast as they completed their three months' course of training.

Since April 15, the date they finished their training period, these men have been leaving the station in large quotas. A majority were assigned to Eastern receiving ships.

Apprentice samen were not received at the station between Jan. 15 and March 15. On March 15 they again started coming in until now there are nearly 5000 apprentice seamen on the station, most of whom are going through their detention period and will not be ready for transfer as trained men until June 15.

7 CITY MARKETS FOR FARM PRODUCE ARE OPENED HERE

Municipal Plan Is Designed to Permit of Truck Gardeners Selling Direct to Consumers.

Seven municipal street markets opened yesterday in St. Louis to help housewives in their drive against the high cost of living by enabling farmers and truck gardeners to sell direct to consumers.

The markets, opened under authority of a city ordinance, were at Broadway and Chippewa street, Twentieth and East Grand, Grand and Gravois, Jefferson and Lafayette, Easton and Sarah, Easton and Taylor, and Broadway and Schirmer. One also was to have opened at Nineteenth street and St. Louis avenue, but no farmers appeared.

The Easton and Sarah market was opened with music by the Riddick School Drum Corps and was attended by Director of Streets and Sewers Talbert and members of the Women's Conservation Committee. Eight farmers sold everything that they had.

At Twentieth street and East Grand avenue market there was a band in a decorated band stand and speeches were made by Mayor Kiel, President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen, Director of Public Welfare Schmoll and Water Commissioner Wall.

At the Wild Hunter Market, Jefferson avenue and Chippewa street, the original municipal market, which is entering its second season, the Jefferson Barracks Band played, school children marched and a flag raising was participated in by G. A. R. veterans. President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen, who started the street market movement, was the speaker. About 150 farmers were there for business and they all sold out before noon.

Business was brisk at all the other markets and prices in most instances were lower than at the neighborhood shops.

WOMEN GIVE OFFICE TO A MAN

First to Be So Honored by State Parent-Teachers' Body.

Dr. Presley H. Roberts of Tuxedo Park, Webster Groves, is the first man ever elected to a State office by the Congress of Mothers' and Parent-Teachers' Association of Missouri. At the convention, which closed Friday evening, he was elected auditor. This was not only done to secure his assistance on the Board of Managers, but also to remove from the public mind the impression that this association is only for women.

The convention passed a resolution urging the circles throughout the State to put the men to work equally with the women.

MUSICIANS TO MEET TODAY

Effort Will Be Made to Co-Ordinate All Activities.

A movement to co-ordinate all the musical activities of the city will be launched today, at a meeting of a committee of musicians, officers of musical societies and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, to be held at 3:15 p. m. in the hall of the Musical Art Building, Boyle avenue and Olive street.

"Music is now generally recognized," says the announcement, "as an important factor in the civic life of every community, and to make its employment thoroughly effective the co-operation of all musical and civic interests is imperative."

THE BIG REAL ESTATE AND WANT DIRECTORIES with today's POST-DISPATCH contain a THOUSAND MORE OFFERS of board, cottages, bungalows, flats, apartments, dwellings, business property and real estate than you will find in the next nearest local SUNDAY newspapers.

CHAMINADE CLUB CONCERT

The Chaminade Club of Webster Groves will give its annual spring concert Tuesday evening, concluding its sixth season and its second year under the direction of Leo C. Miller.

Mrs. Eleanor Hazzard Peacock of Detroit, a soprano heard with the Symphony Orchestra recently, will be the soloist. Miss Fannie Block, contralto, and Mrs. George Ruhl, contralto, will assist the club in Grieg's "At the Cloister Gate." There will be a group of songs by Jessie L. Gaynor, a local composer.

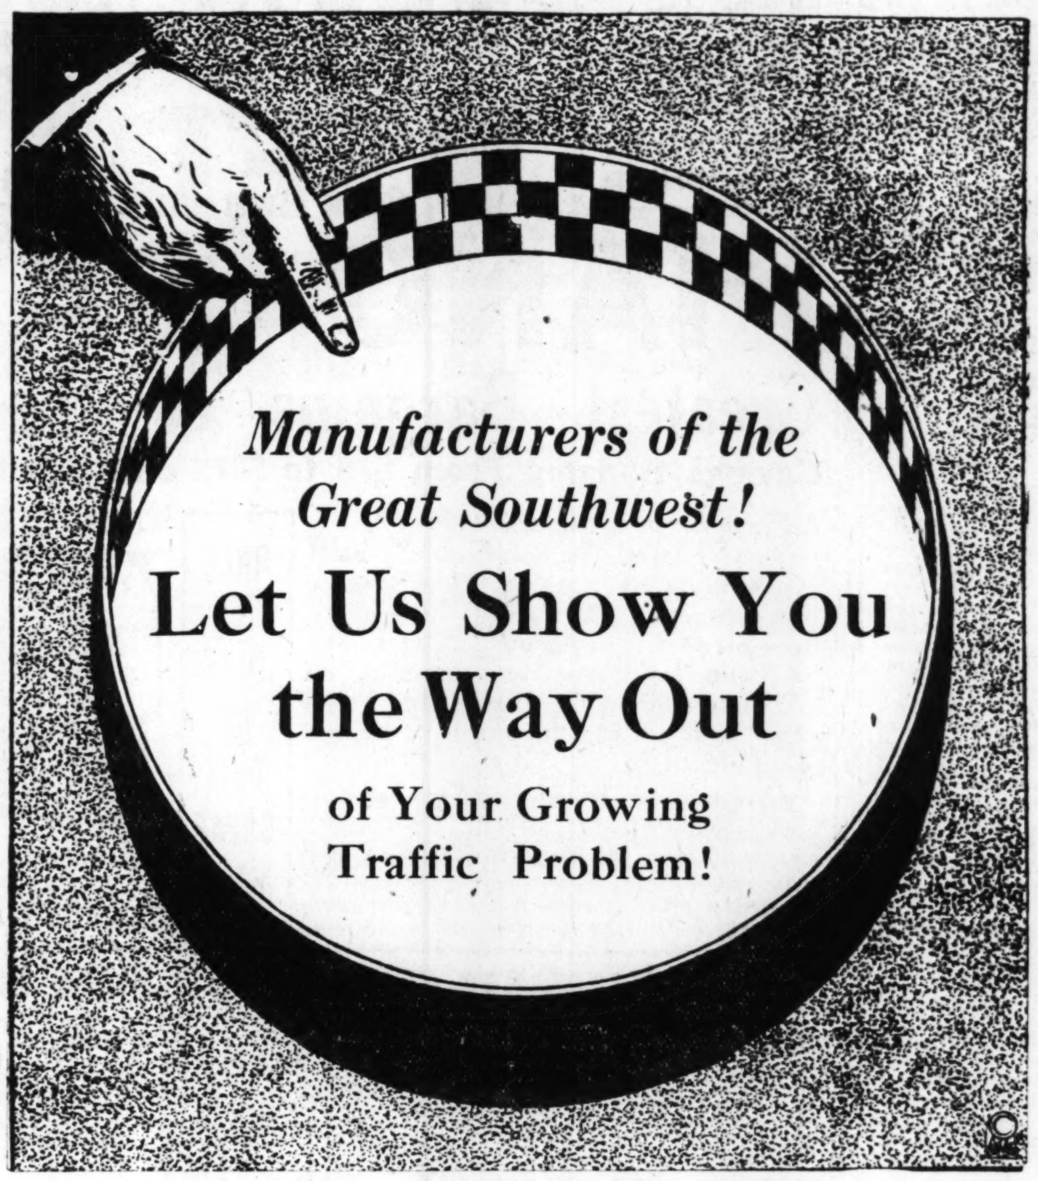
Transportation difficulties are increasing! The present situation precludes further development of distant markets by the manufacturing interests of this country. The "short haul" order has the preference today!



Manufacturers of the Great Southwest!
Let Us Show You the Way Out of Your Growing Traffic Problem!

In the rush of booking orders anywhere and everywhere, you may have overlooked the fertile fields right next your door! Many manufacturers have found that to be the condition in their own cases. Why not investigate?

The Long Freight Haul Is Tabooed—What Now?

Formulate Plans for Intensive Selling in the Trade Territories Closer to Home—Your Opportunity Will Not Last Forever —You Must Work Fast to "Get the Edge" on Competition

War-time problems have their solution, and transportation for the manufacturer is no exception.

Stay closer to home! Sell your merchandise to those who live in your logical trade radius! No need to hesitate on that point, for the ability of your selling organization will have the fullest possible scope.

Within a radius of 500 miles from St. Louis you can supply approximately more than 40,000,000 people with the necessities of life.

You can get to that vast buying army easily and quickly—1200 package cars leave St. Louis daily; 26 trunk lines serve St. Louis and the St. Louis trade district!

Precedence to the war-time needs of your nation---precedence to them over all other things! Business must wait, if need be, WHILE WE WIN THIS WAR! Munitions must arrive on time! Troops must travel on schedule! Supplies and equipment must be kept steadily "on the move!" Uncle Sam comes first---you come next!

Why not lay a solid foundation for winning the "Home Circle" trade? You can do it! Dominate the St. Louis trade district and the golden Great Southwest by concentrating your advertising in "St. Louis' ONE BIG Newspaper"—

WILL DISCUSS WAR JOURNALISM

Correspondents, Publishers and Editors to Speak at Columbia.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 4 (Special).—Problems of journalism in wartime will be emphasized at the ninth annual Journalism week of the University of Missouri, which begins here Monday. War correspondents, publishers and editors from every part of the country will be on the program. Among those who will deliver addresses are Oswald F. Schuette of the Chicago Daily News, who was among the first American correspondents to leave Berlin, and Victor Morgan of the Cleveland Press, who witnessed the first part of the German drive in Picardy. Stephane Lauzanne, editor of Le Matin, Paris, will speak. William Marion Reedy and A. B. Chapin of St. Louis are on the program.

The week will open with a program by the Missouri Writers' Guild, of which J. Breckenridge Ellis of Plattsburg is president. On the program arranged for the writers is Augustus Thomas, famous playwright.

A Cure Without Pain

MANY people are under the impression that the cure of Rupture requires the use of anaesthetics, the knife and all the accompanying discomforts of bedridden convalescence.

This is not so with the Lewin non-surgical method. This treatment causes no pain because it does not necessitate the use of a knife or any other inconvenience of a surgical operation.

With my proved ability to cure any man who is Ruptured and who fails to call upon me is doing his family and his friends, his employer and his customers a grave injustice, because he cannot give his fullest measure of endeavor while his Rupture remains uncured.

No charge for consultation. You need not hesitate for fear you will lose time from your business on account of my treatment, or that your social obligations will be interfered with. There is no real reason why you should suffer any longer, my cure is absolute and permanent.

SENATE RACE ADDS ZEST TO MISSOURI VOTE THIS FALL

Four Democrats and Seven Republicans Are Expected to Become Candidates for Stone's Place.

EIGHT DEMOCRATS IN CONGRESS UNDER FIRE

They Will Be Opposed Because of Failure to Support War Program—State Offices.

Loyalty to the administration's war program is expected to be the test applied by Missouri voters to candidates in this fall's campaign, which, though it be an off year election, is of unusual importance in Missouri, and because among the candidates are eight Congressmen, whose votes either on the declaration of war or on conscription have subjected them to the condemnation of the uncompromising supporters of the administration among Missouri voters.

The Eight Representatives.

These Congressmen are:

Speaker Champ Clark, representing the Ninth District, who spoke and voted against conscription, but who did not vote on the declaration of war.

Milton Andrew Romjue of Macon, representing the First District, who voted against conscription.

W. W. Rucker of Keytesville, representing the Second District, who voted against conscription.

Charles F. Booher of Savannah, representing the Fourth District, who voted against conscription.

Dorsey W. Shackleford of Jefferson City, who voted against the declaration of war, and who was absent when the vote on conscription was taken.

William L. Igoe of St. Louis, representing the Eleventh District, who voted against the declaration of war.

Walter L. Hensley of Farmington, representing the Thirteenth District, who voted against the declaration of war and who dodged the vote on conscription.

Perl D. Decker of Joplin, who voted against the declaration of war.

All Are Democrats.

All of these are Democrats and anti-machine Democrats in their districts for several weeks have been studying local situations with a view to determining whether it will not be possible to overcome their powerful political machines and select candidates in the primary who will not be open to the attacks which it is certain the Republicans, whose only representative in Congress from Missouri stood steadily with President Wilson, will make on them.

Although congressional district lines in Missouri are so laid as to preclude in normal times the election of more than three or four Republicans, party leaders this year are perturbed and frankly admit that they expect there will be many thousands of voters, who usually vote the ticket straight, who this year will refuse to heed to the party designation on the ticket and who will be guided solely by their views as to the candidates' records.

What the effect will be in such districts as the Tenth and Twelfth in St. Louis, the Eighth and the Ninth, where candidates of both parties in the past have made special appeals to the German voters, who are in large numbers in those districts, cannot be foretold, but there is little doubt that any attempt by any candidate this year to capture German votes will meet with prompt political punishment.

Big Interest in Senatorship.

The large interest in the campaign will center in the election of a United States Senator to fill the vacancy created by the death of Senator Stone, and which Gov. Gardner temporarily filled by the appointment of Xenophon P. Wilfley.

Wilfley already has announced himself a candidate for re-election and politicians are accepting it as a fact that former Gov. Joseph W. Folk will be a candidate against Wilfley. Harry B. Hawes, who is on his way back from Switzerland, where he went to meet Mrs. Adolphus Busch and escort her to the United States, is being pushed forward by his St. Louis friends, but there has been no opportunity to obtain an expression from him as to his candidacy.

There also is a report from Washington that Speaker Clark will seek election as Senator, although he declined appointment to the post.

In a field of Folk, Hawes, Clark and Wilfley there is no basis for a prediction as to the outcome. In 1904 Folk defeated Hawes for the nomination for Governor, but that was at a time when Folk's boodle prosecutions were fresh in the minds of the people, as were also the evils of police rule of elections in St. Louis when Hawes was head of the Police Board and before Folk closed the saloons on Sunday and compelled them to obey the law on other days.

The Folk-Stone Race.

Folk was defeated for Senator in 1998 by Stone, but he lost the State by only 14,794, which was almost exactly the vote by which he lost St Louis. In considering the relative strength of the men talked of as candidates, it is to be remembered that in the 1908 campaign Folk was opposed by the most astute of politicians and the further fact that in 10 years there has come on another generation of voters, many of whom have neither the ties of affection nor the feeling of hate which actuated thousands who went to the polls in 1908.

Hawes gained favorable notice in the Legislature last year by his success in putting through a State-wide good roads measures, and his work on this gained him what might also be termed an organization in nearly every county in the State, which unquestionably would be of great aid to him in a campaign.

Clark, notwithstanding his vote against conscription, would be a formidable candidate in the primary, though, as he never has made a State-wide campaign, what his strength will be is problematical. A feeling of sympathy for him because of his loss of the nomination for President at the Baltimore convention, after leading on several ballots, is evident throughout the State, but there is no means of telling what this sympathy would cash in votes. His campaign for the indorsement of

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

George asks: "For several months I have not been feeling well. My skin is sallow, my tongue is coated, have headache, am sleepless, nervous and bothered with chronic constipation. Please help me."

Answer: You need a laxative blood cleansing treatment in the form of three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). Overcome the tendency to constipation and gradually your good health and pure blood will return.

Mrs. L. writes: "I hesitate to ask advice as my case is so unusual. In a word, I am tired and worn out all the time. Rest does not refresh me. I have been married over a year and formerly did not know what it was to be tired or nervous. Sometimes I feel hysterical. I fear I will become a nuisance to my husband if this continues."

Answer: Your nervous system has been depleted. You need a tonic invigorating medicine that will aid in supplying more food-energy to your nerves. Take three-grain cadomene tablets regularly for several months.

Mother writes: "Last Winter I was cured of a bad case of bronchitis by using your prescription containing mentho-laxene, and have been very grateful and confident of getting good advice. I wish to know of a good, safe medicine to reduce my abnormal weight about 30 pounds."

Answer: I thank you for your confidence and advise that five grain arboline tablets is the reliable obesity medicine which I always prescribe. In sealed tubes with direction. Any druggist can supply you.

S. E. asks: "I have tried to cure dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair and baldness with numerous tonics, etc., but in vain. What do you recommend?"

Answer: I have been recommending plain yellow minyol for the past seven years and scores of my patients are delighted with the quick, pleasant action of this remedy in stopping itching, falling hair, dandruff, etc. It gives the hair health, luster and vigor as nothing else does. Obtain in 4oz. jars with full directions.

Mabel writes: "Can you please prescribe medicine which will relieve me of such distressing symptoms of kidney and bladder, as the following: Pains in small of back, soreness in regions of bladder?"

Answer: Those seeking relief from kidney and bladder disorders should begin taking balmwort tablets, a very successful formula sold in sealed tubes with full directions.

NOTE: For many years Dr. Baker has been given free advice and prescriptions to millions of people through the press columns, and doubtless has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any single individual in the world's history. Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

Dr. Lewis Baker, Dear Sir: In reading your good advice to others I have found relief. I enclose stamps, and please send me your "Great Guide Book, Health and Beauty," and I thank you for advice to others which so helped me. May your good work go on. You will get better reward than money in helping so many who suffer and often cannot have a doctor, as there is no money to pay one. One of your many well-wishers. Sincerely,

MISS C. H. WHITE.

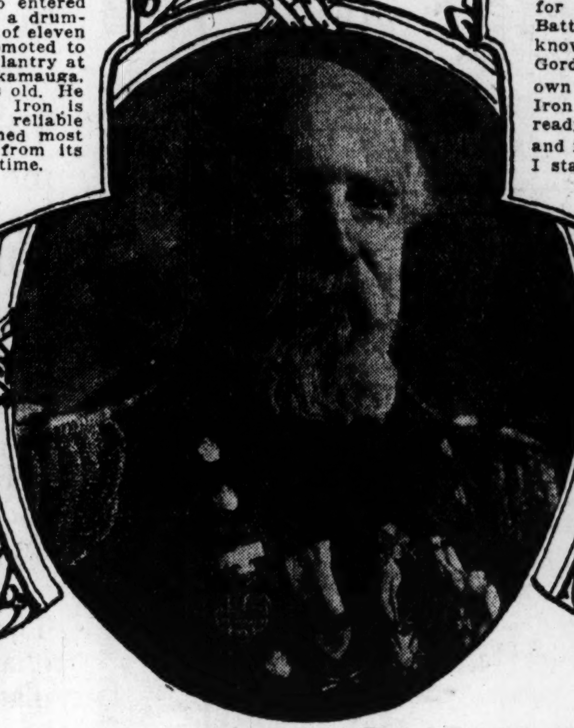
General Gibson Says Every Soldier who goes to the Front Should take NUXATED IRON

General John L. Clem, Who Was Sergeant in the U. S. Army at 12 Years of Age; General David Stuart Gordon, Hero of the Battle of Gettysburg; Judge Samuel S. Yoder, for 18 Years a Practicing Physician and Formerly Surgeon Major in the Army, Also Tell How They Were Benefited by a Short Course of This Remarkable Product.

(Clinedinst Studio)

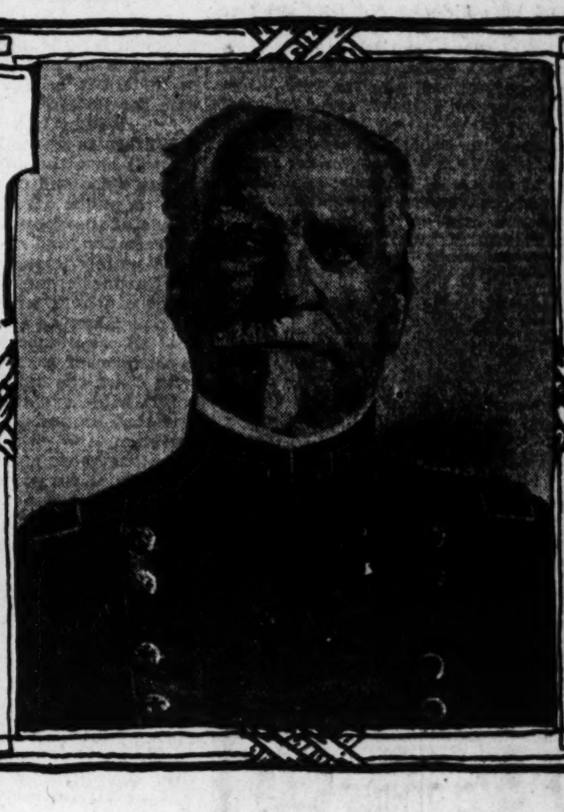
Gen. John L. Clem, U. S. A. (retired), the drummer boy of Shiloh, who entered the U. S. Army as a drummer boy at the age of eleven years. He was promoted to be Sergeant for gallantry at the Battle of Chickamauga, when only 12 years old. He says that Nuxated Iron is the one and ever reliable tonic—that he obtained most surprising results from its use in two weeks' time.



(Harris & Ewing)

General Horatio Gates Gibson, U. S. A. (retired), who entered the City of Mexico in the war of 1847 with General Winfield Scott. General Gibson says: "Judging from the results in my own case, I feel that every soldier who goes to the front should take Nuxated Iron."

Gen. David Stuart Gordon, U. S. A. (retired), promoted for gallant conduct in the Battle of Gettysburg, well-known Indian fighter. Gen. Gordon says: "Despite my own advanced age, Nuxated Iron has made me fit and ready for another campaign, and if my country needs me, I stand ready to go."



Dr. James Francis Sullivan and other physicians explain why Nuxated Iron helps to increase strength and endurance, and build up weak, nervous, run-down folks.

What every soldier most needs is tremendous "stay there" strength, power and endurance, with nerves of steel and blood of iron. To help produce this result there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron, says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "I have personally found it of such great value as a tonic, strength and blood builder, that I believe if General Gibson's advice were followed many of our fighting men would find it of great benefit. In my opinion there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for enriching the blood and helping increase strength, energy and endurance."

General Horatio Gates Gibson says Nuxated Iron has brought back to him in good measure that old buoyancy and energy that filled his veins in 1847 when he made his triumphant entry with General Scott into the City of Mexico.

Another remarkable case is that of General David Stuart Gordon, noted Indian fighter and hero of the battle of Gettysburg. General Gordon says: "When I became badly run down this year I found myself totally without the physical power to 'come back' as I had done in my younger days. I tried different so-called 'tonics' without feeling any better, but finally I heard of how physicians were widely recommending organic iron to renew red blood and rebuild strength in worn-out bodies. As a result I started taking Nuxated Iron, and within a month it had roused my weakened vital forces and made me real strong again, giving me endurance such as I never hoped to again possess."

Another interesting case is that of General John Lincoln Clem who, at the early age of 12 years, was Sergeant in the U. S. Army and the last veteran of the Civil War to remain on the U. S. Army active list. General Clem says: "I find in Nuxated Iron the one and ever-reliable tonic. Two months after beginning the treatment I am a well man."

"I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles, without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body, somewhat like corn through an old mill with rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind.

"But in my opinion you can't make strong, healthy, successful, sturdy iron men by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a semi-digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are so ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system.

"Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist on dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or, if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package.

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former House Surgeon Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, in commenting on the value of Nuxated Iron, said: "This remedy has proven through my own tests of it to excel any remedy I have ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders. The manufacturers are to be congratulated in having given to the public a long-felt want, a true tonic, supplying iron in an easily digested and assimilated form. A true health-builder in every sense of the word."

If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or run-down, instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages, there are probably thousands who might readily build up their red blood corpuscles, increase their physical energy and get themselves into a condition to ward off the millions of disease germs that are almost continually around us. It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next, take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

MANUFACTURER'S NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed by Dr. Sullivan, and which has been used by Generals Gibson, Gordon, Clem, Judge Yoder and others with such surprising results, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser, or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

SWORN STATEMENT OF THE COMPOSITION OF THE FORMULA OF NUXATED IRON:

It is conservatively estimated that this remarkable formula is now being used by over three million people annually. Among those who have used and strongly indorse it are many physicians who have been connected with the best hospitals and medical societies, former United States Senators, former members of Congress. Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former Secretary of the Treasury and ex-Governor of Iowa; distinguished U. S. Army Generals (Retired); Judge Atkinson, of the United States Court at Washington, and former Health Commissioner Kerr, of Chicago.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this statement for the benefit of their readers. It is suggested that physicians make a report of it and keep it in their offices so that they may intelligently answer questions of patients concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to anyone who desires such. It is as follows:

Iron Peptonate (Special Specific Standard.)
(Quantity given below.)
Sodium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto.)
P. E. Nux Vomica U. S. P.
Calcium Glycerophosphates U. S. P. (Monsanto.)
Cascarine Bitter.
Magnesium Carbonate.
Po. Ginger U. S. P.
Oil Cassa Cinnamon U. S. P.
Calcium Carbon to Precip. U. S. P.

Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic Inon in the form fo iron peptonates, of a special, specific standard, which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of iron. By using other makes of Iron Peptonate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost; but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy.

Glycerophosphates used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nerve force and thereby increase brain power, as glycerophosphates are said to contain phosphorus in that particular state so similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of man.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycerophosphates) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful to see every bottle is plainly labeled "Nuxated Iron" by the Dae Health Laboratories, Paris, London, and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you. We guarantee satisfaction to every purchaser or your money will be refunded.

Below is Dr. Sullivan's prescription for enriching the blood and helping to make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans—men and women who dare and do.

Judge Samuel S. Yoder, statesman, jurist, and for 18 years a practicing physician—formerly Surgeon Major in the Army and now Commander-in-Chief of the Union Veteran Union, says: "Nuxated Iron restores, revivifies and rehabilitates the system. To the man of 70, as I am, it is just as certain, just as efficacious as to the youth in his teens."

"WHEN YOUR KIDNEYS FEEL LIKE LUMPS OF LEAD"

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, removing all the waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The channels often get sore, and your night's rest is disturbed.

Either consult a good reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.—ADV.

Rupture Kills 7000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 557, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the instructive information necessary.—ADV.

SENATE RACE ADDS ZEST TO MISSOURI VOTE THIS FALL

Missouri for the presidency, though not made by him personally, would be an aid if he should be a candidate for Senator.

Wilfley Is a Problem.

Wilfley is an unknown quantity. He will have the advantage of being in the office and of having his position on public questions fresh in the minds of the voters, but he lacks an organization, and necessarily will depend largely upon the work such of the Gardner organization as the Governor can hold for him will do.

It is taken as a matter of course that all candidates will campaign on a platform of patriotism and loyalty with Clark the only one of the three will be subject to attack on this score, and that limited to his vote on conscription.

Among those mentioned so far for the Republican nomination for Senator are Judge Henry Lamm, who was defeated for Governor by Gardner by only 2263 votes; Walter S. Dickey of Kansas City, who was defeated by Senator Reed in 1916; James L. Minnis of St. Louis, general solicitor for the Wabash Railroad; E. E. E. McJimsey of Springfield, editor of the Springfield Republican, and a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor in 1916; Howard Gray of Carthage, formerly a Judge of the Springfield Court of Appeals; James H. Harkless of Kansas City and Arthur Hyde of Trenton.

None has announced his candidacy, but the friends of all are talking of them, and it is probable an agreement will be reached by which one of them will be the candidate without opposition.

So far there is no indication that Chief Justice Waller W. Graves will be opposed for the Democratic nomination to succeed himself for a 10-year term as a member of the Missouri Supreme Court. No Republican candidate for the nomination for Supreme Judge has appeared.

State Superintendent of Schools Uel W. Lamkin is a candidate for re-election. S. A. Baker, Superintendent of Schools of Jefferson City, is an announced candidate for the Republican nomination for State Superintendent of Schools and probably will have no opposition.

Congressional Race.

The congressional candidates in Missouri are of unusual interest this year because of the closeness of the party division in the House of Representatives. The indications are that there may be several changes in the representation from Missouri.

First District—Milton Andrew Romjue, Democrat, will be a candidate for re-election. Romjue voted against conscription. Although there is so far no announced candidate against him, State Senator Charles F. Carter of Kirksville, a dry leader in the last Senate, has told his friends he will make the race for the nomination, and Sidney J. Roy, who twice has sought the nomination, is expected to again be a candidate. Ed S. Brown of Edina is talked of for the Republican nomination.

Second District—W. W. Rucker, Democrat, is a candidate for re-election. He voted against conscription. Rucker will have a fight for the nomination, as James F. Boyd of Paris, former Speaker of the Missouri House of Representatives, has announced his candidacy, and Ralph Lozier of Carrollton, who was a candidate against Rucker two years ago, is expected to be in the race. Who the Republican candidate will be is not decided, but as the district is safely Democratic by nearly 8000, it probably will make little difference.

Third District—Joshua W. Alexander, Democrat, is a candidate for renomination, and is being opposed by Circuit Judge Frank P. Divelbiss of Richmond. Alexander has supported all of the administration's war measures, but is handicapped in his race for renomination by the fact that his home is in Gallatin, which has had the Congressman from this district for 35 years with the exception of four terms.

The district is strongly Democratic, but Alexander lives in the portion where the greater number of Republican votes are, while Judge Divelbiss lives in Ray, one of the strong Democratic counties. Judge Divelbiss several years ago attracted statewide notice by his vigorous prosecution of tax dodgers. It was predicted at the time that his fight against tax dodgers would kill him politically, but at the next election he was re-elected Circuit Judge by an increased majority.

Fourth District—Charles F. Booher, Democrat, seeks re-election. He voted against conscription. Robert I. Young, a farmer living near St. Joseph, has filed for the nomination against him, but the strongest candidate against Booher will be W. E. Spratt, former Mayor of St. Joseph.

The NEW EDISON

Stand Guard at the Door of Thought

When about to purchase a sound-reproducing instrument for your home say to yourself: In this age of progress, there must be something to this new musical instrument invented by a genius like Edison. I will investigate what they claim to be the "Phonograph with a soul."

This musical instrument's re-creation of the human voice is as true a reflection of the original as the very likeness is reflected in the water.

The artist in this illustration is Christine Miller, who has appeared at the Victoria Theater and sung in comparison with the New Edison.

The New Edison may be purchased under our new club plan—thereby making it easy to own an Edison. Ask us.

SENATE RACE ADDS ZEST TO MISSOURI VOTE THIS FALL

and a son-in-law of James Cowgill, Mayor of Kansas City, and chairman of the Democratic State Committee during the last campaign. The district is strongly Democratic and the Republicans are showing little interest in the campaign for Congressmen, though Dr. Jacon Geiger of St. Joseph, the Republican nominee in 1916; Morrill E. Otis of St. Joseph, and W. Cal Pierce, a Maryville banker, are being talked of for the nomination.

Fifth District—William P. Borland, Democrat, who has supported the Wilson administration on all war measures, probably will be renominated without serious opposition. The district is strongly Democratic.

Sixth District—Clement C. Dickinson of Clinton, Democrat, seeks renomination. He has supported the Wilson administration. It is not probable he will be opposed for the nomination. There is little talk in the district of Republican candidates.

Seventh District — Courtney W. Hamlin of Springfield is a candidate for renomination. He has supported the administration on war measures, but a hard fight will be made on him notwithstanding this. There is a pronounced opposition to Hamlin in Springfield, the largest town in his district, growing largely out of a postmastership appointment fight several years ago. Former State Senator Sam Major of Fayette is a candidate against him. Hamlin won the nomination over Major two years ago by only 241 votes.

Frank A. Wightman, formerly a member of the Missouri Public Service Commission, and for several years Safety First Superintendent of the Frisco, is the only man so far talked of for the Republican nomination.

Eighth District — Dorsey W. Shackleford of Jefferson City, Democrat, who has represented the district for 20 years, is a candidate for renomination. He voted against the declaration of war and was absent when the vote on conscription was taken. There are many Germans living in Shackleford's district, and he always has made a strong play for their votes. In several campaigns efforts have been made to defeat him for renomination, but they have failed through the fact that each time there have been several candidates to divide the anti-Shackleford vote.

The most active candidate against him this year is A. T. Dumm, a Jefferson City lawyer. Dumm's strength as a candidate is somewhat lessened by the fact that he has appeared as attorney and defender in court of several statehouse politicians and officeholders who have been accused of crimes. W. T. Nelson of Columbia formerly assistant secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, also is a candidate, and probably will command considerable strength in Boone and Cooper Counties. The only Republican talked of for the nomination so far is Sidney Roach, a lawyer of Camden County.

Ninth District—Speaker Champ Clark will be a candidate for renomination unless he decides to become a candidate for United States Senator. Although Clark in the past 18 months has lost many of his strongest supporters in his district, it is doubtful if he would have opposition for renomination. His speech in the House against conscription and his votes against it resulted in widespread condemnation of him, and many of his closest friends were alienated when he publicly denounced them by name for sending him telegrams criticising his action.

However, the stronger men of the district are tied to him, and practical politics would probably rule to the extent of inducing them not to oppose him.

Tenth District—Jacob E. Meeker, Republican, is a candidate for reelection. He has supported the administration and probably will be renominated without opposition. The district is so strongly Republican that the Democratic candidate, if there is one, will not make much headway.

Eleventh District — William F. Igoe, Democrat. Igoe voted against the declaration of war, but voted for conscription. He has a strong hold on the voters of his district, which is safely Democratic, and there is little probability that he will be opposed for the nomination.

Twelfth District — Leonidas C. Dyer, Republican. Dyer has voted for the administration's war measures. He probably will not be opposed for the nomination. Dyer's district sometimes goes Democratic, but under existing political conditions in the district there is little probability that he can be defeated by a Democrat. The usual candidate for the Democratic nomination in this district is Michael J. Gill, a glassblower. Gill always is opposed by Senator Michael Kinney and Thomas Egan, who are in control in the east end of the district. They almost invariably find themselves unable to prevent his nomination, but Gill never gets enough votes in the election to win. The feud dates back to 1910, when Senator Kinney's brother, the late Senator Thomas E. Kinney, was a candidate for Congress. He was defeated by Dyer and the Kinneys always have charged that his defeat was due to Gill.

Thirteenth District—Walter L. Hensley, Democrat, has announced that he will not seek renomination, but there is some talk in his district that he may change his mind. This talk is discounted, however, by the fact that his law partner, Ben H. Marbury, has announced that he is a candidate. Hensley long before the war was known as a "little navy Congressman." He voted against the declaration of war and dodged a vote on conscription. He was "present, but not voting." Other probable candidates for the Democratic nomination are Arthur Brewster of Ironton, a lawyer, and Judge E. M. Deering of Potosi, a lawyer.

Fourteenth District—Joseph J. Russell, Democrat, is a candidate for renomination. He has stood with the administration. Russell probably will not have opposition for the nomination. Although the Governor did not permit it to become publicly known. Russell was seriously considered by him for the United States senatorship appointment to succeed Senator Stone.

The Fourteenth District is close politically, and Russell is said to have taken the position that for him to accept the senatorship and to leave the congressional race in the district to a man who would have to build up an organization would endanger the Democratic control in the district. Russell probably will be opposed in the election by David B. Hill of Poplar Bluff, who was the Republican candidate in 1916, and who was defeated by Russell by only 1162 votes.

Fifteenth District—Perl D. Decker, Democrat, seeks renomination. Decker voted against the declaration of war, but the present indications are that he will not be opposed for the nomination, unless T. Jeff Ashworth of Neosho gets into the race, as he has talked of doing. Information from the district is that William Bowker of Nevada, who had talked of seeking the congressional nomination, has abandoned the idea and will be a candidate for State Senator.

The Republicans will make a hard fight to defeat Decker, but have not yet agreed upon a candidate. The district sometimes elects a Republican. Among those talked of are Judge Howard Gray of Carthage, who also is being considered for the nomination for United States Senator; Mercer Arnold of Joplin, I. V. McPherson of Aurora, Joseph J. Manlove of Peirce City, and C. B. Gammon, former Mayor of Carthage. It is not probable Gray will be a candidate for Congress. He recently told friends he never had an ambition to go to Congress, and that he would prefer to represent his district in the State Senate, as he once did, than to be in Congress.

Sixteenth District—Thomas L. Rubey, Democrat, will be a candidate for renomination, and it is doubtful if he will be opposed in the Democratic primary. There is no talk in the district so far of a candidate for the Republican nomination.

The principal interest in the contests for membership in the State Senate lies in the fact that the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution will come up in the next Legislature for ratification. Seventeen Senators hold over, and 17 are to be elected. Of the holdovers eight are known to be "dry" and nine "wet." Of the 17 districts in which elections for State Senator are to be held this year, 10 are "dry," five are "wet" and the remaining two, while "dry," probably will elect Senators

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards's determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

Lift Corns Off! Doesn't Hurt!

Don't let corns ache twice! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers—Here's magic!

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic freezone discovered by a Cincinnati chemist.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn and instantly that old bothersome corn stops hurting, then shortly you can lift it out, root and all, with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. Ladies! Keep freezone handy on your dresser. Wonderful!

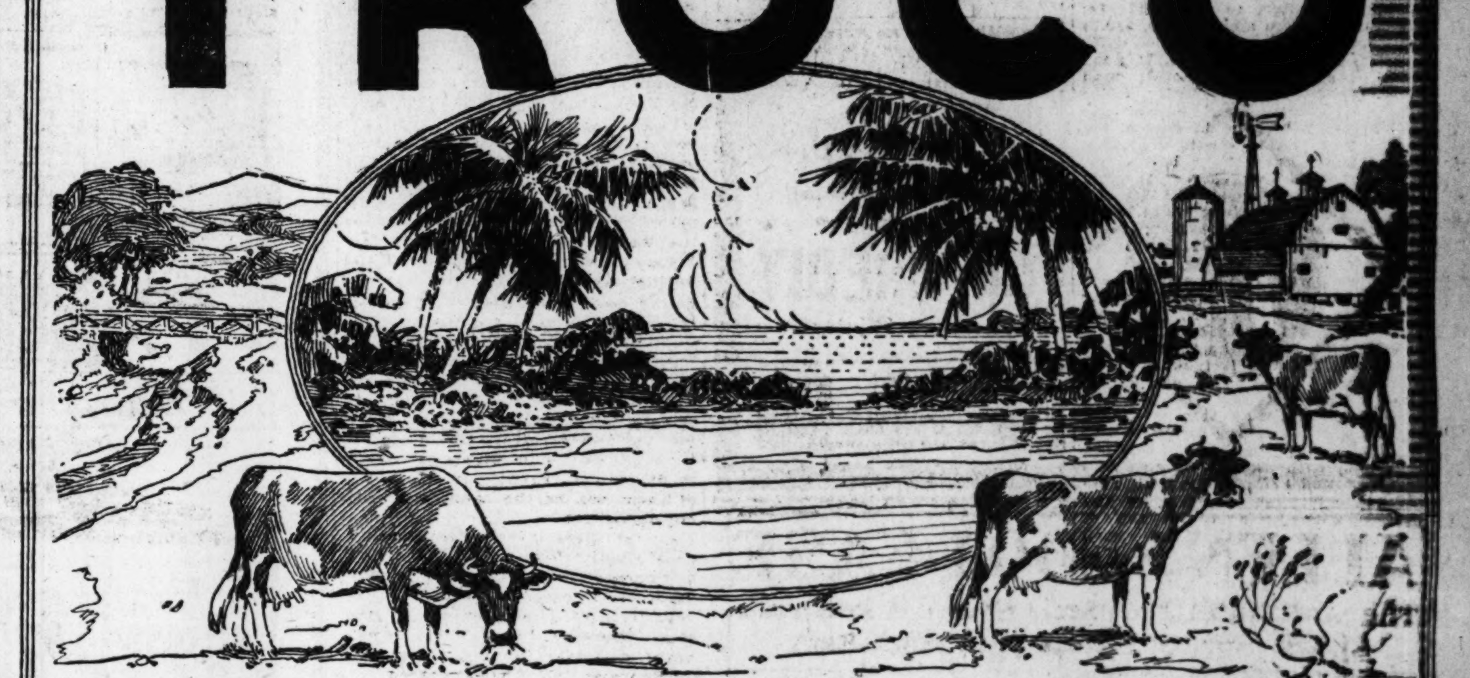
TROCO



Our Exclusive Process Gives Troco Its Real Butter Flavor

Solves the Butter Problem

Troco is not merely a butter substitute; it is the successor to butter. It tastes exactly like the finest creamery butter and is as digestible as butter, with the same high nutritive value.

Troco solves the butter problem for those who hitherto have used nothing but the best creamery butter. These critical users say that rarely is butter so sweet and delicate in flavor.

But don't just ask for "nut butter" or "nut margarine" and expect to enjoy this de luxe flavor.

Ask for Troco and get the real butter flavor.

Made from Vegetable Fat

Troco is made from "fat" extracted from the white meat of cocoanuts—the fat from the same tropic delicacy you use shredded on cake.

This appetizing product is churned with pasteurized milk by an exclusive process which gives Troco the delicate butter flavor.

Troco contains no animal oils and no preservatives. Nothing but pure vegetable fats and pasteurized milk for butter flavor. The Troco Company makes no animal oil products, It specializes on this one product

Ask your dealer for a capsule of the vegetable coloring used by butter makers.

Compare Troco with the Best Creamery Butter

The test of Troco is on the table, in comparison with the best creamery butter. This is where it wins butter lovers.

For cooking it has no equal, either in results or from the standpoint of economy. Troco goes farther than butter.

Old laws, made before Troco was invented, compel us to label it as an oleomargarine. This is extremely misleading.

Troco is a quality product used in homes where only the best is tolerated. Here flavor, quality and the assurance of fastidious manufacturing methods insure the popularity of Troco.

CATTLE PRICES BREAK RECORD IN TRADE HERE

Native Beef Steers Sell at $17.60; Hogs Are Lower for the Week.

Reported for the Post-Dispatch by the National Livestock Commission Co., National Stockyards, Ill.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last week.	Week before.	Last year.
Cattle	19,300	20,000	14,100
Hogs	58,200	55,800	60,000
Sheep	4,900	2,500	4,000

Records were broken last week, when choice, native beef steers brought $17.60 per cwt. This resulted from a further advance of 25c to 35c on all classes of steers, with instances of advances of 50c per cwt, compared with the week before. It takes effort at this lofty level to add to values, but there is no question that finished steers would have brought $17.85 and possibly $18.

The advance featured all classes of killing steers, packers even taking the fleshly end of the stockers and feeders at the advance; but as far as sales for thin cattle to go back to the country were concerned, no improvement was noted.

Good, light yearling butcher cattle advanced fully 25c to 50c, but the rank and file of butcher stuff, canners and bulls showed no improvement in price, though like other varieties, were taken readily at the prices.

Prime to fancy beef steers are quoted at $16.50@17.85; choice to prime, $15.50@16.50; good to choice, common to medium, $10.50@12; good $14@15.50; medium to good, $12@14; lo choice stockers and feeders, $10.75 @12.50; medium to good, $10.25@10.75; common to medium, $9@10.25; good to choice stock cows, $8.50@9; good to choice stock heifers, $9@10; choice to prime light yearling butcher cattle, $14.25@15.50; good to choice, $12 @14.25; common to medium, $9.50@ 12; choice to fancy heavy beef cows, $11.50@13; good to choice, $10.50@ 11.50; medium to good, $9.50@10.50; cutters, $9@9.50; canners, $7.25@8; good fat beef bulls, $11.50@13; heavy sausage bulls, $10.50@11.50; light, $9.50@10.50.

The past week witnessed a very uneven hog market; in fact, during the middle of the session, the trade settled to the lowest level recorded in many weeks. At the finish of the Wednesday market, it took the best light hogs to bring $17.40 and $17.50. A week ago yesterday the top was $17.85, and yesterday it was $17.65, showing a break of 20c for the week.

Light hogs continued to have the best call, with heavyweights still selling around $17 per hundred. Yesterday the market opened slow and steady with Friday, with top of $17.65, with the bulk of the good hogs, 160 to 210 pounds selling at $17.40@17.65; 220 to 260 pound, $17.20 @17.40 extreme heavy hogs, $17@ 17.10; pigs, 120 to 140 pounds, $17@ 17.50; lighter pigs $10 for common to $16.75 for others; rough hogs, $15.50 @15.75.

Receipts of hogs were not large enough to serve as a substantial basis on which to break the market. However, values slumped considerably and lambs show a decline of fully $1 and fat sheep 50c. This was due to the unusually high prices in effect heretofore, when prices were the highest ever recorded in the history of the market.

Choice wool lambs are quoted at $19.50@20.50; medium, $10@19.50; clipped sheep, $13@14; choppers, $9@ $15@15.75; wool sheep, $15@15.50; clipped sheep, $13@14; chopers, $9@ 12; canners, $7@9. Goats, $10@12; [illegible] @15.

SENATE RACE ADDS ZEST TO MISSOURI VOTE THIS FALL

who will vote "wet" if there is any chance to defeat ratification.

The Missouri House of Representatives is overwhelmingly "dry" now and unquestionably will be after the next election.

There is little probability that the present party division of 26 Democrats to eight Republicans in the State Senate will be changed by the election this fall, though the division in the House of 78 Democrats to 64 Republicans is very apt to change, as there as 23 legislative districts in the State, which two years ago were carried by majorities of less than 100.

In addition to the State officers, some county officers will be elected in every county.

In St. Louis the officers to be elected are three Congressmen, three State Senators, five Circuit Judges, 16 members of the Legislature, Judge of Division 1 of the Court of Criminal Correction, Clerk of the Circuit Court, Clerk of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes, Clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction, License Collector, Collector of the Revenue, Recorder, Prosecuting Attorney, Treasurer, 11 Justice of the Peace and 11 Constables.

LOW LEVEL OF SEASON REGISTERED BY COTTON

NEW YORK, May 4.—Still lower prices were reached in the cotton market here today with all active months selling under the low level of last Monday, or at the lowest points touched since the bull movement culminated early last month. July contracts broke to 24.35c or 270 points below the high prices of Thursday morning, but at this level there was considerable covering and that delivery closed at 24.88c. The general list closed steady, net 5 points higher to 11 points lower.

The market opened steady at an advance of 8 to 5 points on covering, but quickly weakened owing to the favorable showing of the weather map and a renewal of more or less general selling. Reports that New Orleans map readers were looking for bad weather caused another rally before the end of the first hour, but local traders thought the prospects were for favorable conditions over Sunday and the market soon eased off again.

There was very little business in May, which held relatively steady, selling only 23 points under last night's close, but October broke to 23.75c and December 23.60c, with active months generally showing net losses of 45 to 57 points during the middle of the morning. This made the lowest prices touched since July contracts sold at 23.80c a month ago, and covering for over the week-end became more active in the later trading. Last prices showed recoveries of about 40 to 53 points in consequence.

Some of the buying on the early decline was attributed to spinners calling, but local brokers thought the bulk of the demand represented the realizing of shorts and reported a very bearish sentiment around the ring. Except for the more favorable weather, no fresh factor was mentioned in connection with the decline and very few offers seemed to be reaching here from southern spot markets.

STRAWBERRIES IN DEMAND AND HIGHER ON LOCAL MART

Potatoes Are Barely Steady—Live Poultry Steady Under a Good Local Demand.

Strawberries were higher on the local produce market yesterday under a good demand (due to more favorable weather conditions) and comparatively light supplies. Fancy apples continued in good demand and values remained firm. Potatoes ruled barely steady at the recent declines. Onions were in liberal offering.

Live poultry continued in good demand at steady prices. The supply of hens was fairly liberal, but met ready sales at 24½c. Turkeys, ducks and geese were scarce and firm. Good prices were realized for 1918 spring chickens. Butter and egg prices were unchanged.

Butter, Eggs and Poultry

NOTE—Quotations herewith represent store and terminal prices obtained by commission merchants. Orders and extra fancy stock higher.

EGGS—Fresh first, 31c per dozen, shipping order; return cases, 1c less.

BUTTER—Creamery, extras, 43½c; firsts, 38½c; seconds, 35@36c; ladles, 32c; packing stock 28c; watery, cheesy and inferior, discounted from 1c to 3c, depending on quality.

Coffee Market.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The market for coffee futures showed no fresh feature today. The steadier tone noted recently was again in evidence, and after opening 2 points higher the market closed at an advance of 1 to 5 points, with July selling around 8.39c and September 8.49c. Business, however, was very quiet and the price movement reflected the influence of a few scattering orders attributed to further covering. May, 8.16c; July, 8.38c; Sept., 8.48c; October, 8.52c; Dec., 8.59c; Jan., 8.66c; March, 8.78c. Spot coffee dull; Rio No. 7, 8¾c; Santos No. 4, 11c.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

HIGHER QUOTATIONS FOR WALL STREET STOCKS ARE SCORED IN QUIET TRADE

Prices for the Week Show Gains of 1 to 3 Points on Many Issues.

CURB MARKET FIRM

War Stocks Attract Most Attention on the Broad Street Market.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The most that can be said of the financial markets, so far as concerns the present week, news from the western front, is that the quiet, unruffled serenity of recent weeks has continued.

"There was somewhat general expression of surprise that prices on the Stock Exchange did not advance rapidly when it became known that the German blow on the Western front had been carried, and that the German armies apparently, at the culminating moment of success, had been beaten back with enormous losses. There might have been occasions when that would have been the result; but this week's episode was not one of them.

"Quite aside from the fact that a market, which for a long time has stood up stubbornly in the face of bad news, is always apt to relax when the good news on which it had pivoted its expectations comes, he present juncture was hardly one in which to look for a rise in prices. The wonder has been, not that the stock market has not advanced this week, or during the three or four weeks which precede it, but that it should not have declined.

"No one would have been greatly surprised, if it had done so on the eve of the war loan subscription, in which practically the entire available investment capital of the country was, for the time being, commandeered.

Market Holds Steady.

"The essential point to keep in mind, so far as the Stock Exchange is concerned, is that the market did not decline on the news, regarding the progress of the German offensive, which stirred alarm and despondency in the highest degree in the mind of the community at large.

"Now that the last, and in some ways most formidable, attack of Hindenburg's army has for the time been stopped so effectively, it is possible to say that the stock market of the last 10 days of March, and the first 10 days of April, saw things more correctly even than some of the despondent military critics. But this did not mean that, having refused to 'discount' bad news by a decline in prices, the market ought forthwith to 'discount' good news by a spectacular advance.

"What the stock market has presumably expressed, during the six past weeks of anxious tension over the news from northern France and Flanders, is the conviction of the coolheaded financial community that crushing victories and crushing defeats do not occur in this war as they did in the wars of Frederick or Napoleon; that an army may nowadays be pushed back without being broken, and that, except for the historic German defeat at the Marne, in 1914, and the German victories won by treachery over Russia and Rumania and Italy in 1915, 1916 and 1917, there have been no overwhelming results from the battles of this war.

"But that only brings the inference that the side with the greater resources in population and financial resources—in other words, with the greater staying power—is bound in the end to win.

The War Loan Campaign.

"The floating of a war loan has come in these days to be an event quite apart from ordinary experience. Only a year ago, it would have been quite inconceivable that Wall Street could have been blocked by a crowd in business hours, to hear eminent financiers and statesmen plead for the Liberty Loan; that 'blue devils' from the French fighting front could have been driving in [illegible] subscriptions; that the uniformed police could have been summoning bids on the steps of the Public Library, from an audience which overflowed Fifth avenue, while a chorus of hundreds of voices and prima donnas from the opera held people between the appeals.

"But all these things have happened, and perhaps it is well that they should have happened; for they have given a certain sense of all classes locking arms in a common cause, the [illegible] the country in its hour of [illegible] which has shaken all of us, even Wall Street, out of its everyday commonplace routine.

"When one considers that, with each locality following its own particular strain of imagination and enthusiasm, the same thing has been going on throughout the cities and [illegible] our hundred-million population, it is impossible to doubt that, whatever of oddity and extravagance there may have been in the episode, [illegible] of us somehow the better [illegible] to the actual results on the Liberty Loan subscriptions, we shall presently know the facts.

"The market closed 1 to 3 points higher on the week. Yesterday's [illegible] irregular."

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, May 4.—The repulse of German armies this week was on the whole what had been expected on the financial markets where, however, it is still maintained that the next few months will continue to be a critical period in the war. The question of man power will be urgent, and the press frankly emphasizes the considerable lapse of time that must occur before American reinforcements have become numerically important.

What is recognized here as the success of your Liberty Loan has stimulated efforts in this country, where a fresh campaign of vigorous [illegible] national war bonds is [illegible] will possibly coincide with easier money rates. The new six-shilling-in-the-pound income tax gives a strong impetus to the war saving certificates, which are free of tax.

Meantime the stock market's strength is taken partly to reflect favorable opinion of the budget. It is believed, however, that the extra stamp tax on checks will be withdrawn.

Much attention is paid to the movement of exchange against Italy. The fall in rates is inevitable, because Italy's pressing necessities are usually ahead of the advances by her stronger allies. On the other hand, the movement of Spanish exchange against our market is troublesome, because of the large requirements of Spain's natural products by the allies. It is believed, however, that an arrangement is pending for further granting of credits to the allies by Spain.

In regard to our advances to the weaker allies, it is believed that the system of financing them is chiefly based on short-dated bills, with a tendency to limit accommodation to necessities and to actual purchases in the allies' territory.

Harvest Outlook Good.

The European harvest outlook is distinctly favorable. In England, the actual crop prospect is no more than moderate, though with present supplies above the three-year average. Reports from France, however, give the best indications in at least three years.

Beerbohm states that present indications suggest a 30 per cent increase over last year in the wheat crop, 15 per cent in rye, and probably more in barley and oats. Spain's prospects are also favorable.

On the other hand, Italy's requirements of wheat are estimated as 180,000,000 bushels, of which home production will provide only 140,000,000. There are few estimates on the German harvest; indeed, the outlook in that country is obscured by the abnormal cold.

Despite the obscurity of the cable advices, there is some disposition in the city to anticipate more favorable developments in Russia.

The German Reichsbank's loss in gold, by the report at hand this week, is interpreted in financial London as possibly reflecting inducements offered by Berlin to the other Teutonic allies.

Curb Review.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The war stocks as a group during the past week attracted most attention in the trading on the Broad street curb. When the stock market weakened on Tuesday, these and other issues traded in showed a heavy tone, and sold at the lowest price of the week, but from then on there was substanial improvement, with a general upward tendency to the market.

The air craft stocks attracted most attention, dealings in Wright-Martin being on a large scale for several days past, and the stock moved up from 8⅜ to 10⅜; Curtiss Airplane after selling at 29 became active late yesterday and sold at 34½. Aetna Explosives also showed pronounced strength, moving up from 8¼ to 9½.

There was an increased demand for Lake Torpedo, which sold at 3 to 3⅝. Accumulation of Submarine Boat was responded to with an advance from 14½ to 16¼. United States Steamship also reflected accumulation, with transactions in that stock yesterday the largest on the curb, with its price advancing during the week from 5½ to 6.

The widest range was in Carbon Steel, which moved up from 110 to 116, with a reaction to 111. Burns Bros.' Ice, after falling from 27¼ to 24½, rallied to above 26.

Chevrolet was weak in the first few days, selling at 119, but later advanced to 121. United Motors in the interval of weakness sold as low as 22½, with a later advance to 24¾.

The independent oil stocks were generally steady, but with few issues selling at the lowest prices reached in some time.

Oklahoma Producing declined to 6¼. Cosden Oil was traded in at 6⅞ to 6⅝. Midwest Refining advanced from 105 to 107½.

There was a larger volume of business in the mining stocks, Mother Lode being heavily traded in and selling as high as 58 cents, from which it dropped to 45 cents, and after the announcement of absorption by Kennecott, rallied to 50 cents.

Nipissing was a strong feature, advancing from 8⅝ to 9. St. Joseph Lead sold at 15 to 15¼ and United Verde at 39 to 39½; Magma at 33 to 34¼; Hecla at 4⅝ and 4¾; Mason Valley at 4½ to 4¾ and Yukon Gold at 1 1-16 to 1⅛.

Russian internal bonds showed a stronger tone, the 5½s selling at 36, against 32, the low record made in the previous week; and the 6½s sold at 38½, a rally from 36.

Aetna Explosives was a feature of the market this morning, advancing from 9 1-2 to 10 5-8. Curtiss which was strong in the late trading yesterday, rose to 35 1-4.

In the early trading today, one of the promotions collapsed. Jerome Prescott, which was traded in yesterday at 6 1-2, being offered down to 3-8.

GOOD WEATHER LOWERS PRICES IN CORN PIT

Values Are Sharply Lower for the Week; Oats Also Reflect Selling Pressure.

Enthusiasm over ideal conditions for planting did a good deal last week to rush the corn market down grade, and the bears made capital also of peace talk.

Compared with a week ago prices yesterday were ⅛c to 7⅛c lower. Oats showed setbacks of 5⅛c to 6⅛c.

Jolts to the bulls in the corn market began with the receipt of official notice that speculating in hedges would be considered a violation of the anti-hoarding law.

Weakness that ensued was checked by assurances that the Government did not make it obligatory on grain handlers to hedge holdings, but then came reports that Austria was making a fresh peace offer to Italy, and that other peace moves were likely.

It was not, however, until warm weather and sunshine set in for an apparently prolonged period that weakness of prices became acute. Fair rallies that ensued were ascribed more or less to gossip that export business was again in sight.

Oats were ruled by the same factors which governed corn.

Professional sentiment on oats and corn is more bearish than in months, as supplies on the farms are close to record-breaking. Weather has been ideal for the new wheat and oats crop, and a few warm days will assure perfect pasturage conditions.

Some dealers are talking 60c oats and $1.25 corn, unless a period of drouth and heat should materially cut down the estimates on oats and wheat.

The action of the Chicago market indicates that strong interests are working on the bear side of values, as the market meets good selling on all the hard spots, whereas formerly it encountered strong buying on the declines. Local commission houses also have been operating extensively on the declining side of the market.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Cash corn yesterday was steady to 1c to 2c up on white and select mixed and yellow; No. 3 and lower grades of mixed and yellow unchanged to 1c off; demand fair.

Cash oats steady to ¼c to ½c up; demand good for white.

CORN SHOWS LOWER DRIFT IN THE CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, May 4.—Forecasts that temperatures would remain above normal until at least Monday, tended to ease down the corn market today. In addition, talk of export business had subsided, an dthere was a renewal of assertions that liberal amounts of corn still remained in the hands of producers.

Opening prices, which ranged from ⅛c to ⅝c lower, with May, $1.27¼ and July $1.48⅝ to $1.49, were followed by a slight rally, and then a decided sag.

Lack of export inquiry weakened oats. Favorable weather was also a bearish influence. After opening unchanged to 1c down, with July 69c to 69⅛c, the market underwent further setbacks.

Strength of hog values gave provisions an upward turn. Offerings were scarce, but increased on the bulge.

Peace gossip appeared to count somewhat as a bearish influence, but the market rallied later in response to official notice that the expert movement of grain would be given preference over domestic shipments. The close, nevertheless, was weak, ⅛c to ⅝c net lower, with May $1.27¼ and July $1.48⅛ to $1.48⅜.

Flour, Meal and Bran.

FLOUR—Excepting on Government account, business in wheat flour is restricted and light; available supplies limited, yet apparently ample for current domestic needs.

Quote extreme range of values in jute sacks: Soft 100 per cent at $10.50 to $11.60 and 5 per cent low-grade at $9 to $10; hard 100 per cent at $10.50 to $11.80 and 5 per cent low-grade at $7.75 to $10. Barley flour at $10.50 jute—offered at that. Corn flour in sacks at $5.60@5.90 per 100 pounds.

RYE FLOUR—Dull. Quoted in [illegible] sacks at $12 for straight and at $12.75 up to $13.50 for white.

CORN MEAL, ETC.—Dull. Kiln-dried white corn meal quotable at $4.30@4.70 per 100 pounds—natural less; sale 1000 sacks natural yellow corn meal at $2.50 per 100 pounds. City meal quotes in 100-pound sacks thus: Corn meal at $4.40, cream meal at $4.90, grits and hominy at $5.15 per 100.

MILLSTUFFS—Dull. Virtually nothing doing, as wheat feed (which is wanted) is not obtainable for other feed stuffs. No transactions, but offers to sell were reported as follows, in 100s: Kiln-dried corn bran at $32.50 per ton, barley mixed feed at $52, yellow feed meal and white hominy feed at $50, reground oat feed offered at $21, No. 1 alfalfa meal at $31.50. Government prices on wheat feed are 38 per cent of cost of wheat bulk at mill (sacks extra), $2 per ton over for shorts, $4 over for mixed feed, $9 over for flour middlings and $15 over for red-dog.

Oils.

LINSEED OIL—Quote in lots of from 1 to 4 barrels at $1.65 per gallon for raw and $1.66 for boiled.

COTTONSEED OIL—Winter white, $1.75; do yellow, $1.74; summer white, $1.73; summer yellow, $1.72; salad, $1.74; cooking—white, $1.72; yellow, $1.72.

Crude Oil Prices.

Prices paid by the purchasing agencies for crude petroleum of various grades at the wells are as follows:

Pennsylvania $4, Corning $2.85, Cabell $2.77, Somerset, 32 deg. and above, $2.60; Ragland $1.25, Wooster $2.68, North Lima $2.38, South Lima $2.38, Indiana $2.28, Princeton $2.42, Illinois, above 30 deg., $2.32; Plymouth $2.25, Kansas and Ok. $2.25, Corsicana, light, $2.25; Corsicana, heavy, $1.30; Electra $2.25, Strawn $2.25, Thrall $2.25, Healdton $1.45, Moran $2.25, Henrietta $2.25, Caddo, La.—38 deg. and over $2.25, 35-37.9 $2.15, 32-34.9 $2.10, Caddo, La., heavy, $1.35; De Soto $2.15, Crichton $1.40, Gulf Coast $1.35, Goose Creek $1.35, Humble $1.35, Jennings $1.35, Markham $1.35, Sour Lake $1.35, Vinton $1.35. Wyoming—Grass Creek $1.70, Elk Basin $1.85, Big Muddy $1.50. California—37-37.9 deg., $132, 25.25-9 $1.07, 18-18.9 99c, 14-17.9 98c. Canada $2.63.

BRITISH REPULSE ATTACK, MAKE LOCAL GAINS IN NORTH

GRAVE FOOD CRISIS CLOSES THE AUSTRIAN PARLIAMENT

ALLIES TAKE PRISONERS IN FLANDERS

Germans Attack Near Locon, but Gain No Success, While English and French Improve Lines in Minor Thrusts Near Meteren and Locre.

VIENNA REPORTS ACTIVITY IN ITALY

Declares Fighting Has Increased on Whole Front, but Rome Mentions Only Intense Air Fighting and Desultory Artillery Fire.

LONDON, May 4 (By A. P.).—German troops early this morning under cover of a heavy artillery barrage attacked the British positions south of Locon. The statement issued this evening by the War Office says the attack was completely repulsed. French troops in their operations this morning in the Locre sector made progress. British troops on the right of the French also advanced their lines in the neighborhood of Meteren.

The statement says:

"The enemy's bombardment this morning south and southwest of Ypres was vigorously replied to by our own and the French artillery. No attacks developed.

"The infantry fighting during the day was confined to local engagements at different points. In successful minor operations carried out by us last night in the Hinges sector, we captured over 40 prisoners.

"A local attack attempted by the enemy early this morning south of Locon under cover of a heavy artilleery barrage was completely repulsed.

"In their operations early this morning in the Locre sector, French troops made progress and captured over 50 prisoners. British troops, acting on the right of our allies, also made progress in the neighborhood of Meteren.

"On the remainder of the front there is nothing of special interest to report."

An official statement on aerial operations tonight says:

"A most successful day's work was accomplished by our airplanes Friday. Bombing was carried out with the utmost vigor. Over 20 tons of bombs were dropped on the Chaulnes, Tournai and La Bassee railway stations and on Estaires, Marcelcave, Menin, Comines and Middelkerke.

"Fierce fighting continued all day. Twenty-eight German machines were brought down; five were driven down out of control and three were shot down by anti-aircraft guns inside our lines. Eleven of our machines are missing."

VIENNA REPORTS HEAVY FIRING ON ITALIAN FRONT

Activity Increases on Whole Line—Rome Reports Only Intense Air Fighting.

VIENNA, via London, May 4 (By A. P.)—The official report from Austrian headquarters says:

"Today in the southwest lively fighting continues."

The official statement issued yesterday said:

"The fighting activity again increased to considerable violence yesterday against the whole Italian front between the Gudicaria Valley to the Adriatic.

Berlin Report Says There is No Change on Battle Front.

BERLIN, via London, May 4 (By A. P.)—There was much artillery activity on the battle front in France, but, according to the official report from general headquarters today, the situation was without change.

GEN. GOUGH SAYS HIS FIFTH ARMY SAVED BRITAIN

Declares It Fought Until Reserves Could Arrive, Though Outnumbered 4 to 1.

BELFAST, Ireland, May 4 (By A. P.).—Gen. Sir Robert Gough's first public statement regarding the conduct of the fifth British army, which he commanded in the retreat from St. Quentin, comes in a letter to the Lord Mayor of Belfast, in which the General pays an enthusiastic tribute to the work of the Irish troops.

Gen. Gough says the fifth army was greatly outnumbered on the opening days of the German offensive, while the odds against British troops increased in the latter days of the battle. Nevertheless, the fifth army fought with splendid calmness and doggedness, and, the commander adds, "their tenacity saved Great Britain and France by permitting the arrival of reserves." The letter follows:

"The fighting of the Ulster division, as indeed of all the divisions in the Fifth army, against the greatest ods hurled on any body of troops throughout this great war, was magnificent. The main features of the situation to which the whole Fifth army was exposed are known to everyone and give some idea of what those ods were—14 infantry divisions (168,000 men) against 40 German divisions (480,000 men) on March 21, reinforced by some eight or 10 more German divisions during the subsequent two days.

Says His Army Saved Britain.

"I cannot speak too highly of the splendid calmness and doggedness with which my fellow countrymen met and fouhgt this storm, and though many laid down their lives, their splendid tenacity saved the British empire and France by permitting the arrival of reserves.

"The corps commander has issued an order thanking all ranks for the fighting spirit they displayed and reminding them that further deeds of gallantry will be required of them in the coming months."

SERVING OF WHITE BREAD ONLY ON REQUEST IS ORDERED

Eating Places Also Forbidden to Allow Customers to Help Selves to Breadstuffs.

Eating establishments of St. Louis are ordered not to serve white bread to patrons except on request, in an order of the St. Louis Food Administration Committee sent out yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce to 28 ward Food Supervisors and 500 deputies.

Order also is made that no bread stuffs be placed on the table where customers may help themselves. Monday and Wednesday are continued as wheatless days, when nothing that has wheat as an ingredient is to be served. Eating establishments are not to buy more than six pounds of wheat flour products for each 90 meals served and are not to serve breadstuffs containing more than two ounces of wheat products to any one customer. Rye and corn bread may be served in four-ounce portions.

LONG-RANGE GUN SHELLED

PARIS, May 4 (By A. P.).—News has just been received from the front that a French gun made a direct hit yesterday on one of the long range German cannon with which Paris is being bombarded, and put it out of action.

SHERMAN ATTACKS POST-DISPATCH FOR WEINSBERG STORY

Illinois Senator Declares Issue Containing the Interview Should Have Been Barred From the Mails.

ARTICLE "SEDITIOUS UTTERANCE," HE SAYS

Senators Join in Debate After Clipping Is Read Into Record of Upper House.

WASHINGTON, May 4 (Special).—Senator Sherman of Illinois read into the record today during the Senate debate on the sedition bill the interview in the Post-Dispatch of April 13 with Dr. Charles H. Weinsberg, president of the Missouri branch of the German-American Alliance in which Dr. Weinsberg predicted that the war would end in six months after German had broken the allied lines and overrun Italy. Dr. Weinsberg since has been indicted.

After the Senator had presented the article the following debate took place:

Mr. Sherman:—I call attention to an article appearing in a Post-Dispatch from St. Louis of date April 13, 1918, in which Charles S. Weinsberg, President of the Missouri branch of the German-American Alliance submits to an interview. He is quite loyal and bought a $1000 Liberty Bond, and in my judgment Postmaster-General Burleson ought to have excluded the whole issue of the Post-Dispatch from the mails of the United States. It is an article that preaches sedition, it is an article that predicts that the Hindenburg drive will break through the lines and go through to the coast, that the allied line will be broken, that Italy will be destroyed by the legions of Germany and that this country will make the best peace it can because Germany will have conquered all Europe and we can get out of it the best way we can; that we are not in it in earnest anyway except possibly to make as good a showing as we can, but that we shall make peace. This whole article is a most seditious article and Mr. Burleson never saw it and we never heard a word from him.

Inquires Into Paper's Politics.

Mr. Lodge—What are the politics of the paper?

Mr. Sherman—It was independent with Democratic leanings.

Mr. Lodge: And has a large circulation?

Mr. Sherman: And has a large circulation in St. Louis and vicinity.

Mr. Lodge: That is not the sort of sedition they are after.

Mr. King: Will the Senator from South Dakota yield to me?

Mr. Sherman: The face (the picture) is almost seditious, Mr. President, if it could be transcribed in the Record.

Mr. Gallniger: It is suspicious to say the least.

Mr. Sherman: It has a pan-Germanic look.

Mr. King: I do not think the Senator from Massachusetts intended that remark of his other than as humorous, because certainly with the effort that has been made in good faith by the Postoffice Department to exclude from the mails treasonable and disloyal publications it could be charged that they have omitted to exclude from the mails a paper of the character referred to if it had been brought to their attention. I have no doubt that if the publication to which the Senator refers contains the statement referred to that publication ought to be ex-

Change in Sunday Selling Price

The price of the Sunday Post-Dispatch will be 5 cents in St. Louis and its suburbs (as at present) and 7 cents elsewhere on and after May 1st. The new price is necessitated by the greatly increased cost of producing the newspaper.

Practically all other well-known American Sunday newspapers have already increased their selling price.

St. Louis Boy Scouts Lead Others With $2,787,500 Bond Sales

ST. LOUIS Boy Scouts up to Friday night had sold more Liberty Loan Bonds than the Boy Scouts of any other city in the United States. They kept at the selling until last midnight, striving to maintain the lead.

Figures compiled to Friday night showed that the Boy Scouts of St. Louis had sold 31,070 bonds for a total of $2,787,850. Scout Commissioner Simmons considers the showing remarkable, inasmuch as the boys were not permitted to start their campaign until a week ago yesterday, when it was supposed that the city had been well combed for small purchasers. The Scouts' subscriptions were mostly in bonds of small denomination. Simmons thinks yesterdays sales will bring the total to $3,500,000.

The St. Louis Boy Scouts were nosed out in total sales by the St. Paul Boy Scouts in the second campaign, but sold about twice as many bonds as the St. Paul Scouts.

NEW RECORD TO BE MADE IN LAUNCHING OF COLLIER TODAY

5500-Ton Steel Vessel to Go Into Water at Camden Built in 27 Days; Was to Be Finished June 15.

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A. P.)—What is declared to be a new world's record for shipbuilding will be established tomorrow in the launching of the 5550-ton steel collier Tuckahoe at the plant of the New York Shipbuilding Co., Camden, N. J., in less than one month from the time the keel was laid.

If the ship goes into the water at 10:30 a. m., as planned, it will mean that in 27 days, two hours and 50 minutes a vessel has been added to the American merchant marine, practically complete in every detail, with only finishing touches needed before she can proceed to sea.

The Tuckahoe was to have been delivered June 15, but will take her place under the flag 41 days ahead of time.

Miss Helen Hurley, daughter of Chairman Hurley of the shipping board, will celebrate her twelfth birthday by christening the Tuckahoe. Hurley and Director General Schwab of the Emergency Fleet Corporation will speak, and a letter from President Wilson will be read.

The Tuckahoe is 330 feet long, 50 feet broad and will have a speed of 10½ knots.

Until the Tuckahoe is put overboard, the Pacific Coast records for building both wood and steel ships will remain unchallenged, of which the best was the launching of the Caponka at Portland, Ore., in 50 days.

BRITISH HAVE GREATEST MINE FIELD EVER LAID IN NORTH SEA

Naval Expert Points Out 121,000 Square Miles Have Been Covered in Extension.

LONDON, May 4 (Special Cable).—Archibald Hurd, naval expert of the Daily Telegraph, points out in that paper today the significance of the British Admiralty's announcement of the extension of the British mine field in the North Sea.

Tre greatest mine field which has ever been laid will exist in the North Sea from May 15 and onward, its base forming the line between Norway and Scotland, and its peak running northward within the arctic circle. The danger area embraces 121,782 square nautical miles.

Nets had not proved successful for stopping submarines, says Hurd, and the best means, as every seaman realized, was to place reliance on mines laid so as to catch the submarine when stealing submerged past patrols. It was one thing to come to that conclusion, but quite another to face the enormous task of creating a barrage across the northern exit of the North Sea. It muts have involved careful thought in preparation of plans, he goes on, and in giving out orders for tens of thousands of mines over an area of 121,000 square miles. That speaks of mines in vast numbers.

Hurd mentions that the scheme was prepared by the Admiralty under Jellicoe's direction, and he estimates the work of laying the barrage must have involved 12 or more months of labor.

AIRPLANE FALLS 2000 FEET

Lieutenant Killed at Florida Training Camp.

ARCADIA, Fla., May 4.—By A. P.).—Lieut. S. T. Valentine of New New York City, attached to the army aviation school near here, was killed instantly today when the airplane in which he was flying fell approximately 2000 feet.

EMPEROR SAID TO HAVE ORDERED ADJOURNMENT

Premier Instructed to Prevent Sittings, Due to Serious Food Shortage, Says Vienna Dispatch.

"ECONOMIC PROBLEM TO BE MET FIRST"

Premier Admits Other Big Problems Exist, Including Agitation for Creation of Southern Slav State.

AMSTERDAM, May 4 (By A. P.).—Emperor Charles of Austria has empowered the Austrian Premier to adjourn Parliament and forthwith institute measures to render impossible the resumption of its activities, a Vienna dispatch says.

A statement published in Vienna indicates that the closure of Parliament is due to the seriousness of the food situation. The statement says:

"The Government will devote its entire strength to the economic problem and will try to create conditions required to enable the population to hold out."

Reasons for Adjournment.

The Weiner Zeitung publishes the following statement of reasons for adjournment of parliament:

"We are in the last decisvie phase of the war. No enemy any longer threatens in the East, but, in firm union with Germany and our other allies, we must force our other opponents also to renounce their hostile intentions. Despite one or two promising tendencies, parliament has been unable to find a stable policy. As things are, the resumption of the sittings of parliament would not facilitate matters, but would only sharpen political antagonism and thereby endanger the fulfillment of those economic tasks on the successful solution of which everything depends.

"Until the reassembly of parliament which will take place at the earliest possible moment, the government will devote its entire strength to the economic problems of the day, especially to the task of arranging for the nation's food supply, and will try in every way to create conditions which are required to enable the population to hold out. At the same time it will zealously endeavor to utilize and develop existing possibilities of an understanding between parties, so that after the reassembly of parliament the country may enjoy a new unhindered constitutional life."

A Vienna dispatch says that the Austrian Premier, Dr. von Seydler, speaking at a conference of party leaders, declared that the serious economic and food conditions made it imperative for the present Government to be spared parliamentary criticism. He therefore demanded that the proposed sittings of Parliament be postponed, adding that unless the party leaders took this step the Government would prevent the sessions forcibly. (Apparently this conference, the date of which is not given, was held before the Emperor acted).

Serious Problems Admitted.

The president of the lower house of Parliament, in reply to the Premier, said that the conditions prevailing in the country and the demand from the larger political parties for resumption of the sittings of Parliament made a further postponement impossible. The leaders of the German party favored postponement, but Dr. Victor Adler, the Socialist leader, and other party representatives, including the Polish group, were opposed. Notwithstanding their protests, the postponement of Parliament was agreed upon.

Premier von Seydler admitted the existence of many problems which must receive consideration, especially the agitation for the creation of a southern Slav state. "However, discussion of this problem is impossible for the present," he said, "because it concerns not only Austria, but also Hungary and Bosnia. But one thing is certain. If such a state were created, it could be only under the sceptre of His Majesty as a com-

AMERICAN RAIDERS WRECK 600 YARDS OF ENEMY TRENCH

Penetrate to the Third Line, but Find No Germans There—Teuton Salient in Lorraine Wiped Out.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 4 (By A. P.)—American troops in the Lorraine sector yesterday morning carried out a raid on the German lines south of Halloville, on a 600-yard front. After an intense but brief artillery preparation, the infantry, accompanied by pioneers, went over the top and penetrated the German positions to the third line. They found not a single German.

The attack was on a German salient. The artillery levelled the German positions and the pioneers finished the job by blowing up all the enemy works, thus eliminating the salient.

A German raid which, it was expected, would be carried out on the sector south of Verdun, failed to materialize.

First Time Americans Operated Under Protection of Our Guns.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, May 4 (By A. P.).—An official note says: "On May 3, 300 American soldiers, after careful artillery preparation, raided the German lines at Dog's Wood in the Lorraine sector, penetrating through the Germans' first, second and third lines.

"The raid constituted the first time that American infantry in this section have operated under the protection of their own artillery."

PRESIDENT BUYS ANOTHER BOND AND RECEIVES BIG OVATION

Subscribes for $500 in Washington Theater and Purchases There Quickly Reach $100,000.

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A. P.).—President Wilson received a great demonstration tonight at a local theater when a four-minute speaker announced that he had bought still another bond, this time one for $500. Last Wednesday when the President agreed to sponsor the "Match the President" movement by buying a $50 bond on the installment plan after previously subscribing for nearly $20,000, it was believed that he had reached his maximum effort.

Tonight a man in the theater audience announced that he would buy a $5000 bond if 10 other persons present would subscribe for one $500 bond each. Eight persons quickly met the challenge, then there was a pause. The President from his box quietly beckoned to an ushed and told him to inform the speaker that he would take one of the bonds. The announcement started a wave of buying that extended even to the chorus, every member of the company purchasing a bond and swelling the night's total at the theater to more than $100,000.

FAMILY AIDS U. S. IN 6 WARS

F. L. Dees, Latest Member to Enlist, Enters Engineers Corps.

When F. Levi Dees, aged 50, enlisted Friday in the Engineers Corps in St. Louis, a record of 140 years was perfected, a member of the Dees family having served in every one of the six wars in which the United States has participated.

His great-grandfather served in the Revolution, furnishing his own rifle, clothing, etc. His father, Justice J. H. Dees of Edwardsville, enlisted for the Civil War at the age of 14.

Levi Dees is an expert engineer, and his age, which in other branches would be considered a drawback, was regarded as an asset. After passing the examination he was shipped to Wilmington, Del.

Loan Breaks Record for All Nations in Number of Buyers

WASHINGTON, May 4.

THE Third Liberty Loan breaks the records for all nations for number of subscribers, with an estimated roll of between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000 bond buyers, but total subscriptions are less than Great Britain's largest war loan, and even of the American Second Liberty Loan. Figures on leading loans of the principal belligerents were given out today by the Treasury as follows:

British Victory loan, early in 1917, 5 per cent; subscriptions, $5,096,254,320.

United States Second Liberty Loan, 4 per cent; subscriptions, $4,616,000,000.

Eighth German war loan, 4½ and 5 per cent; subscriptions, $3,600,000.

French war loan of 1915, 5 per cent; subscriptions, $2,261,864,409.

Austrian seventh war loan, 5 per cent; subscriptions, $1,150,000,000.

Italian fourth war loan, 5 per cent; subscriptions, $1,000,000,000.

Hungary, seventh war loan, 6 per cent; subscriptions, $600,000,000.

Canadian Victory loan, 1917, 5½ per cent; subscriptions, $418,000,000.

CITY TO PAY $185,000 FOR JAMES CAMPBELL PROPERTY

House at Grand and Washington to Be Razed for Washington Avenue Cutoff.

City Comptroller Nolte signed an agreement yesterday with the Keystone Realty and Investment Co. for the payment by the city of $185,000 for the property known as the James Campbell residence at the northeast corner of Grand and Washington avenues. The house is to be razed to make way for the proposed cutoff from East Washington avenue to West Washington avenue, which will eliminate a jog of about 100 feet.

Possession is to be given immediately and the cutoff is expected to be finished this summer. The property fronts 159 feet 10¼ inches on Grand avenue and 159 feet on Washington avenue. The cutoff will start 160 feet east of Grand avenue. The triangle which will be left at the present intersection will be used for parking purposes.

CONCERT BY NAVY BAND

Will Be Given in Municipal Theater in Forest Park.

A band concert will be given this afternoon in the Municipal Theater in Forest Park by the Sixth Regiment Naval Reserve Band of 52 pieces, a detachment of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station Band, which has been in St. Louis for more than a week in connection with the Liberty Loan campaign.

The concert will be divided into two parts, from 2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 4 to 5 p. m.

A silver loving cup will be presented to the band at the concert by the Third Liberty Loan Organization, in appreciation of the band's services in making the campaign a success.

12,000,000 TO 15,000,000 SUBSCRIBERS

With Only Small Part of Saturday's Business Tabulated, Total Reaches $3,203,000,000 With Indication Late Returns Will Go to $4,000,000,000.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT AT HEAD OF LIST

Number of Individual Subscriptions Gratifying—Big Business Men, With Heavy Taxes to Pay, Fail to Make Big Purchases.

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A. P.).—For the third time within a year the American people have heavily over-subscribed a war credit.

As the Third Liberty loan campaign was closing tonight, the treasury announced it had been "an overwhelming success." Although $3,000,000,000 was the formal goal of the campaign, official reports, including only a small proportion of today's avalanche of pledges, showed the total as $3,203,655,400, and there were indications that the aggregate would be increased to nearly $4,000,000,000 next week when banks have time to tabulate the multitude of last-minute applications. The exact result of the campaign probably will not be known until late in the week.

Official estimates placed the number of subscribers at between 12,000,000 and 15,000,000—far above the 10,000,000 of the second loan, or 4,500,000 of the first—and some officials expressed the belief that the roll of bond buyers would be even greater. To them this was one of the most encouraging features of the loan.

All Districts Oversubscribed.

All 12 Federal Reserve Districts, which were the largest campaign units, oversubscribed, and a majority of the States made the same record. Delaware doubled its quota.

Bond selling continued active in many cities up to a late hour tonight and banks stayed open in a final effort to roll up more subscriptions than the $4,616,000,000 of the second Liberty Loan last October. Messages reaching Washington tonight indicated, however, that the big subscriptions from corporations and business interests which were features of the last hours of the second campaign were lacking, owing to the imminence of income and excess profits taxpaying time in June, when more than $2,000,000,000 in war levies will have to be paid to the Government. The success of the campaign, even without big individual subscriptions, demonstrated that the loan was "popular," and that bonds will be widely distributed among all classes and localities of the country.

From early this morning to a late hour tonight, messages to loan headquarters in the Treasury told of energetic campaigning nearly everywhere, and of thousands of belated subscriptions pouring in upon banks faster than they could be counted. Most district organizations this afternoon ceased even trying to keep in touch with the current totals.

"We will continue work up to midnight," said a number of messages.

The headquarters review tonight described the final roundup in New York "as probably the most striking feature of the last day's campaign." Within a few hours $120,000,000 subscriptions were recorded, sending the city and State of New York over their quotas.

The figure of $3,203,655,400 officially recorded by the Treasury covered business up to 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon for all districts, except New York, which reported at 4 o'clock this afternoon and Boston and Philadelphia, which reported at 11 o'clock this morning.

Big Increase Expected.

"It is impossible to estimate the amount of subscriptions taken in the various districts up to the close of business tonight," said the headquarters statement, "but the volume doubtless will show a substantial increase over these latest official figures."

Official figures by districts, incomplete and failing to show the Richmond, Cleveland and Atlanta districts over the top, were announced as follows:

DISTRICT.	Subscription.	Pct.
St. Louis	173,475,500	133
Minneapolis	$140,026,800	133
Kansas City	162,765,300	125
Boston	284,248,900	113
Philadelphia	275,806,500	110
Chicago	471,253,100	110
Dallas	84,242,300	105
San Francisco	214,453,600	10[illegible]
New York	912,500,100	101
Richmond	128,111,950	98
Cleveland	284,732,750	94
Atlanta	72,038,700	80

The Atlanta district, which has been at the bottom of the percentage column since the campaign started, April 6, sent this word tonight.

"Sales reported from all parts of the district indicate that the quota may be exceeded by more than 25 per cent. We believe that practically every county and community will go over the top. Every state has already exceeded its quota."

A 33 per cent over-subscription was hoped for by New England district managers. Every state in the district passed its goal this afternoon The number of individual subscribers up to the opening of business today was 1,089,000.

Celebration in Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia district's success was celebrated tonight in Philadelphia with bands and a chorus of bells and whistles, when the honor flag was hoisted from the Liberty Loan statue at the City Hall.

A telephone message from the Richmond district headquarters tonight said $135,814,000 subscriptions were in hand and $150,000,000 was expected before midnight. Maryland had subscribed $41,000,000 against a quota of $38,000,000, and committees were striving to reach $45,000,000.

On the streets of Washington tonight, bond selling continued actively, though the city had already gone far over its quota. Scores of motor trucks were pressed into service as platforms for speakers and the crowds were canvassed carefully for individuals who had not yet subscribed, or who could "buy another."

$170,321,250 Taken in Kansas City Reserve Ditsrict.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 4 (By A. P.).—With official reports in at the close of business today showing $170,321,250 in Liberty Bonds of the third issue taken in the Tenth Federal Reserve District, it was announced at bond headquarters the district had subscribed 131 per cent of its bond quota. Every state in the district was "over the top", but officials estimated reports of subscriptions yet to come in until May 9 would increase the grand total at least $10,000,000

Topeka, Kas., with a subscription of $2,232,450 was 191.8 subscribed and it was believed stands a good chance of doubling its quota, obtaining a star for its honor flag.

Oversubscription of $10,000,000 in Dallas District.

DALLAS, Tex., May 4 (By A. P.)—Every state in the Eleventh Federal Reserve District was "over the top" today and the district's minimum quota of $80,000,000 had been over-subscribed by $10,653,050, according to the official figures tabulated up to noon.

New York District Passes Quota; May Reach $1,000,000,000.

NEW YORK, May 4 (By A. P.)—With the New York District's minimum quota left far behind and tabulators swamped with a literal flood of eleventh-hour subscriptions, the Federal Reserve Bank announced at 6 o'clock tonight that the official total of Liberty Loan subscriptions at that hour was $926,000,000, with every indication that it would reach $1,000,000,000 when returns for the district were complete.

Wabash Shopmen at Moberly Hold Liberty Bond Parade.

MOBERLY, Mo., May 4 (Special).—Moberly turned out today to witness a parade of the employes of the Wabash shops here, who subscribed more than $100,000 to the Third Liberty Loan. The parade was led by a band and nearly 400 United States regulars.

Xenophon P. Wilfley of St. Louis, newly appointed United Senator from Missouri, and Paul Prosser of Fayette, spoke here last night. It is estimated that Randolph County has oversubscribed her quota by 35 or 40 per cent, while Moberly has exceeded its quota by at least 50 per cent.

16 Missourians in House Match President's $50 Subscription.

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A. P.).—The Missouri delegation in the House today matched President Wilson's $50 subscription to the Third Liberty Loan, each of the 16 Missourians, including Speaker Clark, taking a bond.

CHINAMAN BEATEN BY ROBBERS

East St. Louis Laundry Proprietor Hit on the Head With Hatchet.

One of two robbers who entered the laundry of Hop Lee, 37 years old, at 508 Ohio avenue, East St. Louis, last night, struck Lee on the head with a hatchet which was on the counter, inflicting a fracture of the skull.

The men had left laundry there, marked "E. H. H." One handed Hop the check, and when he turned for the bundle, hit him. They then robbed the cash drawer of $20, but left the laundry.

REPINGTON CRITICISES WAR CABINET OF BRITAIN FOR REDUCING ARMY DIVISIONS

Gaps Not Filled Up and Men Are Insufficiently Trained, He Says—Has Respect for German System.

By LIEUTENANT-COLONEL REPINGTON.

Former Military Critic of the London Times.

(Copyright, 1918, by Press Pub. Co.)

LONDON, May 4.—No fresh move of an important character was reported yesterday afternoon and the Germans were still taking time to recover from the hammering they received on the Meteren-Zillebeke front on April 29. Field Marshal Haig has taken advantage of the lull to give us some more information about the troops of ours which have taken part in the recent actions, and it can be nothing but advantageous that the names of divisions which have done so well should be known.

Although the military staff of a division is created by the value of the regiments and brigades which compose it, it is the divisional unit as a whole which stands out most conspicuously in their great transactions and will forever be associated by the historian in the records of this time.

An army corps and its commander play a large part in battles, but owing to the continued transfer of divisions from one army corps to another it is the division rather than the army corps which creates and maintains fighting traditions. Through one army corps, for example, no fewer than 50 divisions have passed in turn since the beginning of the war and possibly this record is not exceptional. The divisional command in this war is the most important of all.

Division Formerly Stronger.

In the time of Kitchener an infantry division was much stronger than it is now. It had 12 battalions and a pioneer battalion, and its total combatant strength of units, including artillery and service, was very large. Although these strengths were not maintained in 1917, 12 battalions still remained during the campaigns of that year, and it was only for the present campaign that the number of battalions was cut down from 12 to nine. This grave, most unfortunate measure was taken because the War Cabinet wouldn't ask the country for the men necessary to maintain the higher establishment and the most generous excuse we can make for them is that they completely misconceived the situation on the western front, and the whole spirit of German strategy as well.

It was true that both French and German divisions had been reduced. As for the German divisions, battalions withdrawn from them formed the nucleus of fresh divisions, and the total of German divisions grew while our War Cabinet slumbered, dreaming dreams of facile conquests in the East and willfully neglecting the principal theater. It became necessary for lack of men to dock our divisions three battalions each in order to keep those remaining up to strength, and even the home defense force were drawn upon for the same purpose and in a manner which could not be justified.

Policy "Wholly Disastrous."

From a general point of view this policy was, of course, wholly disastrous and we see the consequences now in France and in the huge casualty lists which fill the papers every day. It was at one time imagined, or at least hoped, that the battalions since broken up would become the nucleus of fresh divisions after the German model, but it was soon seen that nothing of the sort was contemplated, and that at the moment when Russia was down and out and when the German divisions had mounted up to 240 or more, we had raised no fresh divisions and had reduced by one-quarter most of those we possessed.

Even the reduced establishments were not filled up. As reporters say after a suicide, "No reason can be assigned for this rash act." Within the division itself there was, of course, much heart burning. A brigade of four battalions can place two in line and two in support, but with only three battalions the proper reliefs cannot so easily be conducted, and some men become overworked. The battalions broken up went to units of which they knew nothing, to serve under officers they had never seen, while the staff and establishments of the division itself became too large for a new divisional unit.

It was at a moment when all these vexatious changes were exercising their most pernicious influence that the decisive battle began. I do not know for what purpose the War Cabinet maintained the old number of divisions, but I think it would have been better to have reduced the number necessary to find the men for drafts and they have distributed the spare divisional trained staffs among the rest.

Proper Relief Not Afforded.

From the time when we first took over the front of the Tenth French Army last year we have never had enough divisions to hold the line and afford our troops proper relief and rest. When, in January, and then again in February this year, we took over more and again more lines with our attenuuated divisions we were asking for trouble and were imposing upon our troops a really excessive strain. We weer about 20 divisions short of the strength which we should have had to hold the lines against the threatened general attack; and when Von Hutier's Thirteenth Army was spatch-cocked into the line facing Gough everyone knew what it meant.

With armies such as we have now it is almost indispensable to give divisions constant training behind the lines and good judges estimate this necessary training at not less than one month out of every three. The Germans trained hard for two months behind their lines for the attack of March 21. I have shown that in the Fifth Army the troops holding the line had not more than seven days for training in the two months preceding the battle.

What has happened since March 21? Here we are at May 4, and I suppose not one additional man has yet been raised let alone trained, as a result of any legislative action of the Government since the battle began. What the War Cabinet has had to do has been to break its engagement to Parliament and send out boys of 18½ years to fight. This forestalling of contingents is the only thing Napoleonic that I have been able to discover about our present War Cabinet, and the instant we get drafts available of the proper age we should arrest this practice, which must eventually give us battalions unfit to compare with the Germans or with those of our dominions in point of physique, keen and brave though our boys are.

VIENNA REPORTS INCREASED ACTIVITY ON ITALIAN FRONT

the battle fronts. The artillery activity was spirited on various sectors throughout the night. In the Kemmel region and on both sides of the Avre it increased this morning to greater intensity.

"A British patrol attack southeast of Arras was repulsed. The artillery activity revived before Verdun.

"After unsuccessful reconnoitering thrusts by the enemy on the Lorraine front, the fighting activity during the forenoon was slight. At Parroy wood and west of Blamont the firing revived during the afternoon, but died down again at nightfall."

The official report from General Headquarters tonight says: "French counter attacks against Kemmel and Bailleul failed under heavy losses."

Italian Dispatches Say Heavy Snows Have Held Up Offensive.

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A P.).—Advices to the Italian Embassy here from Rome today made no mention of the beginning of an Austrian offensive on the Italian front, but said the Austrians, because of the heavy snows, had been obliged to postpone offensive operations.

Gen. Amadasi is quoted as having written from the front that the snow having obstructed the roads the movement of the enemy troops in the mountain zone was very slow and difficult and the offensive against Italy therefore has been postponed.

"The delay caused by the snow and the general atmosphere conditions permits the Italians to complete their defensive works," says the dispatch, "and add to their reserves of guns and ammunition, which are being produced in large quantities in our factories at day and night schedules. The losses in war material suffered by Italy last fall have entirely been replaced and Austria begins to feel that Italy is growing stronger every day and that it is not safe for Austria to bring any assistance to Germany on the western front."

Austrian Emperor and German Representative Go to Front.

AMSTERDAM, May 4 (By A. P.)—A Vienna dispatch today says: "The Emperor yesterday started for the front, accompanied by the chief of staff, Field Marshal Arz von Straussenberg and the German military representative, Major-General Cramon."

Rome Reports Only Intensive Operations in the Air.

ROME, May 4 (By A. P.)—Only desultory artillery fire at various portions of the Austro-Italian front is reported in today's War Office statement. There have been intensive aerial operations, however, and in the air fighting 14 enemy machines were brought down. Raiding operations also have been carried out in numerous sectors.

British Repulse Several Turkish Attacks in Palestine.

LONDON, May 4 (By A. P.).—An official statement on operations in Palestine reads:

"Throughout May 2 the fighting continued east of the Jordan and to the south of Es-Salt. Enemy forces which had crossed the river and had advanced to attack our troops holding the village of Es-Salt were driven back.

"Our air service attacked troops and rolling stock on the Hedjaz Railway in the vicinity of Allan and on the Wadi Sir, north of Es-Salt, with bombs and machine-gun fire. Two of our machines failed to return.

"During the night of May 2 and the morning of May 3 the enemy renewed his attacks on Es-Salt from the northeast and north with considerable re-enforcements. In each case the attacks were repulsed with heavy losses and 314 prisoners remained in our hands."

Postal Receipts Increase.

Postmaster Selph has announced an increase of $136,269.01, or 30 per cent, in St. Louis postal receipts for April. The receipts for April this year were $590,461.47, as compared with $454,192.46 for same month last year.

CITY CANVASSED TILL BEDTIME IN BOND SALE FINISH

Home Guards, Boy Scouts and Other Salesmen Urge Citizens to "Buy Another" and Swell Figures.

COMMITTEE UNABLE TO GIVE THE TOTALS

Big Rush of Eleventh Hour Subscriptions — District Had $176,617,600 or 136 Per Cent on Friday Night.

The Third Liberty Loan campaign ended in St. Louis last night, the last active sales work being that of the Home Guard, Boy Scouts and other salesmen, who canvassed the residence districts until bedtime, urging former purchasers to "buy another bond."

No total for the city was compiled yesterday. The total announced Friday was $39,650,350, and the final rush of subscriptions was such that the banks will probably not be able to report the city's total tomorrow. An approximation of the figures may be reached Tuesday.

The quota of St. Louis, not including St. Louis County, is $39,107,350, and this was passed Thursday afternoon.

Sales in District.

The Eighth (St. Louis) Federal Reserve District total, given out last night, was $176,617,600, from 866,342 subscribers. This total, which is 136 per cent of the district's quota of $130,000,000, will be very greatly increased, it is expected, by the late subscriptions. No further figures will be given out by the district committee, and the announcement of the final total will come through the Federal Reserve Bank, probably several days hence.

Most of the St. Louis banks abandoned their usual Saturday half-holiday, and were open until 6 p. m., and in some cases until 9 p. m., for bond sales and the opening of bond purchase accounts.

Bond and insurance salesmen, who have been selling bonds to corporations and wealthy individuals, completed their work yesterday afternoon by canvassing the fans at the baseball game at American League Park. Last night's totals, which are incomplete, showed that these salesmen have obtained $25,838,600 from 74,781 subscribers. Ten of the teams have obtained subscriptions of more than $1,000,000. Jules F. Valle's team leads with $1,441,950 from 2364 subscribers. L. M. Steinberg's team is second, with $1,434,400 from 5064 subscribers. Julius Reinholdt's team is third, with $1,266,750 from 2012 subscribers. S. L. Morton is fourth, having obtained $1,198,950 from 4120 subscribers.

School Committee Sales.

The Public School committee reported a total, including Friday's figures, of 33,590 subscriptions obtained by school children, aggregating $4,051,000.

The Famous & Barr Co. yesterday added $100,000 to its former subscription of $100,000. The Terminal Railroad Association reported a total subscription of $3,005,000. The Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association placed an additional subscription of $50,000. Julius S. Walsh, chairman of the board of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., made a personal subscription of $50,000. The Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York subscribed $196,500 here.

The Ralston Purina Mills increased their previous subscription to $100,000, besides $35,000 for their employes. William H. Danforth, president of this company, is in Y. M. C. A. service in France.

The Judge & Dolph Drug Co. added $10,000 to its former subscription, making a total of $10,500. Joseph T. Ryerson & Son of Chicago, dealers in old iron, subscribed $50,000 here. The National Enameling and Stamping Co. subscribed $40,000.

The Wabash Railroad placed $400,000 subscriptions of its employes.

Post-Dispatch 100 Per Cent.

The Post-Dispatch is 100 per cent in the bond campaign, all the employes of all departments of the paper having subscribed for bonds. The total placed through the office was $46,000, besides which many of the employes placed their subscriptions throughout outside organizations.

The Chevrolet Motor Co. is 100 per cent, its 254 employes having all subscribed. The Leacock Sporting Goods Co., with 26 employes, is also 100 per cent. Swift & Co., with 1203 employes, reports that all have subscribed. The Stanard-Tilton Milling Co. reports 100 per cent subscriptions.

Edward Benish, president of the Benish Restaurant Co., obtained 267 subscriptions, amounting to $51,050. J. E. Hefter, treasurer of the Central Turnverein, reports $8800 in subscriptions from 110 members, and 16 other members are in the Government service.

Catholic Women's Sales.

The Catholic Women's League reported a total of $1,627,000 subscriptions obtained at its booth in Nugent's store. At a patriotic luncheon for the women workers yesterday, a letter from Secretary McAdoo, thanking the women for their work, was read.

The booth at the Grand-Leader, in charge of Mrs. Henry W. Kiel and Mrs. Herman Spoehrer, sold $156,000, mostly in $50 bonds.

PRESIDENT LIFTS DEATH SENTENCES OF FOUR SOLDIERS

Pardons Two Convicted of Sleeping When on Sentry Duty in France.

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A. P.)—President Wilson's action today in pardoning two soldiers of the American Epeditionary Force who had been condemned to death by a military courtmartial in France for sleeping when on sentry duty, and commuting to nominal prison terms the death sentences imposed on two others for disobeying orders, was viewed by army officials as approval by the President of Secretary Baker's stand against the imposition of the death penalty in the army except in special cases.

Privates Forest D. Sebastin of Eldorado, Ill., and Jeff Cook of Lutie, Ok., were the men pardoned. In reaching his decision the President took into consideration their extreme youth—the former being 20 years old and the latter 19—and concluded that they did not realize the seriousness of their offense and its possible disastrous results upon the unit to which they were attached.

Privates Olon Ledoyen of Atlanta, Ga., and Stanley G. Fishback of Connelton, Ind., were the men convicted of disobeying orders. Their sentence was commuted to three years in the Federal Penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth. Details in these cases have not been made public. Ledoyen and Fishback are 19 years old.

All four of the men were volunteers in the regular army.

"SAVED ONLY WHAT WE HAD ON," SAYS ST. LOUIS ENGINEER

Germans Came So Fast Americans Were Forced to Abandon New Y. M. C. A. Hut.

Charles E. Ricketts, a member of B Company, Twelfth Engineers, has written from France to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ricketts of 5632 Von Versen avenue, telling of the experience of himself and his comrades in the German offensive, which began March 21. The regiment is engaged in operating military railroads near the front. In his letter, dated April 2, he says:

"I wrote you March 18 that we had been moved back about six miles, and that we had just finished building a new Y. M. C. A. hut. When the Germans started their big drive, we, being so near the front, had to vacate our new quarters, and in such a hurry that we did not save anything except what we had on. We lost everything except the most valuable thing of all, our lives. I don't know now when I will be able to take my trip to England, as all furloughs are canceled for the time being. We are very busy now."

BRITISH LOSSES PUT AT 250,000 SINCE DRIVE BEGAN

Estimate Said to Be Remarkable Contrast to German Figures, Described as "Staggering."

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A. P.).—British losses in men killed, wounded, captured and missing on the western front since the German offensive began March 21, are estimated by the British military here at nearly 250,000.

This estimate would appear to be in remarkable contrast to the enormous German losses in the drive. The German War Office, of course, has not disclosed to the world what its losses in the great battle have been, but the estimates of allied observers have placed the loss of German life at a staggering figure.

As examples of what the British have gone through, it is cited that two divisions lost a large percentage of their effectives. The Twenty-fifth, a new division in the fighting between March 22 and 26, lost 4000 men. Put in the fighting again from April 10 to April 19, it lost 5000 more. Despite these losses it was brigaded with the French for a counter attack and still later it beat off four heavy German attacks.

The Twenty-first Division fought continuously from March 21 to March 28 and lost 4000 infantrymen of a total strength of 9000. Later it drove back a German attack in which five German divisions were engaged and increased its losses to 6000.

ST. CHARLES CITY AND COUNTY TAKE $1,000,000 OF BONDS

More Than Double Their Quota for Third Liberty Loan—President Notified of Record.

The Liberty Loan Organization yesterday sent the following telegram, which explains itself, to President Wilson:

"St. Charles city and county of Missouri, population 25,000, 90 per cent of population of German extraction, quota Third Liberty Loan 1872 subscribers, $465,000, greets you and attests its devotion to our glorious country and pledges everlasting loyalty and support to yourself and our Government, with over 6800 subscriptions aggregating over $1,000,000, with reports still coming in."

Lindenwood College, a girls' school in St. Charles County, reported 285 subscribers for a total of $25,000.

The achievement of St. Charles and the county was observed by the ringing of church bells during the afternoon.

Women's Liberty Loan Organization reported sales, up to yesterday, of $9,280,400, from 29,222 subscribers. The women's aid societies of several churches have invested their funds in bonds, the latest such subscribers being the aid societies of Salem M. E. Church, B'Nai El Congregation and University Methodist Church.

LLOYD GEORGE ENTHUSIASTIC OVER THE AMERICAN TROOPS

On Visit to Front He Was Told by French That They Are First Class Fighting Men.

LONDON, May 4 (By A. P.)—Premier Lloyd George, who has returned from his visit to France, in which he attended the sessions of the Supreme War Council and went to the front, spoke enthusiastically today of the American troops.

"A good number are already there," he said. "Many more will pour in steadily during this month. The French who saw their fighting in the battle lower down the line, said they were first-class fighting material, full of courage and resource, and all very keen."

"The Germans have rendered at least two great services to the allied cause," continued the Premier. "They have accelerated the advent of the American troops and they have made unity of command at last a reality. The French and British are fighting in close comradeship, each with full appreciation of the qualities of the other."

"Be of Good Cheer," Army's Message.

"Have you any message to bring from the army to the people?" the Premier was asked. To this he replied:

"The message I bring from the British Army to the people at home is: 'Be of good cheer. We are all right.'"

Of the great battle now going on, the Premier said:

"I saw Gen. Foch, Sir Douglas Haig, Gen. Pershing and other officers of the higher command and they were all very confident I also saw a very large number of regimental officers and soldiers, who had actually been in the fighting line during the last six weeks of very strenuous work, and their confidence also was amazing.

"I met no pacifists, no pessimists, among them. They could not in the least understand the wrangles in certain quarters in England, which seemed to proceed on the assumption that they had been defeated and that the only question of importance was who was to blame.

Enemy Pays Enormous Price.

"Apart from the mishap of the first few days, which they all recognized, they were confident that they were winning and that they were inflicting great losses on the enemy. 'When the enemy get ground,' they said, 'we make them pay an enormous price for it. In these offensives you can always buy land if you are prepared to pay the purchase price But the cost for the Germans is great and is increasing.'

"They were certain that the Germans would soon be sorry they had committed themselves to these attacks, even if they were not already so."

AUSTRIAN EMPEROR ORDERS CLOSURE OF PARLIAMENT

ponent part of the monarchy. It could not include those parts of Austrian territory which border on the Adriatic and are closely connected with districts where the German language is spoken. But national aspirations exist also in these districts, and it is only natural that the national wishes of the south Slavs be duly considered."

During the discussion of revising the constitution on the basis of national autonomy, Von Seydler announced that in Bohemia the Government would speedily issue regulations providing for the appointment of administrators for districts inhabited by distinct nationalities.

Premier Urges Postponement.

Premier von Seydler sounded a warning against inciting nationalities against each other. He then said:

"Our entire military and political situation has reached a climax. The next few months will bring a big decision. I am firmly convinced the decision on the battlefield will be in favor of Austria and her allies.

"Our economic, especially our food, conditions are very serious, but they are not at all desperate. To hold on now to a final happy decision is the vital question for the state. It therefore is necessary that, unhampered by Parliamentary confusion, the Government be left in a position to devote all its strength to these tasks."

The Premier then recommended the postponement of Parliament.

Austria has been deep in difficulties, both political and economic, for more than a year, and it has been an open secret that Emperor Charles was desirous of bringing about peace, his efforts in this direction having occasionally aroused criticism in Berlin.

In the last few months there have been insistent reports that the food situation in Austria is growing desperate. It has been represented that, except for the favored classes, the people were receiving barely more than enough food to avert actual starvation. Owing to the lack of direct communications with Austria, however, it has been impossible to form any estimate as to the gravity of the food crisis.

The political situation also has grown disturbing in the last few months. There have been riots in various parts of the country, and among the Southern Serbs a revolutionary movement has been in progress.

Premier Reported to Have Admitted Inability to Feed People.

LONDON, May 4 (By A. P.)—The straits to which Austria has been driven by the food situation is indicated in a dispatch from Vienna, through Zurich, which says that Dr. von Seydler, the Austrian Premier, has been compelled to admit that Austria is unable to feed the populations of Northern Tyrol and Northern Bohemia and that he has, therefore, consented that the former be attached for provisioning purposes to Bavaria, and the latter to Saxony.

This concession, the dispatch adds, was wrested from him by leaders of the German parties after a conference lasting six hours. The Austrian Government yielded with the greatest reluctance, for the political consequenecs of this concession may be far-reaching. It is pointed out that it will accentuate the feud between the German and non-German races in Austria-Hungary, since both the provinces affected are German-speaking, and will strengthen the agitation for the incorporation of Austria in a German federation.

Resignation of Von Seydler as Austrian Premier Predicted.

LONDON, May 4 (By A. P.).—The Holland News Bureau says, according to the Exchange Telegraph Co., that the resignation of the Austrian Premier, Dr. von Seydler, as soon as the Emperor returns, is unavoidable. It adds that the Parliament majority, consisting of Slavs, Czechs and Poles, has decided not to listen to him as Premier any more.

Charles Acting to Hold Majority in Parliament, View in Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A. P.).—Press dispatches from Amsterdam saying that Emperor Charles was about to prorogue the Austrian Parliament were read with deep interest today by officials here, who had expected some such drastic action since the news leaked out from Vienna of the stormy sessions of the Reichsrath and of the open defiance of the Government by the elements in opposition.

The debates connected with the Brest-Litovsk peace treaty were particularly acrimonious and it appeared that the Government had lost its majority when the Polish delegates, desperately resisting the secession of part of their provinces to Ukrainia, joined with Czechs and Bohemians who had persistently opposed the Government because of the refusal to grant them national unity.

The difficulties in the way of securing sufficient food for the population, the only cause given in the Amsterdam dispatch for the suspension of the Reichsrath have created a critical situation throughout Austria-Hungary, according to advices received here. In the early spring Gen. Hoeffer, the Austrian food controller, declared that 600,000,000 pounds of foodstuffs would have to be obtained somewhere to last until the next harvest. The normal harvest of wheat in the dual monarchy has been reduced from 13,000,000,000 to 8,000,000,000 pounds. through shortage of fertilizers and the wilful action of the Czech peasants who refused to sow and harvest grain.

Famine during the winter was said to have been prevented only by the accession of 50,000 carloads of grain from Rumania, but even this was insufficient, as was evidenced by food riots in Prague, Pilsen, Brun and Vienna. In some of the prison camps of Austria the death rate from starvation was reported to have reached 40 a day.

The separate peace with the Ukraine failed to relieve the situation on account of the difficulties of transportation and the fact that some of the active divisions of the Czech-Slovak troops took along everything they could lay hands on in their retreat.

The opinion here, however, is that the food situation alone could not justify the Government in dissolving Parliament. Czech papers predicted a month ago that the Viennese Government contemplated a dissolution of the Parliament and a return to the absoluteist era which prevailed during the first three years of the war.

Ever since the convocation of the Reichrath a year ago, the Slav deputies have shown decided opposition to the Government's policies, hampering it in increasing the army and raising loans. United action, however, was lacking and the Government was able to retain a majority in Parliament.

Information reaching here now, however, is that the Czech, Jugo-Slav and Polish deputies have formed a compact block to oppose the policies of the Germanic Austrians. The adhesion of the three elements into a cohesive group would give them a majority and fear of this is believed to be the real reason why Emperor Charles has ordered Parliament dissolved.

Berlin Reports Provision on Way to Austria From Ukraine.

LONDON, May 4.—A wireless official message from Berlin says that the organization for the collection and transportation of provisions under the agreement with Ukraine now is in operation. Two million centners of corn and provisions have been secured, and 1200 carloads have passed the border in the last few days.

"The greater part of the first deliveries," says the message, "will be left to Austria-Hungary on account of the food difficulties prevailing."

Austria-Hungary, the message continued, will be able to provide for themselves within a few weeks from the early Hungarian crops. Hence most of the Ukrainian imports in June and July will go to Germany.

BERLIN ACCUSED OF HIDING FACTS IN UKRAINE SITUATION

Reichstag Member, Charging Reports Conflict, Calls on Hertling to Give Out Full Information.

ACTIONS OF GERMAN GENERAL QUESTIONED

Kiev Dispatch Says Revolt Passed Off With Minor Fighting After Cossack Was Proclaimed Hetman.

AMSTERDAM, May 4 (By A. P.).—Dealing with events in the Ukraine at the meeting of the main committee of the German Reichstag Thursday, Friedrich Ebert, vice president of the Social Democratic party, is quoted in a message from Berlin as saying that the official report regarding the actions of Gen. von Eichhorn, the German military commander, did not agree with reports received from other quarters, the publication of which had been stopped by the censor. Herr Ebert and Mathias Erzberger, a clerical leader, demanded that Chancellor von Hertling appear before the committee and give the information desired by the Deputies.

The main committee of the German Reichstag today dealt with events in Ukraine, according to a telegram from Berlin. The president of the committee stated that it also was desirable that information should be given on events in Finland and the status of the negotiations with Holland. Friedrich von Payer, Imperial Vice Chancellor, speaking in behalf of Chancellor von Hertling, made a statement on the Ukraine situation, dealing first with the decree issued by Gen. Herman von Eichhorn, relative to the sowing of crops there; second, the arrest of members of the Ukrainian Government and, third, the overthrow of the Ukrainian Government and the construction of another. An official report will be issued soon.

The main committee resolved that the discussion which followed the Vice Chancellor's statement should be declared confidential.

A telegram from Kiev, by way of Berlin, purported to describe the events attending the overthrow of the Ukrainian Government. It says:

"A meeting of several thousand peasants from the entire Ukraine took place April 29, at which discontent with the entire policy of the Government found expression. The most important of these meetings passed a resolution calling for the overthrow of the Government, the closing of the Central Reds, the cancellation of the constituent assembly convoked for May 12 and the abandonment of land socialization.

"Gen. Skoropauski, the descendant of an old hetman of the Cossack republic, was proclaimed hetman. He immediately proceeded to the square in front of the Sophia Cathedral and was ceremoniously consecrated by the clergy. The Rada, at first weakly protected by Government troops, continued to sit, but it yielded when the troops were persuaded to retire for the sake of avoiding bloodshed.

"Apart from some minor fighting, which claimed a few victims, the revolution passed off outwardly quite undisturbedly. May 1 also passed quietly throughout the Ukraine."

The telegram adds that the arrest of several members of the old Government, recently reported to have been effected by the German military authorities, had nothing to do with the revolution.

Rumania Reported to Have Resumed Peace Negotiations.

AMSTERDAM, May 4 (By A. P.).—The delegates of Rumania and the Central Powers have resumed the peace negotiations, a Bucharest dispatch reports. Several of the outstanding questions have been settled and the conclusion of the negotiations is being approached rapidly.

Fighting Against New Government in Kiev Reported.

LONDON, May 4 (By A. P.).—Telegrams received in Zurich report the continuance of violent fighting in Kiev between partisans of the old Government and those of the new peasant Government, the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Zurich reports.

Only Artillery Fire Reported from French Front.

PARIS, May 4 (By A. P.).—The official statement issued by the War Office tonight reads:

"There is no infantry fighting during the course of the day. There were reciprocal bombardments north and south of the Avre River and also along the Ailette River.

"Eastern theater, May 3.—There were artillery actions west of the Vardar and in the Monastir sector. The enemy attempted a number of raids on the Italian and Serbian fronts, but was everywhere repulsed. In their counter attack the Serbian troops took from the Bulgarians several trench elements near Dobropolje and have held them. British aviators bombarded with success enemy convoys south and east of Seres."

Emmett J. Scott to Speak.

Emmett J. Scott of Washington, a representative of the War Department, will speak Wednesday at 4 p. m. before the Colored Women's Unit, Council of National Defense, at the Central Public Library.

SENATE ADOPTS SEDITION BILL BY VOTE OF 48 TO 26

Conference Report Provides 20 Years' Imprisonment or $10,000 Fine, or Both, for Disloyalty.

HOUSE AGREEMENT EXPECTED IN WEEK

Measure Completes Cycle of Legislation Sought for Dealing With Seditious and Disloyal Utterances.

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A. P.).—Protracted controversy in the Senate over the sedition bill to severely penalize disloyal acts and utterances and interference with Liberty Loan sales and the army draft ended late today in adoption of the conference report on the measure by a vote of 48 to 26. The House is expected to agree to the report next week.

The bill was initiated a year ago and provides maximum penalties of 20 years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine, or both, for a wide variety of disloyal acts. It amends the espionage act and, with the "woman spy" bill recently passed, completes the cycle of legislation urged by the Department of Justice as necessary to clothe the Government with power to deal with sedition and disloyalty and prevent mob violence which has resulted from the department's inability to secure convictions of persons making disloyal utterances.

That the legislation is unnecessary, unconstitutional, too drastic and confers too wide discretion upon administrative officials have been the principal arguments of those opposing it.

Reed Against Measure.

The final vote today was along nonpartisan lines, many Republicans joining the majority of the Democrats in supporting the legislation. Two Democrats, Senators Hardwick of Georgia and Reed of Missouri, joined with 24 Republicans in opposition. The vote follows:

For adoption: Democrats—Ashurst, Bankhead, Beckham, Chamberlain, Culberson, Fletcher, Gerry, Guion, Henderson, Hitchcock, Hollis, Jones (New Mexico), King, Kirby, Lewis, McKellar, Myers, Overman, Owen, Phelan, Pittman, Pomerene, Ransdell, Saulsbury, Shafroth, Sheppard, Shields, Simmons, Smith (Georgia), Smith (Maryland), Smith (South Carolina), Swanson, Thompson, Tillman, Trammell, Underwood, Walsh and Williams. Total 38.

Republicans—Colt, Fall, Jones of Washington, Lenroot, McCumber, McLean, Nelson, Poindexter, Sterling and Warren. Total 10.

Total for, 48.

Against adoption: Democrats—Hardwick and Reed. Total 2.

Republicans—Borah, Brandegee, Calder, Curtis, Dillingham, France, Gallinger, Gronna, Hale, Harding, Johnson (California), Kenyon, Knox, Lodge, McNary, New, Norris, Page, Sherman, Smoot, Sutherland, Wadsworth, Watson and Weeks. Total 24.

Total against, 26.

As redrafted by the conferees, the bill's penalties apply during the war to persons willfully uttering "disloyal, profane, scurrilous or abusive language about the form of Government of the United States, the Constitution, military or naval forces; the flag or uniform of the United States, or any language intended to bring the form of government of the United States, the Constitution, the military or naval forces, the flag or uniform of the United States, into contempt, scorn, contumely or disrepute."

Wide Power for Postmasters.

It also penalizes language "intended to incite, provoke or encourage resistance of the United States, or promote the cause of its enemies," and willful display of the flag of any enemy nation.

Another important provision would punish statements designed to curtail production of war necessities, or the teaching or advocacy of any of the prohibited acts in the measure, while another provision makes the penalties apply to those "who, by word or act, support or favor the cause of any country with which the United States is at war, or by word or act oppose the cause of the United States therein."

Another section of the bill, which was the most vigorously attacked in the Senate, provides that, if the Postmaster-General deems any mail violative of the espionage laws as amended by the bill, he may withhold it from addresses. Another clause provides for dismissal of Federal employes committing any disloyal act or uttering disloyal remarks.

One of the chief controversies in the Senate was over elimination by the conferees of the France amendment, providing that the bill should not apply to truthful statements made with good motives—the general libel law.

Senator France of Maryland, its author, and Senator Johnson of California, led the fight to retain the amendment, declaring it would preserve constitutional liberty of speech and the press. It was opposed by the Department of Justice, however, as a burden in securing convictions.

$400 for a Ham in Germany.

ZURICH, May 4.—A German woman who is spending her honeymoon at Zurich asserts that a ham, which her father purchased from a farm near Stuttgart for the wedding feast, cost $200. In Vienna chickens cost $25 each and lamb $3.25 per pound.

SHERMAN ASSAILS POST-DISPATCH FOR WEINSBERG STORY

cluded from the mails, and I am advised that this man has been indicted. I hope he will be sent to the penitentiary to demonstrate that he has put into the mails publications of that character. I have no doubt that Postmaster-General Burleson, as soon as his attention is called to the fact, will see that publication shall be excluded from the mails.

Mr. Sherman: Mr. President, the paper is owned by the same estate, by the same person—the New York World, Mr. Pulitzer's paper; it was the St. Louis end of it. I am astonished that a paper of that prominence and with a managerial staff of that kind will present an article of this kind.

It directly tends to discourage enlistments, to cast doubts upon the justice of our cause by the soldiers that are now in the service. I cannot think of a more damaging article that may appear in a camp than that kind of article.

Mr. King: Mr. President—I entirely agree with my distinguished friend from Illinois (Mr. Sherman). I think he and I agree as to the causes, which have brought this great country into this difficult conflict, and we agree that we must prosecute this war until Prussian autocracy is brought to its knees. This little world of ours, big as it is, is not big enough for American democracy and Prussian autocracy. This battle will go on until Prussian autocracy is destroyed and if any American newspaper man publishes articles of that character he ought to be put in the penitentiary and the punishment ought to be more severe than that which is prescribed in this bill.

Not Excluded From Mails.

Mr. Sherman: If a publication of that character can escape attention, with the vigilant scrutiny of the department to get the smallest and most inconsequent papers that falls under its ban, it creates in my mind doubt about the wisdom of a law that will permit such a widespread discussion as is contained in certain features of this bill.

Mr. King asked if the Post-Dispatch had been excluded from the mails.

Mr. Sherman answered, "No, it has not; it is still coming to Washington; the daily issues of it are."

Senator Sherman's remarks, which show misapprehension of the purpose of the Post-Dispatch in printing the Weinsberg interview, are discussed on the editorial page of this issue.

U. S. ATTORNEY SAYS THAT POST-DISPATCH PERFORMED SERVICE

Dr. Weinsberg's Remarks Put Under Head of German Propaganda by Aonther Official.

Benjamin L. White, Assistant United States District Attorney, who issued the warrant for Dr. Weinsberg's arrest and who directed the Federal grand jury in the inquiry which led to the indictment of Dr. Weinsberg, said last night that, in his belief, the Post-Dispatch performed a public service by printing the Weinsberg interview.

"Newspaper publicity," he said, "is our chief means of information as to the places where sedition exists. If I had considered that the Post-Dispatch, in printing the Weinsberg interview, was trying to spread disloyalty, I would not have hesitated to act against the paper as well as against Dr. Weinsberg. But I did not take that view, and I do not take that view now. I think the paper performed a public service, and I agree with the statement which was made in the Post-Dispatch this afternoon, as to its purpose in printing the interview."

Walter N. Davis, Assistant United States District Attorney, who handled the Government's case in the preliminary hearing of Dr. Weinsberg, also expressed approval of this paper's action in printing the interview. He said:

"I consider that it is right for the Post-Dispatch or any other newspaper to expose German propaganda, and let the people know what is being said and done in the interest of Germany. I consider Dr. Weinsberg's statement as coming under the head of German propaganda. The best way to deal with such utterances is through publicity.

"I have heard just one person express the opinion that the Post-Dispatch should not have printed the Weinsberg interview. I have heard any number of persons say that the matter should have been printed, and that is my own view.

"Our newspapers generally have given full publicity to German propaganda utterances. They have done this, not to aid in disseminating these ideas, but for the purpose of showing what forces and influences are at work in the interest of Germany."

Dr. Weinsberg Gives Bond of $3000, Following Indictment.

Dr. Weinsberg, who lives at 2805 Lafayette avenue, gave bond yesterday in the sum of $3000, following his indictment on a charge of violating the espionage act. The indictments charge that he attempted to cause disloyalty, insubordination and refusal of duty in the military and naval forces of the United States.

Edward Devoy, coal dealer, is Dr. Weinsberg's bondsman, as he has been since the day after the physician's arrest.

EMISSARY OF GERMANY'S NEW PEACE MOVE IN ENGLAND

"Great Britain Not to Be Duped Like Bolsheviki and Ukrainians," Says Daily Mail.

LONDON, May 4 (By A. P.).—An emissary of Germany's new peace offensive already is in England. According to the Central News he is a Dutch financier. Another agent, the agency says, is believed to be on the way.

The Daily Mail says: "The irruption of amiable neutrals into England, including the arrival of a pro-German friend of the German Foreign Secretary, Dr. von Kuehlmann, already has begun. These neutral emissaries should save themselves trouble and some personal danger if they would recognize clearly that Great Britain is not to be duped like the Bolsheviki and Ukrainian dupes.

"There is no doubt that the present peace offensive is inspired largely by Albert Ballin (director of the Hamburg-American Line) and other shipping magnates, who foresee that a determined Entente can easily cut them off for many years from all markets of the world."

Y. M. C. A. Reunion Dinner.

The Y. M. C. A. will celebrate the twentieth anniversary of its commercial law department with a reunion dinner at 6:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Mercantile Club. It will also be a farewell testimonial to Judge Shepard Barclay, the class lecturer, who has resigned.

FLYERS FIND GOOD LANDING PLACE AT COUNTRY CLUB

Scott Field Aviators Furnish Diversion for Crowd at Opening of Organization's Season.

THRILLING FEATS PERFORMED IN AIR

Many Practice Flights From Belleville Probably Will Be Seen in St. Louis This Summer.

In two test flights over St. Louis County yesterday and Friday, looking for landing places, army aviators from Scott Field found that the polo grounds at the new St. Louis Country Club furnished an excellent landing place, and as a result airplanes piloted by students probably will be seen frequently over St. Louis and the county through the summer training season. Last summer most of the practice flights were made to Illinois points.

The flight yesterday afternoon, in a two-seater biplane, piloted by Lieut. Charles M. Moon and carrying Lieut. Thomas C. Tonkin as a passenger, provided a treat for members of the Country Club and their guests, many of whom were assembled there for the opening of the spring season.

Lieut. Moon made a flight alone Friday afternoon, landing on the club grounds. Residents in the county were almost the only observers of this flight, as there were few persons at the club.

The flyers arrived over the club grounds at 5 p. m. yesterday. They gave a thrilling exhibition of aerial maneuvers at an altitude of 4500 feet, going through spirals, dips, banks, sharp turns and Immelmann turns. Then they landed on the club grounds and men and women grouped around them, eagerly asking questions and admiring the machine.

Twenty minutes later Lieut. Tonkin took the pilot's seat and started the machine back toward Belleville, Lieut. Moon having decided to stay over at the club. Before leaving the grounds Lieut. Tonkin executed more spectacular maneuvers, circling above the American flag in front of the clubhouse, while the orchestra played "The Star Spangled Banner."

The aviators were 30 minutes flying from Scott Field to the club grounds, a distance of about 35 miles.

MISSOURI LAWYERS ARE URGED TO SPEND SUMMER ON FARMS

The lawyers of St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and Springfield, who don't usually do much professional work during the hot season, are being urged by the State Bar Association to take a vacation this summer and spend it helping harvest wheat on the farms of Missouri and Kansas. A statement by James C. Jones, of St. Louis, president of the Bar Association, in the Bar Bulletin for May, says:

"The Kansas City lawyers have responded splendidly. Judge John F. Phillips, retired from the United States District Court, says: 'Furnish me a seat on a reaper and I will drive the reaper.' Judge John Kennish, ex-member of the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri, states that he has already arranged to offer his services for harvesting crops to a relative farmer of his. Cyrus Crane, of the firm of Lathrop, Morrow, Fox & Moore, has agreed to take charge of Douglas County, Kan. A. R. Lyon, R. F. Porter and L. E. Wyne, all past 50 years of age, are going to the wheat fields."

In connection with the statement is printed a blank form upon which lawyers, living outside the cities mentioned are asked to report to President Jones the number of lawyers they can place on farms "where they will get clean beds and good food," and what wages they will receive.

HOW IS HOME WITH HOPE OF PEACE BY SUMMER

"Millionaire Hobo" Backer of Migratory Workers of the World Meets His Field Workers.

HAS SPENT YEAR IN SCANDINAVIA

Says Masses in Central Empires Are Tired and He Looks for Revolt in Austria About Harvest Time.

James Eads How, who for nearly a year has been conducting a peace offensive in Scandanavian countries, with Stockholm as his base, arrived home yesterday with his mind brimming over with the possibility that the Migratory Workers of the World could find a way this summer to negotiate a peace satisfactory to both the allies and the Central Powers.

With this thought uppermost in mind, How hastened from the train to the law offices of his attorney, former Judge Jesse McDonald, in the Third National Bank Building, where by prearrangement, the field forces of the International Brotherhood Welfare Association, Migratory Workers of the World, of which How is the founder and financial angel, had gathered to attend what their chief termed "a very important conference on current conditions."

How, who is affectionately known to thousands of homeless men whom he has befriended as the "Millionaire Hobo", is the actaul inheritor of a quarter of a million dollars from the estate of his mother, Mrs Eliza A. How, who died in March 1915 at her home, 5115 Lindell boulevard. Former Judge McDonald is executor of How's inheritance, one-half of which is in trust. He was out of town when How's followers met at his office.

"Chief" is "Outdressed."

Oddly the field workers were much better dressed than their financial backer, who wore his now-famous celluloid collar, shining brightly despite the ravages of travel; a very soiled cream-colored shirt to which were attached badly frayed soft cuffs, and a suit of dark material which had all the earmarks of hard international travel. How's beard was still in evidence and his hair apparently had not been in contact with barber's shears for considerable time.

Although the conference was called for 4 p. m., and a formidable pile of correspondence was before the meeting on a long table, How delayed the transactions for 45 minutes while he talked to a Post-Dispatch reporter about his year's stay abroad.

Teuton Masses Want Peace.

"The possibilities for peace are very good in Europe now," How enthusiastically remarked. "The masses of the people in Austria-Hungary and Germany are dead tired of war and are in a receptive mood for any kind of a settlement which will restore order. Of course they are held down rigidly by their rulers, who want the war to go on so that their own ends can be furthered, but I look for an uprising in Austria-Hungary this summer, probably around harvest time.

"It will gain so much headway that its force will be irresistible and it will sweep through Germany, where the people are in a very unsettled state and need very little encouragement to revolt. I think this is the war peace that will come.

"Bit Off Too Big a Chew."

"Germany, in the language of the hobo, has bitten off more than she can chew. She can't successfully take care of the new territory which she has acquired and revolution will come sure, and when it does, it will spread to all sections of dual empire, and throughout Germany.

"But I think a satisfactory basis for peace could be reached if all sides could get together. There really isn't much to be settled when we get right down to it. It is true that Germany has invaded and held much allied territory, but on the other hand she has lost all of her colonies and will soon realize the futility of trying to hold that which she took by force. I think she will soon be ready to make peace favorable to the allies.

"I am going to see if we can't get a big conference of workers in this country and try and reach some satisfactory basis. I think it's possible. It really isn't as hard as it looks. This money problem can be settled in some way, each country for itself. I can't tell you just now how this thing could be done, but it can be done all right."

Defends Peace Congress.

How then launched into a defense of the projected Socialistic peace conference called for last May in Stockholm, but which was never held because of the refusal of allied Governments to issue passports to delegates. How, it was officially announced in Washington, was the only American who reached Stockholm for the meeting. The American Socialist party elected Victor Berger and Morris Hillquit as delegates but the Government refused to issue passports. It was further announced in Washington at the time that any American taking part in the conference would be subject to a penalty of three years' imprisonment and $5000 fine.

"That wasn't intended to be a pro-German conference," How explained. "That is, as far as I could see, it wasn't. Why, the president of the meeting, Dr. Branting, a Swedish Socialist Democrat, was a rabid pro-ally, as were many other delegates who gathered. Great Britain, Italy and France would not enter the conference, so it was never really held. But we all discussed the situation and it wasn't pro-German. We wanted to end the war on a fair basis so that the workers would get the benefit of the settlement.

Questioned in New York.

"When I got back to New York the other day, the American officials tried to get me to say I had attended a conference to discuss peace. I said to them: 'Gentlemen, there was no peace conference, as far as I know.' So they let me go, but I knew they wanted me to say I had talked a peace favorable to Germany."

"We wanted to bring about a people's peace and disarmament This fall in Switzerland there will probably be another attempt made to hold the meeting, and I think if all the courtries are represented we can reach a satisfactory basis for peace.

"Why, do you know that one member of the Geramn Reichstag, who came to Stockholm to attend the conference, told us he was going back to the German parliament and start a revolution right in the legislative halls. He said that the German people wanted peace and the only way they would get it would be by a revolution. I think he's in jail now. That's what usually happens to anyone in Germany who talks that way now.

"'Bolsheviki' in Germany."

"The left minority socialists in Germany are real Bolsheviki and are solid for peace. They are composed of members who broke away from the old socialist party."

How said that when the conference failed to materialize he decided he wanted to stay in Scandinavian countries and tell them about the United States and further his peace efforts. "The Government authorities were of another mind, though," How continued, "but after some persuasion they consented to let me remain, provided I reported to the police each month, giving an outline of what I had said in all of my public talks. So I made my headquarters in Stockholm and spoke at many meetings of the workers in Sweden.

"What did I talk about? Well, I told them about the United States and I preached revolution without bloodshed. Many asked how this could be brought about, and I always pointed to Russia as an example. Right here I want to say that the masses of Sweden and Norway are pro-ally, but the wealthier classes are for Germany because they have traded almost exclusively with her."

While in Stockholm, How established the Swedish-American branch of the International Brotherhood Welfare Association, with several hundred charter members. "The branch was running smoothly when I left," said How, "and they had a charter and everything.

"The people there are suffering nearly as much as those in the belligerent countries. The workers are partly starved, so scarce is the food, and there is little bread and no coffee. Prices are exorbitant. But suffering is intense throughout Europe. Why, the babies born in Austria these days have virtually no finger nails because the mothers for several years have been unable to get mineral salts in food commodities.

"Along this line it is interesting to know that some of the biggest physicians of the neutral countries are planning an appeal to the warring nations to stop the killing of men in the interest of future generations. This will be done very soon, I learned.

Barred From England.

"I wanted to go to England, but English officials in Sweden politely but firmly told me that only those who had military business to transact could travel to England.

"This was just after the recent offensive of the Germans," How added, "so I guess they were pretty nervous about anyone getting into the country. I wanted to go to Russia also, but I knew the White Guards in Finland would have locked me up because I am in sympathy with the Red Guards. The White Guards are helping the Germans, you know."

How told an amusing incident about John Reed, Socialist author, who returned to the United States on the same ship with him. Reed is under indictment on a charge of conspiracy to violate the espionage law.

"Reed is writing a book on the Bolsheviki movement," How related, "and had five trunks full of Bolsheviki literature with him. When English officers searched the ship at Halifax, they found the literature and were dumfounded. 'My word, this is awful,' one of them said. They conferred and decided that such inflammable matter as that could not be passed and were about to confiscate the trunks when Reed appeared with a letter written and signed by David R. Francis, our Ambassador to Russia, which read: Kindly let Mr. Reed take his literature through.'

"The amazement of the officials increased and one asked: 'What can we do?' The other replied: 'Why, there's nothing to do but pass it.' So it was passed and as far as I know is safely in the hands of Jack Reed, although American officials took charge of Reed's effects, including the trunks.

How himself "is traveling light," all of his baggage having been held for investigation by the naval intelligence officials at New York. He regarded the matter lightly when asked about it and said it was "a mere formality" and he would get his baggage in a short while.

How Travels Light.

Among How's effects was a dilapidated wicker suit case in which there was an extra coat but no trousers, some medical books in German, a nut cracker, a box of shoe blacking and a hypodermic needle, much the worse for wear. "You know I am a graduate physician and licensed to practice medicine," How said in explaining the presence of the needle. "I find that a hypodermic needle is a handy thing to have in case of illness. I used it on a woman coming over."

How will "go out on the road" soon and tour the large cities and confer with the Migratory Workers of the World. He will speak to the local members of the Brotherhood Welfare Association at a meeting at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, 617 Elm street.

Yeatman Student, 17, Is Killed in France

Oscar Pflasterer Enlisted, Despite Strenuous Opposition—Is Third St. Louis Casualty Reported in 24 Hours.

Oscar Pflasterer, 17 years old, of 3836 North Twenty-fifth street, who enlisted in the army May 14 in the face of strenuous opposition from his father, Henry Pflasterer, was killed in action in France April 27. Notification was received by his father yesterday from the War Department. He was wounded near Toul March 1, with other St. Louisans, but recovered and rejoined his unit. He was a member of E Battery, Sixth Field Artillery, which was recruited to war strength from Jefferson Barracks.

He was the third St. Louisan reported killed in France within 24 hours. The others were Kenneth M. Copley, 26, 827 Newport avenue, Webster Groves, killed accidentally in the air service April 29, and Corporal Fred C. Carter, 28, of 3859 McRee avenue, who died of wounds. Carter also was reported slightly wounded March 1. Private Alfred B. Clark, 170 St. George street, has been reported severely wounded in recent fighting.

Junior at Yeatman.

Pflasterer was a student in the third year at Yeatman High School when he enlisted. His father visited him at Jefferson Barracks, and threatened to disclose his real age to recruiting officers. Oscar replied that if he did he would run away from home and enlist again. He was an only son.

The death of John B. Wiseman, of Jerseyville, Ill., in the Canadian overseas forces, and the wounding of Clyde L. Jones, son of Mrs. Anna Jones, of Belleville, were reported Friday. Wiseman was 26 years old, and enlisted three years ago. Jones was injured April 7 by a shell explosion.

Copley Was Married.

Copley was married nine months ago to Miss Grace Frame, a domestic science teacher of Chicago. He enlisted there May 28. He formerly worked at the Maloney Electric Co here. Recently he wrote his parents that he had qualified for a Lieutenant's commission as an aviator.

Carter was a son of Mrs. Emma Carter, who has not seen him since he enlisted four years ago. He served in the Philippines, and was with Pershing's expedition into Mexico.

QUEEN REVIEWS WOMEN'S CORPS

Inspects Parade of Reserve Ambulance, a Green Cross Organization.

LONDON, May 4.—Queen Mary recently inspected a parade of the Women's Reserve Ambulance, organized by the Green Cross Society.

The women, smart in khaki uniform, brown leather belts and slouch hats, were drawn up in line formation. The total parade accounted for 14 officers, 50 noncommissioned officers and 518 privates.

The Queen said she considered the work of the corps eminently practical, and was glad to hear it was the intention of the organization to continue to do some form of national service after the war.

CORRESPONDENT IS DECORATED

Robert Berry of Associated Press Gets Cross of Legion of Honor.

PARIS, May 4 (By A. P.).—Robert Berry, who for two years has been correspondent of the Associated Press at the French army headquarters, has been decorated on the battlefield with the Cross of the Legion of Honor by Gen. Anthoine, acting on behalf of the Commander in Chief, Gen. Petain, whose urgent duties prevented him from bestowing the decoration in person. Two other American and four British correspondents also were decorated. Gen. Anthoine spoke of the invaluable work of the American and British press and said the decorations were awarded as coming from soldiers for soldiers.

WEATHER BIRD AT EXHIBITION

The Post-Dispatch Weather Bird, bearing a sign reading, "I've bought my Liberty Bond. Have you?" was one of the figures in the Immortality parade Friday night at the Household Show, in the Exhibit Building, which closed last night.

Music and dancing were the principal entertainment features at the closing session last night.

NEGROES PREFER WHITE CHURCHES, ARCHBISHOP SAYS

Head of Diocese Discusses Demand of Colored People That Father Walsh Be "Unfrocked."

HE TOLD THEM THEY WERE UNWELCOME

Catholic Church Makes No Distinctions, but It Is "Impossible to Overcome Prejudices."

Archbishop Glennon last night gave to a Post-Dispatch reporter some interesting observations on a problem brought up by a demand of a negro organization that the Rev. Father T. J. Walsh, pastor of St. Anns-Catholic Church at Page boulevard and Whittier street, be "unfrocked" because he had announced from his chancel that negroes were unwelcome in his congregation.

"We have a church for the colored at Twenty-seventh and Pine streets, together with a school and an orphanage," the Archbishop said. "But the colored folks don't care much for their own church. They would rather mix in the white congregations.

"The theology of the Catholic Church makes no distinctions as to color. Yet present conditions in St. Louis are such that a prejudice we cannot well obliterate exists. I am sure no Protestant white congregations admit colored people to their services.

"The colored people seem to think that Catholic theology guarantees them a right to live and associate and marry and carry on a basis of social equality. It is impossible to overcome prejudices that have long existed.

Called On by Delegation.

"At the time the segregation law was up before the voters of St. Louis, a delegation of colored people called upon me and told me that if I opposed the passage of that law, there undoubtedly would be an agreement that certain districts would be reserved for white persons and certain districts reserved for colored people. Now that that law has been declared unconstitutional, they seem to have forgotten that gentlemen's agreement. I took no part in the segregation election.

"I shall look over the document that reached me in the mail today. I do not know the parties making it and if it should occur to me to make reply I should not know to whom to address the reply.

"Anyway, it is not a very tense situation, not as bad as that in France."

The incident that prompted the letter, which was made public by the negroes and which was signed "Executive Committee, St. Louis Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People," occurred on April 21, as was told exclusively in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch.

Protest of Father Walsh.

Father Walsh, protesting against the movement of three negro families into a house at 4233 Cook avenue, a block hitherto populated by white families, declared in his sermon that "negroes were hovering over white people like airplanes over a battlefield."

He urged that his congregation combat their coming and then said that any negroes in his congregation should in the future stay away.

Told of the complaint lodged with the Archbishop, Father Walsh last night laughed heartily and said:

"I'll sit tight."

"But I deny strongly the implication that I am the aggressor in this matter," the priest added. "The real estate profiteers who are moving negro families into this neighborhood, with a view of forcing down values and then seizing the property below its worth, stir my indignation. In view of the conditions and the resentment that has been stirred in my parish, I thought and still think that negroes should not be in my congregation.

"When two fighters are still mad, you wouldn't ask them to kneel at the same bench, would you?"

1025 LOCOMOTIVES ORDERED

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A. P.).—Contracts for 1025 freight and passenger locomotives, the largest single order ever placed in the history of American railways, have been let by the railroad administration to the American Locomotive Co. and the Baldwin Locomotive Works. The entire order represents a cost of about $60,000,000, or an average price of a little less than $60,000 for each locomotive. The profit to manufacturers, who will divide the work about equally, will be betwen five and six per cent, less than half the rate of profit represented in the original bids.

Deliveries will begin in July. The engines will bear only the initials "U. S." and identifying numbers and will be virtually the first lot of engines to be owned jointly by all railroads under Government management. About 200,000 tons of steel will be required and the War Industries Board has allotted the full quota of steel to the railroad administration.

Used cars and auto accessories are being sold through Post-Dispatch Wants.

BOND QUOTA OF ST. LOUIS COUNTY ABOUT DOUBLED

Subscriptions of More Than $1,400,000 Reported, Breaking Record in Other Loans.

AROUND $300,000 STILL TO COME IN

Mass Meetings in School Houses Provided Unique and Profitable Feature of Campaign.

Subscriptions to the Third Liberty Loan in St. Louis County up to the close of the campaign last night indicated the county had broken its previous record in the first and second loans by oversubscribing its quota of $710,000 by 100 per cent, with bond purchases totaling more than $1,400,000.

W. M. Wright, director of sales of the County Liberty Loan Organization, said that unreported subscriptions amounting to approximately $300,000 are expected to further increase the caunty's total by tomorrow. The county, which is part of the St. Louis metropolitan division, "went over the top" more than a week ago.

A feature of the county campaign was the mass meetings held by Liberty Loan officials in school houses in the rural districts. The attendance of farmers at these meetings was large, and heavy bond purchases were made. At one meeting $18,000 worth of honds were bought by the farmers, a majority of whom paid cash.

Few of the sales in the rural districts were made on the installment plan, Wright said. In many instances salesmen returned from patriotic meetings with cash given by the purchasers in payment for their bonds.

The county was divided into 10 districts in order to facilitate the handling of the campaign. More than 470 salesmen were employed constantly in canvassing these districts. They even canvassed men at work in the fields. An organization of women, who made a house-to-house canvass of the county, confining their solicitations to women, obtained 2345 subscriptions totaling $293,000.

Wright gave as an example of the manner in which the county subdivisions responded to the campaign the record of Overland Park, which, with a quota of only $3600, subscribed for more than $41,000 of the bonds.

Metal flags without the red stripes, were installed throughout the county and as the loan progressed the stripes we erpainted on according to the amount of subscriptions obtained in each district.

TWO MEN ARRESTING WHEN CARTING 3 BARRELS OF WHISKY

COLUMBUS, Ind., May 4.—Three barrels of whisky recently bought in Kentucky and valued at $936 are held by Stanley J. Cooper, Chief of Police in Columbus, while Tony Notter and Thomas Flaherty, both of Indianapolis, are in the Bartholomew County Jail waiting for money with which to pay fines for intoxication. Flaherty is a former saloon keeper.

Notter, Flaherty and Joseph Clark, also of Indianapolis, arrived early in the morning with a big truck owned by Notter. George Smitha, night police Captain, and Ralph Yeley, patrolman, asked Notter where he was going with the truck. "Who wants to know?" asked Notter.

The three men were arrested and Smitha found the whisky under some old carpet and burlap. The men were locked up, and in city court Notter and Flaherty entered pleas of guilty to charges of intoxication. Clark's connection with the affair was shown to be that of an employe of Notter's. He was released.

Charges under the new prohibition law of transporting liquor into a "dry" state have been filed against Notter and Flaherty.

"FIGHT GERMANS, NOT YOUR WIFE," COURT TELLS PRISONER

Arthur Kirchner Gets Six Months Probationary Sentence in Which to Think Matter Over.

NEW YORK, May 4.—A man who fights a woman instead of the Germans is a coward, Magistrate Kochendorfer of Long Island City told Arthur Kirchner. Kirchner's wife summoned him into court on a charge of nonsupport. She alleged that he neglected her and their 4-year-old daughter to provide for his parents.

When she complained, she said, he threatened to kill her.

"If you want to do any fighting," the Magistrate said, "shoulder a gun and get into the fighting for Uncle Sam. Don't fight with a woman behind closed doors. If you do, you are a coward."

Kirchner was placed on six months' probation and ordered to provide for his wife and child before his parents. Kirchner is a real estate man.

HOW AMERICANS AT SEICHEPREY WON THEIR HONORS

List Containing 31 Names Tells of Heroic Acts Recognized by French Army.

By THOMAS MARVIN JOHNSON,
(A Special Correspondent of the (Post-Dispatch.)
(Copyright, 1918.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, May 4.—An echo of the fight at Seicheprey that will be heard throughout New England is contained in the list of official commendations just issued of the officers and men who distinguished themselves for gallant conduct in that engagement. The list contains the names of 31 Americans. Col. Bertran of the French Army, who had command of the ambulances taking away the wounded, also is commended.

Of the 31 American, a majority are from Massachusetts and Connecticut and of these, at the head of the list stands the name of Sergt. G. K. Broadhead, who though wounded remained at his gun until finally killed. Next comes the name of Chaplain W. U. Farrell, who ministered to the wounded under fire and carried ammunition to the guns.

Four signal men are mentioned—Sergt. Robert Dundas and Privates Herbert Liming, Ralph Whitin and Parker Polson. These men picked up rifles and fought with the infantry and killed several Germans.

In addition, Poulson distinguished himself by three times climbing a 30-foot tree under heavy fire to repair a broken wire.

Lieuts. Joseph Davis and Randall Wheat kept guns, of which they were in command, in action despite the casualties among the gun crews, which were heavy. Andrew Thompson and Daniel Willard Jr. displayed coolness in manning their guns for five hours under terrific shell fire. Lieut. Theodore Johnson was wounded, but remained in command of his battery for 24 hours. Corp. (name not intelligible in the cable), led a patrol that attacked a German force outnumbering it ten to one, but drove the force out of Seicheprey, taking three prisoners.

Following are the other infantrymen commended for gallantry: Morgan Meehan, Waldo Ashby and James Raymore Thomley. Ambulance drivers and helpers also distinguished themselves by working under shell fire and driving through a barrage. They are Hugh Mellon, Norris Riley, Edward Hobbs, Joseph Madden and Sergt. Benjamin James, Ammunition Wagon Driver Jeremiah Murphy, John Mulhall, Leo Emery, H. R. Johnson, J. C. Terent, Dominick Plosky and John Obrien Polito.

AVERAGE MAN UNDER-DEVELOPED SAYS MEMPHIS DRAFT OFFICIAL

"Youths Ride Too Much in Autos and Get Too Little Exercise," Declares Physician.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 4.—Artists of the male form divine who are searching for an Apollo or an Adonis, a Samson or a Hercules, will waste their time combing over the Memphis youths.

This is the statement of Dr. Louis Le Roy, dean of the Medical College of the University of Tennessee and chairman of the Medical Advisory Board of Draft District No. 5, Memphis. Dr. Le Roy has examined more than 1000 draft appellants in gathering his information.

Most of the men were from 5 to 20 pounds underweight. Lack of proper gymnasia is blamed for the condition. The present generation also is lazy, the physician says.

"Even today," he concludes, "the youths inevitably ride the street car to work, instead of walking, ride about in automobiles without any other exercise, and are generally under-developed. I consider the average Memphian lazy, judging from the examinations held."

GREEN FOR MARINE UNIFORM HAS HISTORIC JUSTIFICATION

Change From Blue Only Recent, but an Order Has Been Shown Specifying It in 1776.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Folks from coast to coast are still wondering why the time-honored blue uniforms worn by the United States Marines were superseded by the "forest greens," now in use.

"Practical military reasons," was the brief answer given by Marine officials.

But a history sharp now comes forth with a better reason, he says, than mere military necessity, for the change in colors.

He claims that green is the historic hue for the Marine Corps, and to prove it he has dug up an order of the "Marine Committee," dated Sept. 5, 1776, prescribing a uniform of green coat, faced with white, white waistcoat and breeches edged with green and black "gaiters."

WAR WORK INSTEAD OF CAMPAIGN, CANDIDATE'S PLAN

Oklahoman Challenges His Rivals to Leave State, and Let People Decide.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., May 4.—J. B. A. Robertson of Oklahoma City, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the governorship, has proposed to his opponents that all in the race leave the state until after the next primary and do war work for the Government.

The money candidates ordinarily spend in campaigns he would have them spend for Liberty Bonds, thrift stamps and in gifts to the Red Cross.

It is Robertson's idea to allow the people to make their selection without solicitation from the candidates.

Maj. Brooks to Fly to Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. May 4 (Special.)— Maj. John Brooks, in command of the Scott Aviation Field at Belleville, Ill., will make an airplane flight to this city today. Maj. Brooks will make the flight in company with Maj. Cook, an instructor at the aviation field.

HOME GUARD ARMORY TO BE OCCUPIED MAY 15

Webster Groves Building Is Being Built at Cost of $18,500.

Webster Groves, which organized the first battalion of the First Regiment, Missouri Home Guard, has built an armory for the battalion's use. The armory, which stands on the high school grounds, is nearly completed and is expected to be ready for use May 15.

The battalion consists of four companies, and is under the active command of Maj. H. H. Simmons. The Captains of the companies are: A Company, H. C. Macoy; B Company, W. A. Denvir; C Company, George Harsh, and D Company, James Cook.

The new armory is 80x140 feet, of steel construction and has space for drilling one company or seating capacity for 1500 persons. The cost of the building, $18,500, was raised by a citizens' commitee headed by W. M. Warren. This did not include the floor, which was provided by the School Board. The site was provided without cost and the building will be used at certain times for school exercises.

Webster Groves, with a population between 10,000 and 11,000, has sent 223 men into the army, 35 to the navy, 37 army officers, five navy officers, six army physicians, eight hospital workers and several Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. workers. Webster Groves has greatly exceeded her quota on Liberty Loan, Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. subscriptions.

Society Drops German Name.

The Elsass-Lotheringer Unterstzungs Bundes dropped its German name at a special meeting last week and adopted the English name, Alsace Lorraine American Mutual Aid Society. The society at the same time voted to expend $500 out of its treasury for Third Liberty Bonds. Peter Sutter is president of the society.

COAL MINERS QUITTING TO WORK ON THE FARMS

Operators in Oklahoma Believe It Will Be Necessary to Modify Zoning System.

McALESTER, Ok., May 4 (Special).—Oklahoma coal miners by the hundreds are abandoning the mines to take up work on the farms. Operators are not receiving orders under the zoning system as are necessary to keep the shafts running at capacity and the men, forestalling possibilities of loss during the summer, are taking up agricultural pursuits.

Operators view the present state with dissatisfaction and believe that it will be necessary to modify the Federal zoning system to expand the field of transportation and sale in order to avoid next winter a shortage in coal mines. The operators say it has been found virtually impossible to induce the people to buy coal during summer for consumption during winter.

RAIN HELPS WHEAT PROSPECT

SMITH CENTER, Kan., May 4.—Heavy rains all over the 22 counties of northwest Kansas have soaked the earth and wrought a wonderful improvement in wheat. The acreage of wheat this spring is the largest ever known.

Farmers, who, a month ago, were despairing of their fields living, say that the prospects are rosy for a bumper yield. An immense area is to be planted to corn also this season and farmers are ready to start the work. Practically all of them have thoroughly tested their seed, and fewer cases of poor stands of the grain will occur than in years past.

W. A. A. C. Wrote to a German.

LONDON, May 4.—A system of messages by matchbox between a W. A. A. C. (Woman's Auxiliary Army Corps) and a German prisoner was described at a North Midland police court, when Florence Mayos, 24-year-old member of the corps, was remanded on a charge under the defence of the realm act of communicating with a German prisoner of war. It was shown that on three successive days the woman had picked up the match box containing messages.

CIRCUS HERE TUESDAY FOR 10 PERFORMANCES

Spectacle Feature Will Be "In Days of Old" With 1250 Characters.

St. Louis will be the first city to see the Ringling Brothers' Circus under canvas this year. It closed its indoor engagement in Chicago last night, and will blossom forth here next Tuesday afternoon as that unfailing sign of spring, a real circus with sawdust and red lemonade and clowns, "and everything."

The main tent, the stable, commissary departments, dining tents and a kitchen equipped to prepare food for 1375 persons daily were put in place yesterday. Only the workmen engaged in the advance preparations for the "big show" have arrived thus far.

The performers and the menagerie animals will reach St. Louis tomorrow night, and all will be in readiness for the opening at Tuesday's matinee.

The spectacle feature of this year's show will be a pantomimic and dancing production, "In Days of Old," of the period when "knighthood was in flower." A cast of 1250 characters and a ballet of 300 girls is promised.

There will be 10 circus performances here, closing Saturday night.

Among the performers will be a number never before seen in a circus here. Lily Leitzel, a diminutive aerial gymnast has been heaped with superlatives by the advance agents. One of her feats is to suspend herself by one hand from a rope in the dome of the big tent and, according to the advance notices, "cast her body over her own shoulder sixty times without pause." Another notable artist is May Wirth, a bareback rider billed to do forward and backward somersaults on a galloping horse and to make leaps, from the ground to a running steed. Another ring novelty is the Martin family of four women and one man who have been imported from Australia. They are said to represent the last word in trick and comedy equestrianism. troupes who will walk and do jumps and somersaults on wires stretched near the tent-top. There is a large number of arenic performers and many trained animals and clowns.

Many of the younger workmen employed by Ringling Brothers are now in military service and this has necessitated the employment of older men. A service flag containing 214 stars will be displayed in the menagerie tent.

The performers also have been drawn upon to serve their country and this is responsible for a preponderance of woman stars on the program.

ARMENIAN MISSION REACHES PARIS FOR LABOR CONFERENCE

Will Beat the Germans First, Then Talk to Them. Chairman Wilson Says.

PARIS, May 4 (By A. P.).—The American labor mission, which has been visiting England, arrived in Paris late last night and was welcomed by Minister of Labor Colliard.

"We will beat the Germans first and speak to them afterwards," declared Chairman James Wilson and George L. Barry of the mission. "We take the position that we will not meet them in conferences under any consideration."

"American workingmen want to say of the French that they recall the day when Frenchmen came to America when she was fighting for liberty. We want to thank France and prove our gratitude. We propose to put at the disposition of the allies our last dollar"

FINDS HER SON IN ARMY

Woman Had Not Seen Him Since He Was 5 Years Old.

ANNISTON, Ala., May 4.—Mrs. L. E. Stinson had not seen her son, Edward Stinson, Company E, 113th Infantry, since he was 5 years old. She journeyed from San Francisco to Anniston to find her boy before he left for France.

An hour after her arrival she stepped out of a hotel to watch a parade. She asked a soldier a question. He answered her; then she told him she was looking for her son. He offered to help her and asked the son's name.

"Edward Stinson," she said.

"Then your search is over; I am Edward."

HUDSON SUPER SIX

HUDSON SUPER SIX

This Year A New Super-Six

A Car Which 50,000 Hudson Users Helped To Design

Perfection comes only through development.

We haven't yet attained the ideal in motor car building, but what 50,000 owners have experienced and taught Hudson engineers has had tremendous influence over the new Super-Six.

Those who bought cars of the earlier production did so because of what they knew of the Hudson Company and what the cars had shown in tests.

No other cars appealed to them so strongly in such vital particulars as endurance, power and speed.

How well the Super-Six made good is known to all motordom.

But what is not yet so apparent is the utter refinement that has taken place in the Super-Six. It came from what the Hudson engineers learned from owners and as a result of the tests made on speedways, in road races and mountain climbs.

Such development will seem strange to all who know the earlier Super-Sixes. Without having seen the new Super-Six it will be impossible for many to understand how much improvement could have been possible.

Nevertheless, there is a marked fineness about this new series that is the result of what previous models taught.

The improvement is not limited to the chassis. Hudson engineers worked to produce a well-proportioned, well-balanced car.

No detail stands out in distinction against other parts. It is not because of its exclusive and famed motor alone that it leads. No special equipment in itself calls for unusual consideration in this new Super-Six. Even in the question of bodies, except as to their special fitness for various uses, there is no one feature upon which to place particular emphasis.

But we do point with pardonable pride to the car as a whole. It does have a wonderful and powerful motor, but so also is every other unit of its chassis just as well designed and just as well suited to do the work for which it is intended.

And that same well-rounded, complete detail applies also to the bodies, of which there are ten different types. They are beautifully designed, rigidly built and handsomely finished. There is not a single note of disproportionate excellence or of unequal quality in any detail of the new Super-Six.

The experienced eye can appreciate much that has been done to make this new car a finer Super-Six. But when performance is contrasted against that of the earlier models, then only time and long, hard usage will reveal the improvement.

Mrs. Cella's Aunts and Uncle Here Arouse Interest Over Prospect of Being Millionaires.

FIGHT BEGUN OVER ADMINISTRATION

Applications Filed Both by Public Administrator and Relative of the Dead Woman.

Residents of two North St. Louis communities, where the two aunts and an uncle of the late Mrs. Louis A. Cella live, are taking a deep interest in the probability that these relatives will become millionaires, and the modest two and four family brick flats where they reside have become centers of attraction in those neighborhoods.

In the event that Mrs. Cella died without a will, the three, and an uncle in Ireland, will divide, as her collateral heirs, half of the Cella estate, the value of which has been estimated at $12,000,000. They are William Mongan, 62 years old, a clerk on the fourth floor of the Shapleigh Hardware Co., who lives with his daughter at 4520 Maffitt avenue; Mrs. Nora Murphy and Mrs. Ellen Redding, who occupy the same flat, at 4509A Cote Brilliante avenue.

Mrs. Murphy is supported by her son, William Murphy, a conductor on the Wellston line, and her daughter, Margaret, a stenographer. Another daughter, Celia, keeps house for her mother and Mrs. Redding. Mongan's daughter is Mrs. B. H. Mohr, wife of a saloon keeper. The other uncle of Mrs. Cella is Marton Mongan of Ballindine, County Mayo, Ireland.

Formerly Worked for Kerens.

Mrs. Redding was for 30 years a housekeeper in the home of the late Richard C. Kerens, who was Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, and virtually reared his children. She cooked his meals during has last illness, preceding his death in the East, in September, 1916.

"We are all just ordinary working people," said Mrs. Redding to a Post-Dispatch reporter who called on her and Mrs. Murphy. "Mrs. Cella was the only rich member of the family. She was a very sweet woman, and nice to all of us. We used to visit her often out at Wildwood."

Miss Celia Murphy, youngest daughter of Mrs. Murphy, came from Ireland a few years ago. She was a maid at the Kerens home part of the time while her aunt, Mrs. Redding, was housekeeper there.

A fight over administration of the estate of Mrs. Cella, who died Friday of heart trouble at St. Luke's Hospital, four days after her husband's death in an adjoining room, was forecast yesterday, when applications for letters of administration were filed at Clayton less than an hour apart by William Mongan and Public Administrator Mueller of St. Louis County. Mongan's application was supported by a bond of $75,000.

Public Administrator Mueller came automatically into control of the estate through filing on it, and will so remain until Probate Judge Hogdon acts on the matter, next Friday. Mongan says he has been familiar with Mrs. Cella's affairs, and asserts she left no will.

Cella's will, which was filed a few hours after his wife's death and which was made at St. Luke's Hospital, April 6, while he was critically ill from typhoid, bequeathed to his wife their 40-room mansion, "Wildwood," in St. Louis County, and half of the estate. The remainder was left in trust for the benefit of his brothers, Charles J. Cella, 6405 Cates avenue; Andrew D. Cella, 6318 Cates avenue; John Cella of Chicago; Angelo Cella, New York, and a sister, Mrs. Ada M. Piggott of 6311 Cates avenue.

When all of Louis Cella's brothers and sister are dead, the will provides, the property will be divided among Charles Cella's three children and a son of Mrs. Piggott. In the meantime the trust will continue, and the income will be divided equally among the five.

The children who will ultimately inherit the half of the estate are Mae Cella, 11 years old; Harriet, 9, and John 3, children of Charles Cella, and Edward Piggott III, 5 years old. All except John are students at the University City Grammar School.

John Cella of Chicago is a retired capitalist and a millionaire. He is a bachelor. Angelo Cella, a New York lawyer, and Andrew Cella are married, but have no children.

Wife a Former Forewoman.

Before her marriage to Louis Cella, more than 20 years ago, Mrs. Cella was employed as forewoman in a shoe factory near Louis Cella's saloon, then at Twenty-first street and Washington avenue. Her two uncles and two aunts are brothers and sisters of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Johnson, who is dead.

Mongan's fight for control over Mrs. Cella's estate probably will take the form of a motion tomorrow by his attorney to have Public Administrator Mueller removed, on the ground that he has no right to administer the estate.

His application yesterday contained no mention of other relatives, who are William J. Donnellan, 3065 Easton avenue, doorkeeper at the New Grand Central Opera House; Mrs. Mary Flynn, 5549 North Market street, and Mrs. Nellie McDaniels, 2119 Eugenia street, cousins of Mrs. Cella. They are children of Mrs. Ann Donnellan, who was a sister of Mongan.

Cella's will stated that his bequests to his wife were in lieu of her dower rights. If less than one-half the estate had been left her she could have contested the will, but she was critically ill and unconscious for days before he died, and never able to discuss it.

She never learned of his death. Relatives, knowing her condition, at first postponed his funeral in the belief that her death was imminent, and that a double service could be held, but she lingered long enough that this plan was abandoned. Her death occurred the day after his funeral. Her funeral will be held at 9 a. m. Monday, at All Souls' Church, Overland Park. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery, in a grave adjoining that of her husband.

The executors of Cella's estate, which consists largely of downtown property, hotels and theatrical interests, are now at work preparing an inventory of it.

RED CROSS WORKSHOPS ARE BEING BESIEGED BY HELPERS

Central Shop Has Daily Attendance of About 600 Women, Officials Report.

Facilities of Red Cross workshops in St. Louis for making surgical dressings have been taxed the past two weeks by women volunteers, according to reports to chapter headquarters in the Railway Exchange Building. The result has been gratifying headway on a quota of bandages and other dressings allotted to St. Louis by the national Red Cross authorities and the War Department.

The central workshop, which also is the largest in the country, in Washington University School of Medicine building, Euclid and Scott avenues, is having a daily attendance of nearly 600 women, compared with an average two weeks ago of about 400. This center of war activity on the part of women, of which Mrs. Joseph W. Bray is director, is applying itself mainly to the filling of a War Department call for front parcels and evacuation bundles, the former of which is carried by soldiers at the battlefront and the latter used at front-line hospitals. There has also been recently opened in this building a knitting shop, equipped with machines and a full force of volunteers to operate them.

At the workshop on Washington University campus the day sessions are fully attended, as a rule, and at some of the recent evening sessions which men volunteers take advantage of, the number reporting for work is greater than can be accommodated. On one recent evening there were 190 applicants for places at the work tables, or about twice as many as could be provided for.

Equally cheering reports come to headquarters from Clark School, the latest workshop opened; from the Missouri Botanical Gardens, the Nicholas Building and others of the 10 shops being conducted by the St. Louis chapter.

MAN FORCED TO KISS FLAG

Miner Was Said to Have Made Disloyal Remarks.

A crowd of several hundred miners at the Nigger Hollow mine, six miles east of Edgemont, yesterday morning forced John Kapolow, 29 years old, of French Village, a fellow miner, to kneel and kiss an American flag, after he was said to have refused to buy a Liberty Bond, and to have made disloyal remarks.

Kapelow, who was working in the mine, was brought to the surface and preceded by men carrying a barrel of tar and a feather bed, was taken to a saloon in Edgemont. A patrol of 10 policemen from East St. Louis was sent to Edgemont last night to prevent further trouble.

SLATER CLAIMS GAIN OF 60 IN RECOUNT IN 65 PRECINCTS

Dispute Arises as to Genuineness of About 20 Ballots in Public Adminstrator Fight.

After clerks in the Election Commissioner's office had completed the recount of balots in 65 precincts of the first five wards of the city, yesterday noon, Seldon P. Spencer, attorney for Frank M. Slater, Republican, whose tenure of the office of Public Administrator is being contested by James P. Newell, Democrat, claimed a net gain of 60 votes for Slater.

Newell said that the official tabulation of the recount of ballots in 58 of the precincts showed a net gain of but 39 for Slater. The disparity between Newell's and Slater's claims is due not only to the difference in the number of precincts taken by each as a basis but also to a dispute as to the disposition of about 20 ballots. The Election Commissioners will have to pass on the genuineness of these ballots.

Newell said he expected to lose some votes in the recount of ballots in the Fourth and Fifth wards. At the election, Nov. 7, 1916, Newell was beaten by a plurality of 103 votes.

The recount will be resumed tomorrow and is expected to continue for the next three weeks

WILFLEY SPENDS DAY FIXING FENCES IN KANSAS CITY

New Senator, Steered by W. T. Kemper, Pendergast Man, Meets Politicians in Tour of Clubs.

INDICATION FACTION WILL AID HIM IN FALL

Again Pledges Himself to Unqaulified Support of President, in Speech—To Take Seat Tuesday.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 4.—Senator Wilfley, in his first appearance before a Western Missouri audience delivered a patriotic support-the-President address before the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon at the Baltimore Hotel today and immediately afterward started out on a fence-fixing tour of Kansas City.

The Senator placed himself entirely in the hands of William T. Kemper, the Jackson County banker-politician, who is the real power behind the Prendergast faction, the stronger of the two Democratic factions in Kansas City and Jackson County, which was taken as a indication by politicians that he would be supported by Kemper and Pendergast this fall.

Senator Wilfley's address was along the same line as his speech in Jefferson City Wednesday, pledging unqualifiedly his support to President Wilson. His talk today terminated with a statement that he would depart for Washington tomorrow and that he would remain there as long as Congress is in session to do his work, no matter what the effect of his absence from Missouri might be on his campaign for nomination and election.

Meets Politicians at Clubs.

About 500 persons attended the luncheon, the guests including members of both the Pendergast (Goat) and Shannon (Rabbit) factions, and many Republicans. He was given close attention and his pledge of support to the administration was loudly applauded. From the talk among Kansas City politicians after the luncheon it appeared that he had made an excellent impression. He was met at the Union Station this morning by Kemper, who escorted him to the Baltimore Hotel, where Kemper kept him in seclusion until time for the luncheon. Afterward he was accompanied in an automobile by Kemper on a visit to the editors and managers of Kansas City newspapers, and to several clubs where he met the politicians Kemper desired him to meet.

From the standpoint of practical politics the alignment with the Pendergast faction was to have been expected. Gov. Gardner (who appointed Wilfley to the senatorship and who is his sponsor in his year's campaign, having had the support of Kemper and Pendergast, who controlled the Governor's appointments in Kansas City.

To Depart for Washington.

The usual result here of a candidate lining up with Pendergast is for him to have the opposition of the Shannon faction, though Kemper has been credited with strenuous efforts to bring the two factions together on local candidates, and it is expected he will make the same effort as to the Senatorship.

The Shannon faction has supported Folk in his previous campaigns, but what it will do this year has not been disclosed. It is generally believed here that Folk will be a candidate against Wilfley, but if he has attempted to line up his old friends here, the effort has been kept very quiet.

Wilfley was accompanied to Kansas City by R. Perry Spencer, actuary in the insurance department, who will accompany him to Washington to be present when he takes the oath as Senator Tuesday. They will depart from St. Louis tomorrow.

"I have a firm conviction," Wilfley said in his address, "that the President of the United States understands the issues of this war; that he is doing all he can to bring it to an end, and I shall do all in my power to support his policies and contribute to his efforts to solidify the forces of this nation and bring the war to a speedy and successful conclusion.

Spirit of Proposed Service.

"The services that I shall undertake to render as your representative in the Senate of the United States is new and strange. I cannot tell you what that particular service will be, but I have attempted to give you the spirit in which I understand that service. I believe that the sentiments which I have expressed reflect the spirit of the people of the State of Missouri."

The Senator asserted that the United States possesses "greater resources than Germany and a more resolute and stalwart race." The policies of the German Empire, he said, are founded on might and recognize nothing but power, and "with power we must fight Germany until it is brought to the realization that our power is greater than its power. Germany's only hope is that we will do less than our utmost to compel enduring peace. She knows full well that against the United States of America, fully armed and resolute, on the side of her enemies, she cannot stand."

Sisters, 3 and 4, Burned to Death.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., May 4 (Special).—Bernice and Thelma McFadden, 4 and 3 years old, respectively, daughters of A. J. McFadden, were burned to death at West Union, Ill., when their small brother set fire to a shed in which they were playing. The boy escaped.

Tendency to Constipation?

USE THIS LAXATIVE!

Dietitians advise a "careful diet," but that is troublesome to most people; physical culturists advise "certain exercises," which is good if one has both the time and the inclination. Doctors advise diet and exercise and medicine. The question is, shall it be a cathartic or purgative medicine? Or a mild, gentle laxative?

Thousands have decided the question to their own satisfaction by using a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known to druggists as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A small dose gives a free, easy movement of the bowels. It is the best substitute for nature herself. In fact, since the ingredients are wholly from the vegetable kingdom it may truthfully be said it is a natural laxative.

Its positive but gentle action on the bowels makes it an ideal remedy for constipation. The dose is small, and it may be taken with perfect safety until the bowels are regulated and act again of their own accord.

The druggist will refund your money if it fails to do as promised.

NO INCREASE

In spite of enormous increased laboratory costs due to the War the manufacturers of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sacrificing their profits and absorbing the war taxes, so that this family laxative may remain at the prewar price of 50c and $1 a large bottle. So sold by druggists for 26 years

THE PLEDGE OF PATRIOTISM

To the women of Saint Louis the call to service has been again sounded.

MONDAY, MAY 6th
THRIFT STAMP DAY

Our Government has designated Monday as Thrift Stamp Day. Every St. Louis woman can pledge her patriotism and do her share to place Saint Louis "over the top" in this great drive.

Saint Louis merchants have instructed their employes to act as Thrift Stamp salespeople. On this day you will be requested to accept part or all of your change in Thrift Stamps.

Plan to do your shopping Monday, so that your change, however small, may go toward helping us win our fight for democracy.

MISSOURI ASKED FOR 300 DOCTORS FOR WAR SERVICE

Council of Defense Medical Board Expects Thousands to Enroll to Meet Heavy Army and Navy Demand.

MOST MUST COME FROM THE CITIES

State Quotas Announced and These Will Be Apportioned Among the Counties by Informed Committees.

WASHINGTON, May 4 (By A. P.)—Thousands of doctors and surgeons throughout the country will be urged to enroll for service to meet the growing demands of the army and navy, under a plan decided upon today at a meeting here of practically all state committees of the General Medical Board of the Council of National Defense. It is expected that 7000 will respond to the call by July 1 and 5000 before the end of the year.

State committees, after canvassing their home conditions, are to name twice the number of men in the quota of each state, and half will be expected to answer the call. Medical men who decline commissions will be called on personally by the state committees for an explanation and if they persist in declining their names will be referred to the board here, which will again appeal to them.

Maj. John D. McLean, secretary of the General Board, in announcing the state quotas, which are to be apportioned among counties by the state committees, said that the cities must provide most of the doctors, as country communities could not spare many. The quotas follow:

Alabama, 150; Arizona, 5; Arkansas, 300; California, 200; Colorado, 100; Connecticut, 150; Delaware, 20; District of Columbia, 5; Florida, 20; Georgia, 200; Idaho, 20; Illinois, 300; Indiana, 300; Iowa, 350; Kansas, 100; Kentucky, 100; Louisiana, 200; Maine, 100; Maryland, 75; Massachusetts, 300; Michigan, 100; Minnesota, 70; Mississippi, 200; Missouri, 300; Montana, 20; Nebraska, 20; Nevada, 5; New Hampshire, 50; New Jersey, 100; New Mexico, 50; New York, 500; North Carolina, 100; North Dakota, 50; Ohio, 500; Oklahoma, 100; Oregon, 50; Pennsylvania, 400; Rhode Island, 50; South Carolina, 150; South Dakota, 45; Tennessee, 200; Texas, 150; Utah, 30; Vermont, 50; Virginia, 100; Washington, 50; West Virginia, 100; Wisconsin, 100; Wyoming, 30.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma, addressing the meeting regarding his bill to increase appointments of officers in the military medical service, declared that the general staff of the army "is always opposed to give additional dignity to the medical men." The bill provides for 20,000 officers in the Medical Corps. He said these men should have equal rank with line officers because, without such authority, the Medical Corps cannot enforce its regulations.

"PENNY ANTE" GAME PLAYERS QUICKLY BUY TWO FLAGS

Sheriff Knew Exactly Where to Pass the Hat When Funds Failed.

PINCKNEYVILLE, Ill., May 4.—When Pinckneyville found occasion in the Third Liberty Loan drive to entertain a section of the Great Lakes naval band the Sheriff of Perry County was assigned chairman of a committee to see that the city was decorated properly.

After the committee's store of bunting was exhausted and its funds depleted it was discovered that two American flags still were needed to make the decorations complete.

The Sheriff made a "conditional purchase" of two large flags. Then he took a deputy with him and sought out a back store room where a number of the city's leading citizens were engaged in a game of "Penny Ante."

"Gentlemen," he announced, "we need these two large flags to finish our decorations of Main street. They cost $10 and I expect this crowd to buy them. My deputy will now pass the hat. Otherwise I shall have to let you argue it with the Judge."

"Oh, Eddie," yelled one of the players as the hat returned to its owner, "help the Sheriff put those flags up." The naval band concert was considered a huge success.

MAN PARADES WITH SAILORS, KNOCKING OFF MEN'S HATS

Stranger Attacked Many Times for Enforcing Patriotism, but Persists to End.

Two hundred sailors from San Francisco, bound for an Atlantic port, passed through St. Louis yesterday and paraded the downtown streets, led by Lieut. F. M. Willson of the St. Louis Naval Recruiting Station, and a detachment of the Great Lakes Band. The boys received rousing cheers all along the line of March.

The sailors themselves lustily cheered a man who ran at their side, from Twelfth street and Washington avenue, to Broadway, to Market, west to Seventh and north on Seventh, and who knocked off men's hats that were not removed out of respect for the passing flag.

A man whose hat he knocked off punched him in the back at Tenth street and Washington avenue. At Eighth street he received a blow on the right ear. At Broadway he was sideswiped by a fist blow aimed at his head. At Broadway and Pine he encountered a fist on the jaw, and in front of the American Theater a smash on the nose. Police saved him from a mighty swing, aimed at his left eye, at Seventh and Pine, but he went on, still knocking off hats and never pausing to resent a blow, nor did anyone interfere to deal with his assailants. He refused to give his name.

HOOVER URGES SAVING TO AVOID MORE MEATLESS DAYS

Food Committee Here Is Advised of Seasonable Decline of Shipments to Market.

The St. Louis Food Committee received yesterday from Federal Food Administrator Hoover a telegram urging that meat saving be practiced each day to obviate the reinstallation of meatless days. It pointed out that there is now a meat scarcity due to seasonable decline in shipments to market and that the requirements of the army abroad and the allies amounted to 75,000,000 pounds of meat and meat products per week, against pre-war normal of 15,000,000 pounds.

Consumption of meats here, according to the telegram is about 3¼ pounds per week per person, while the average consumption of the allies is 1¼ pounds. It urged rigorous elimination of waste and reduction of quantity prepared for each meal, particularly of beef.

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN POSTPONED BECAUSE OF BELATED SPRING

City's "Rubbish Wagons" to Begin Rounds May 20 and Run Till Task Is Completed.

The continuous clean-cup and paint-up campaign has been postponed from May 6 to May 20, by Street Commissioner Talbert, due to backwardness of the season. The city's "rubbish wagons" will start out May 20, and continue until the city has been canvassed.

The Health and Fire Departments are co-operating with the Street Department in the clean-up campaign, the slogan of which is "Clean Up, Paint Up and Dig Up." It is also being supported by the Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense, in connection with its child welfare work.

Performance of a "Single Man."

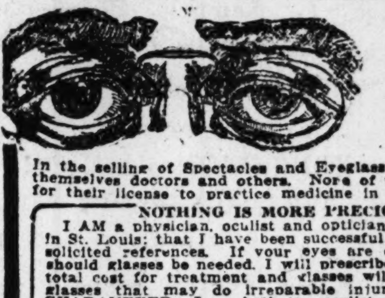
The Thyrsus Dramatic Club of Washington University will present Hubert Henry Davis' "A Single Man," at the Victoria Theater next Wednesday night. The proceeds will be given to the St. Louis Chapter of the Red Cross.

PIERCE PROPERTIES MERGED

Will Be Known as Pierce Oil Association.

DALLAS, Tex., May 4 (By A. P.).—Consolidation of all the properties of the Pierce-Fordyce Oil Association into one organization known as the Pierce Oil Association was announced here today by F. G. Colley of New York, secretary and comptroller of the association. The consolidation is effective of April 20, 1918. The merger is a sequel to the recent decision of Texas courts that the Pierce Oil Association should be permitted to do business in Texas.

The Pierce Oil Association is a $33,000,000 Virginia corporation and has property in Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mexico.



THE CRIME OF THE AGE

In the selling of Spectacles and Eyeglasses by incompetent opticians who call themselves doctors and others. None of these men are physicians. Ask them for their license to practice medicine in Missouri.

NOTHING IS MORE PRECIOUS THAN EYESIGHT

I AM a physician, oculist and optician and have practiced for many years in St. Louis; that I have been successful is attested by more than 50,000 unsolicited references. If your eyes are diseased I will care for them, and should glasses be needed, I will prescribe and make them correctly, and the total cost for treatment and glasses will not exceed the price of a pair of glasses that may do irreparable injury to your eyes. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. I am both the oculist and optician.

Spiral-Wrapped-Cable Structure

The Secret of Shock Resistance

TO build big guns that withstand the greatest shock and stress, mile after mile of cable wire is wrapped around a steel core. For the shock resistance of spiral, or coil-wrapped cable is a fundamental principle of mechanical engineering accepted by ordnance experts. Many of the 12-inch to 16-inch guns, in fact those which for their weight sustain the highest firing tension, and last the longest, are wire-wound guns. Says Popular Science:

> "The gun bound with wire is really stronger than one built of rings, or bands of steel. . . . . In making a wire wound gun, the wire is wound or coiled round and round."

What ordnance experts have found true for cannon, tire experts have found true for tires. With CABLE-CORD (a sinewy, elastic fusion of cord and rubber, 40 per cent. rubber) taking the place of wire, Goodrich Silvertown Cord Tires are built like wire-wound big guns.

GOODRICH TESTED TIRES

That is why they outlast ordinary tires built up of bands and rings. They are built to resist the shock and stress of the blows of the road. Practical usage confirms the science of Silvertown structure, for Goodrich Test Car Fleets have proved Silvertown's high mileage and dependability, measuring them up in actual road test to TESTED Tires.

No children of a chance tire construction, these matchless tires, but tried and true veterans of the road. They challenged the roads of all America, and defeated them in road roughing from coast to coast.

SILVERTOWN CORDS, and BLACK SAFETY TREADS fought their way from state to state, battling rock, sand, and gravel, through mud, snow, and frozen slush. The spiral-wrapped, cable-cord tire body proved its strength in hundreds of thousands of miles of hardest mileage. The close-clutch, cross-barred, non-skid black safety tread defied the teeth of desert paths and mountain trails.

Get this tested service for it is proven service. Demand tested quality. It is supreme tire quality because it includes all the rest. Take only the tires that in a country wide year-long road testing, won the title "America's Tested Tires."

ILLINOIS TROOPS ARE PRAISED FOR THEIR GALLANTRY

Gov. Lowden Receives Letter From Col. H. J. Reilly, Commanding 149th Field Artillery.

BATTERY PART OF RAINBOW DIVISION

Citation of Number of Officers and Men for Distinguished Service Order Tells of Brave Deeds.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 4 (By A. P.).—Gallantry of Illinois soldiers on the battlefield in France is attested in a letter received by Gov. Lowden from Col. Henry J. Reilly, commander of the 149th Field Artillery of the Rainbow Division, formerly the First Illinois Field Artillery, made public today. A similar letter was sent to Adjutant-General Frank S. Dickson.

Both letters were written on the return of the regiment from its first active duty at the front. Reilly in his letter to Lowden said:

"We were actually on the front something over a month, with the consequence that the batteries were in action a number of times. In spite of the fact that some of the batteries received as high as 2400 shells either on them or in the immediate vicinity, and that a number of guns were squarely hit by enemy projectiles, we had but 27 casualties due to action, among whom there were but two deaths.

Sending Memento Home.

"I am having engraved and will send you the first shell fired. It was fired by Capt. Thomas D. Hammond of A Battery about 4:30 p. m., on Feb. 23, from the battery position near the village of Domjevin. All of our wounded are in comfortable hospitals and are doing well."

After the regiment had returned from the front, Col. Reilly issued a congratulatory order to the regiment in which he quoted two orders issued by commanding officers of divisions to which the 149th Field Artillery was assigned. In this order he said:

"Now that the regiment has successfully completed its first tour of duty at the front, the Colonel commanding wishes to express his great satisfaction at the splendid manner in which all duties were performed, often under the enemy's fire The officers and enlisted men have shown that they have the spirit, courage and determination necessary to meet the conditions of real combat.

"The following men have been recommended for the American Distinguished Service Cross for the reasons stated after their names:

"Lieut. Wm. W. Bodine, Battery A: For gallant conduct in standing on top of his battery fully exposed to the enemy's fire and coolly directing the suppression of the fire which had broken out in the camouflage, due to the enemy's projectiles. This on March 21, 1918, when his battery was being subjected to a violent and continuous enemy's bombardment with heavy projectiles, some of which had struck directly in the gun displacement and others of which were exploding some of the battery's projectiles.

"Corp. A. G. Robinson, Battery A: For coolly and effectively repairing telephone lines from the the battalion post of command to the batteries not only in the open but actually in those positions in the open on which large numbers of heavy caliber enemy projectiles were continuously falling. This on March 21, 1918, and on at least four separate previous occasions

Bravery in Carrying Message.

"Private Francis H. Evans, Battery A—For volunteering to carry and carrying a message from the battalion post of command to Battery A through a heavy bombardment of high explosive and gas shells on March 20, 1918, at a time when the telephone communication with this battery had been cut by the enemy's fire and the optical liaison could not be used without undue exposure of some of the personnel of the battery.

"Private James E. Mangan, Battery E—For volunteering to and aiding the French in keeping open a telephone line running from a forward observation station across the open to the rear. This on March 19th and again on March 20th, when the telephone line was repeatedly cut by an intense enemy bombardment of heavy caliber shells from both guns and trench mortars.

"The regimental commander wishes to commend the following officers and enlisted men:

"Capt. T. S. Hammond, for coolness and gallantry displayed in entering A Battery under a very heavy enemy's fire at a time when the battery was on fire and some of its own shells were exploding, for the purpose of assuring himself that the fire should be gotten under control. This at a time when the battery commander was necessarily absent in a forward observation station.

Battery A Commended.

"Private George W. Hessleau, Battery B, for volunteering to remove the horses from the battalion stables in Domjevin when the immediate vicinity of the stables was under heavy bombardment.

"Lieut. Robert N. McCreary and the detachment of C Battery with First Class Private Thomas A. Lynd of the regimental medical detachment, for the coolness and spirit displayed when left with a single piece in a position which their battery had been removed because of the heavy fire.

"Battery A, for coolness and efficiency under fire in a position which received more than double as many shells as any other position occupied by any battery of the regiment.

"The Forty-seventh French Field Artillery and the 232d French Field Artillery, the two regiments with which our battalions served, have been in all of the big battles of this war. Their good opinion is therefore of value. The two French battalion commanders with whom our battalions served, the two Lieutenant-Colonels commanding the divisional artillery to which these two regiments belong, the two division commanders and the Chief of Artillery of the Army Corps, all personally expressed to the regimental commander their appreciation of the services of this regiment, their delight at finding the men and officers to be serious artillerymen, understanding and interested in their business, and that as a consequence they had supreme confidence in the future when the American and French armies would operate together against the common enemy.

"The following men were cited for bravery in a regimental order of the Forty-seventh French Field Artillery:

"Lance Corporal Louis Holmes, Battery C; Corp. Alexander Burns, Battery C (died of wounds); Sergt Frank Hickman, Battery A; Private J. H. Moseley, Battery A.

French General's Order.

"The General commanding the Fourteenth French Infantry Division, with which the First Battalion served, has issued an order of which the following is an excerpt:

"The G. O. G. of the Fourteenth Division wishes to thank the American troops for the effective part they took in the defense of the sector and to congratulate them for their martial attitude while under fire.

"The division keeps a pious remembrance of her dead. In accordance with this tradition, the Commanding General decided that the names of the American comrades who have fallen by our sides will be mentioned on the list of our own men who have given their lives for the triumph of Right, Justice and Liberty, all threatened by a preyation.

"Consequently, the Commanding General cites the following order of the division:

"Lieut. Louis J. Jordan, Battery C, 149th F. A.; Corp. Alexander B. Burns, Battery C, 149th F. A.

"The General commanding the 164th Division, with which the Second Battalion served, has published the following order:

" 'The General commanding the division extends his warmest congratulations to all those who participated in the operations on the night of the 20th to the 21st of March. Without exception all have given proof of an "elan" and of an ardor worthy of the highest commendation.

" 'The French and American batteries of artillery gave to the infantry, in spite of violent enemy fire and of a gas bombardment, the aid of a perfect preparatory and accompanying fire.'

"Such praise from such real veterans can only come as the result of real merit. As a consequence we can look forward with calm confidence to the greater tests which undoubtedly lie before us, and that in the near future."

Lieut. Jordan was a Texan and an athlete of reputation. Corporal Burns, whose home was in Downers' Grove, Ill., was a freshman at the University of Wisconsin when he enlisted at the outbreak of the war. His brother, Stewart Burns, a junior at Dartmouth College, joined also, and he, too, has been cited by the French for bravery under fire. In a letter to his father, Stewart Burns recently wrote:

"It is the ones who are not in it that are losing, not us. I don't know how, but over here a fellow changes his ideas on many things and I am sure every one is benefited by it."

Increase Camp Contribution.

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., May 4 (By A. P.).—The Kansas Federation of Women's Clubs has increased the camp contribution to exceed $1000, the latest donation being $300 with which to buy band instruments for the 353d Infantry Regiment. A St. Louis orchestra, which played here at the opening of the Kansas building, has sent three choice violins to the regiment and a letter states that more will follow.

DOG TAKES STAND BENEATH WINDOW OF CELL OF BOY, 14

Ash Grove (Mo.) Youth Lands in Jail Twice in Week; Sold Stolen Horse for $3.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 4.—Fourteen-year-old Lewis Foster of Ash Grove is in jail here, and "Gyp," his dog, is making the neighborhood of the prison untenable by his howls. The dog has taken up his stand beneath the boy's window.

This is the second time Lewis has been in trouble in a week. First he was brought up for stealing a horse, which he sold for $3 to get money for a trip around the world. He was warned and released. Upon his return home Lewis had a brass medallion about the size of a half dollar. Ash Grove has a blind beggar. Lewis marched up to the indigent and, throwing the medal into his tin cup, exclaimed:

"Here's a half dollar; keep a nickel and give me 45 cents change." When brought here Lewis refused to come unless he could bring his dog. Now the dog refuses to move without Lewis.

SAYS HE SWALLOWED GLASS

WOODBURY, N. J., May 4.—Charles Hunter Jr., 16 years old, of Paulsboro, N. J., who said he swallowed a spoonful of ground glass in a cell here, is under observation in Cooper's Hospital. The hospital physicians do not believe the story. Judge Davis sentenced Hunter to the State Reformatory, after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of forging six checks. A broken window pane was found in the boy's cell. Hunter said he broke the glass and crushed it into fine pieces and then swallowed a spoonful.

LEMONS BEAUTIFY ALSO WHITEN SKIN

Girls! Make this lotion for little cost and massage face, neck, arms and hands.

In all weathers the skin and complexion can be kept wonderfully clear, soft and white by the use of this lemon lotion which any girl or woman can easily prepare for a few cents.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin bleach and beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. It really will bleach and remove such blemishes as pimples, blackheads, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this harmless lemon lotion. It really does soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and hidden beauty of any skin. Those who will make it a habit to gently massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands once or twice daily will be repaid with a skin that is flexible and young looking and a peach-like complexion.—ADV.

"They Are Putting New Life in Me"

Mr. W. H. Pennington, Wharton, Ark., writes: "I am taking Cadomene Tablets and they are putting new life in me. I had a bad case of the grip the last winter, and my physician's prescription did me no good. I saw that Cadomene was recommended for a case like mine and I sent twenty miles to get them. Now, after using only one week I am gaining strength, eating with a relish, and sleeping like a baby," etc. Any nervous, weak, impoverished man or woman can take Cadomene with certainty of helping them back to strength and health. Every purchase guaranteed satisfactory to the purchaser. Sold by druggists everywhere. —Adv.

WAR USE FOR COCOANUT SHELLS

SAN JUAN, May 4 (By A. P.).—German poison gas has given the shell of the cocoanut a humane as well as a commercial value and thousands of cocoanuts are being shipped from Porto Rico so that the shells may be used in the manufacture of gas masks for American troops in France. Space is being found on ships to take care of all cocoanuts offered.

The shell of the cocoanut, it was found after much experimentation, could be made into a high grade of charcoal. This charcoal, it is said, is a valuable antidote for poison gases. The cocoanut is the only nut on the list of 81 essential imports prepared by the United States Government.

SIX DEATHS IN SENATE DELAY VOTE ON SUFFRAGE

St. Louis League's Report Eplains Amendment's Status—8086 Members Here.

That delay in the Senate on the passage of the Federal suffrage amendment is due to the deaths of six Senators, five of whom were suffragists, is brought out in the report of the Equal Suffrage League of St. Louis for 1917-18, which has just been published. Confidence in the early passage of the amendment as a war measure is expressed in the chairman's statement which prefaces the report.

In addition to the league's work for the passage of the Federal suffrage amendment, the report of the eecutive secretary, Lucille B. Lowenstein, shows that the league has taken an active part in other war work and Government service, having collected nearly $1,000,000 in subscriptions to the first, second and third Liberty Loans, and having assisted in food conservation work, registration of women for service and in Red Cross, Liberty Loan, Thrift Stamp and Y. M. C. A. drives. The league has taken an active part in civic work during the year and has had a series of weekly talks at the league's headquarters, to acquaint the women of St. Louis with what the various municipal welfare departments are doing for the community.

The report shows the formation of a men's advisory committee of 147, which was organized under the sponsorship of Jackson Johnson, N. A. McMillan, Ernest W. Stix, Joseph E. Woracek, Edward F. Goltra, Benjamin Gratz, E. M. Grossman and J. L. Babler.

The membership of the league is 8086. Donations from individuals amount to $5940.90. The report shows an anonymous individual contribution for ward organization work of $1000.

SISLER TURNS HIT INTO DOUBLE PLAY, SAVING THE GAME

Browns' Brilliant First Baseman Also Scores Winning Run, Defeating Cleveland 4-3 —Gallia Has Bad Inning.

GEORGE SISLER, figuring in one of the most remarkable and brilliant plays witnessed within a local major league park in years and years, staved off an impending disaster in the eighth inning of yesterday's game and brought home for the Browns a 4 to 3 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

For sheer daring and perfection of execution, Sisler's play should live long in the memories of local fans, for it's not stretching a point to say that, aside from saving a ball game, it was an effort worthy of the greatest player that ever wore spikes. And the Browns' star had to outguess the mighty Tris Speaker to accomplish it.

The clubs came into Cleveland's portion of the eighth deadlocked at 3 to 3. Chapman, first up, hit a grounder to Maisel and was safe when Fritz let the ball get away from him. Tris Speaker, in the offing, brightened up the outlook of the Redmen.

Sisler Spoils Hit-and-Run.

There was no attempt on the part of the visitors to conceal the fact that Chapman either was going to steal second or the hit-and-run was in the wind. Sisler apparently had it figured to his own satisfaction, for he played close in. Speaker took a solid swing at the sphere and connected, Chapman simultaneously setting sail for second.

It looked like a perfect hit-and-run, for Gedeon ran over to take the throw from Nunamaker as Speaker's bounder drove to the spot just vacated by the second baseman. But he didn't reckon with Sisler.

George ran toward second and scooped the ball on the bound. He didn't wait for either Gerber or Gedeon to reach second, but got the throw there on a line, Gerber getting the toss and forcing Chapman. No sooner had Sisler made the throw than he ran back toward first. Gerber returned the ball, but the toss was low and it appeared Speaker might make first in safety. Sisler hooked his left foot into the bag and, stretching out full length, dug deep into the dirt for Gerber's return. He came up with the ball for a double killing. There was no more fight left in the Indians. Speaker himself walked disconsolately to the bench.

More About Sisler.

Then in the Browns' portion of the eighth, it was Sisler again who counted the winning run. He led off with a single to right. Guy Morton, pitching for the visitors, tried to catch Sisler off first, but Kavanaugh let the throw get by him and George went to second. Smith sacrificed and Gedeon beat out a bunt in front of the plate, Sisler crossing. Neither Morton nor O'Neill attempted to make the play.

There was so much Sisler to yesterday's matinee that a great deal of good work on the part of other players was overlooked. There was, for instance, Mel Gallia's pitching performance. The new addition to Jones' hurling corps pitched a neat game, aside from one inning where he apparently lost his "stuff" and permitted the visitors to count three runs.

This came about in the sixth when Chapman, leading of, almost floored Maisel with a hot grounder good for a single. Speaker dropped a high fly in right, too far in for Demmitt and is was good for a safety. Then Bobby Roth put one on the line to right center which netted him three bases and scored Chapman and Speaker. Roth came over on Wambsganss' single to center.

Gallia Weakens in Sixth.

That was all, aside from the eighth, as recounted above. Up to the sixth Gallia had allowed three hits, only two of which were legitimate, one a single by Wamby and the other Joe Wood's double which seemed to be a daily happening, in the fifth. This latter inning produced some real hurling by Gallia, as Wood's blow pried off the session and he reached third while Gerber was throwing out O'Neill. Gallia, however, put the screws on, fanning Morton and Halt, the latter having the third strike called.

The Browns, as has been their wont in the series with Cleveland, up to yesterday, wasted many opportunities to score through inability to hit safely with men on the bases. Successive singles by Maisel, Sisler and Smith put them off to a one-run lead in the first.

This was stretched by one tally in the fourth. Smith beat out a hit but was forced by Demmitt. Gedeon's long double over Wood's head counted Demmitt.

Jones' fighters tied it in their portion of the sixth. Gedeon reached second when Chapman threw past Kavanagh on his grounder, went to third on a wild pitch and counted while Chapman was expunging Nunamaker. They won in the eighth as told above.

Guy Morton, the visitors' hurler, had anything but a pleasant afternoon. He was found for 12 hits, but while many were bunched they did not produce runs with the exceptions noted above. About 6000 fans were out to view the game.

Browns Depart After Today's Game; Next Home Stand Will Begin June 1

Today is the last chance to see the Browns in action until Saturday, June 1. The Sportsman's Parkers leave tonight at 6 o'clock for Detroit, where they play a series of three games previous to invading the Eastern sector of the American League. They return here June 1 to open against the Athletics.

The Cleveland Indians again will be the attraction this afternoon. Because the Browns have to catch an early train, today's game will start at 2:45 o'clock.

Jones stated yesterday that he would use Lowdermilk today, providing the big fellow's shoulder does not bother him. Tom Rogers is second choice. Fritz Coumbe, a southpaw, is down to work for Cleveland.

About 7000 fans saw yesterday's game.

Sisler's Batting Improves.

George Sisler has started a big batting drive. He has hit safely one or more times in his last seven games, or since the Browns returned home. In Cleveland on April 23, Fritz Coumbe forced George to go hitless, but since that time, the stellar collegian has not missed. His record for the seven games follows:

Date	Pitcher	AB	R	H
April 26	Williams	4	0	2
April 28	Faber	3	0	1
April 29	Mitchell, Finnernan	4	2	1
May 1	Erickson	4	1	4
May 2	Bagby	3	1	1
May 3	Groom Coumbe	5	1	3
May 4	Morton	4	1	2
Totals		27	6	14
Pct.				.519

He is batting .359 for the season thus far.

Just Sisler—That's All.

Merely by way of topping off a good day's work, Sisler made a great catch of a foul from Wood's bat in the ninth. He ran over close to the stand and had to leap in the air to grab it. His game yesterday was simply unbeatable, vernacularly speaking.

Nice Play by Gedeon.

Joe Gedeon turned in a neat bit of fielding in the seventh. He raced over almost to the bag for Halt's grounder, and made the throw without straightening up.

Indians Have Off Day.

The Indians looked just as horrid, yesterday, as they appeared good, in the two previous games. Especially was this true on the defense. For instance, Roth, Wamby and Kavanaugh permitted Gerber's high fly to hit the ground for a single in the fifth and Morton and O'Neill became mixed up on Gedeon's bunt in the eighth, which enabled Sisler to score.

Morton's Control Good.

For the first time since they returned home, the Browns failed to draw a base on balls. Morton's control was good, but his curves were not.

Wood Hitting Well.

"Maybe I've just been lucky," is the way Joe Wood explains his remarkable batting work in the series. However, the element of luck doesn't figure when a batter knocks the ball over outfielders' heads the way the former "smoke" ball expert has been doing.

Grover Alexander, Star Pitcher, as He Appears at Camp Funston

Copyright, 1918, U. P. Ry. Press Bureau.

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., May 4.—The arrival in camp of Grover Cleveland Alexander, noted twirler, has given baseball a new impetus. Alexander arrived Thursday with a delegation of recruits from his home town, St. Paul, Neb. To say that, with Alexander in the box and considering all the other baseball stars gathered here, Funston will be ready to meet all comers on the diamond, is putting it mildly. The camp is out for the national military baseball pennant.

The Eighty-Ninth Division here has one of the largest baseball leagues in the country—all its own. To mention the fact that this division alone has 20 teams indicated to what an extent the seasonable baseball enthusiasm is running. As representing the entire division these teams are sifted down to two crack teams.

To illustrate the "class" of some of these baseball teams, take for instance that of the 342d Field Artillery. It includes "Chuck" Ward of St. Louis, formerly third baseman for the Brooklyn Nationals; Win Noyes, pitcher, and Waite, catcher, formerly battery for the Philadelphia Athletics; Ballingsall, left fielder, formerly in the Texas league, and Adrain Lindsey, former K. U. second baseman. Lindsey was also captain of the Kansas University football team.

Ratican Stars as Bethlehem Holds Foes to 2--2 Tie

St. Louisan Saves Soccer Title for His Team in Final With Fall River.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., May 4.—Battling against big odds, the Fall River Rovers managed to break even with the Bethlehem Steel aggregation in the final of the national challenge cup competition for the Dewar trophy here today. After two 15-minute overtime periods the 2—2 tie was unbroken and play was abandoned until a later date for a decision.

A record breaking attendance, the greatest ever seen at Coats Field, was estimated close to 12,000 persons saw the contest.

Harry Ratican, the fast center forward of the ship builders' team, was the particular luminary. The St. Louis collegian gathered all of the glory of his side although Fleming displayed much of the activity that won for him the title of premier soccerist of them all. His game paled this afternoon, however, in comparison with that of Ratican.

Ratican First to Score.

Ratican scored a goal early in the first period, after some brilliant work, receiving a pass from Fleming to make a tally. In the early part of the second half it was his good work that enabled Fleming to score the second goal, putting Bethlehem momentarily in the lead.

Chadwick evened the game a moment later, however.

WOMEN BOWLERS START TOURNAMENT TONIGHT

Twenty-two women teams have entered the patriotic tournament, which will be started on Peterson's alleys tonight. Of this number, however, the Wednesday Afternoon Club and the Lindell Club of the Tower Grove Gymnasium, will not roll. The entry fee of the event will be turned over to the Soldiers' and Sailors' fund.

The schedule for tonight is as follows: Washingtons, Mrs. E. E. Grubb, captain; Hamiltons, Miss Birdie Kern; Werders No. 1, Mrs. Kloessner; Werders No. 2, Mrs. Jost, and the R. U., Mrs. Johnston. The tournament will come to a close on May 13.

Talbott With 634 Rolls Best Score in City Tourney

None of Tenpinners Competing Last Night Were Able to Get Into First 10.

H. Talbott, a member of the Victor Colts, rolled the best score in the individual event of the city handicap bowling tournament on the Washington alleys last night with a total of 634, which included a handicap of 81 pins. Talbott had a high game of 222. A. Kuenzel, 603, was the only other to break into the 600 class.

In the doubles, G. Sutter and Al Mandeville shot the best count with 1143, which included a donation of 30 pins. Sutter counted 594 and his partner 513. Neumeister and Sikora, 1131, were next.

The leaders to date are: Singles: Gus Heitz, 711; E. Schweigler 681; S. C. Couchman 677; J. Eisenhart 656, and A. Halblaub 649. Two-man—Ford-Meyer 1281; Eiselé-Halblaub 1227; Schirr-Erickson 1223; Potts-R. Meinhardt 1209; A. B. and L. J. Bussman 1209.

TYLER GIVES FOUR HITS

Eller on Hill for Matty's Aggregation Is Found for Five Safeties by Bruins.

CHICAGO May 4.—Chicago made it eight straight today by shutting out Cincinnati 1 to 0, in a pitching duel between Tyler and Eller. Hollocher's walk, Flack's sacrifice, Mann's single and a sacrifice fly by Paskert scored the only run of the game. The visitors had two opportunities to score, but double plays spoiled them. "Rowdy" Elliott, catcher of the locals, who has enlisted in the navy, and expects to report to Mare Island in a short time was presented with a wrist watch by his team mates. Score:

GIANTS ARE RUN-GETTERS

Three players of the Giants have scored an average of more than one run for every contest they have played. Ross Young and George Burns have tallied 15 times in 12 games and Benny Kauff has 13 runs in 12 battles. Besides these Larry Doyle has 11 in 12. This makes 54 markers for the quartet. The Giants have tallied 80.

Webster Athletes Again Win State Interscholastic Title

Lincoln, Hart, Massengale, Irland and Other County Stars Assist in Rolling Up 46 Points Against Kansas City Westport's Total of 34½ at Columbia.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 4.—Allan Lincoln, Eddie Hart, George Massengale and Frank Irland were responsible for the 46-point Webster Groves score with which the team won the State title in division two in the 15th annual high school track meet on Rollins' Field this afternoon. Kansas City Westport, was second in this division with 34½ ponts.

In division 1, Wentworth Military Academy took first with 48 points, Kemper was second, with 37½, and K. C. Polytechnic third, with 34½. Harrisonville, with Hamilton, the star of the meet, was nosed out of first place by 1 point by Mount Vernon, which scored 35 points in Division 3.

Hamilton, who is a brother of Paul Hamilton, captain of 1917 Tiger football team, broke the scholastic high jump record of 5 feet 9½ inches made by Bob Simpson in 1913, 5 feet 10 inches, and also set a new record of 11 feet 6 inches in the pole vault, breaking the 11 feet 2 inch mark made in 1911. This 18-year-old boy took four firsts and was second to Lincoln in the special discus event.

Hart High Point Winner.

Webster was well in the lead until, the pole vault, the last event was staged. Kansas City Westport slipped in eight points bringing it's total to 34 1-2. Hart was high point winner for Webster with 11 1-2, while Lincoln had 9, although he took first in the special discus event. Massengale took first place in the two sprints, Webster took first in the half-mile relay over three Kansas City teams, in 1 minute 36 seconds. Northeast won the special quarter-mile race.

Lincoln was off form, as he had trouble in the dash events, in which he starred last year. Webster had a consistent team taking points in every event, although the county team made only 1-2 point in the pole vault when Everett tied for fourth with McGinley of K. C. Central. K. C. showed poorer class this year than any previous years.

Kirkwood Team Is Third.

Eleven teams competed in the third division but the contest centered around Harrisonville and Mt. Vernon. Kirkwood was third with 17 points, the star being A. Huckins. Disqualification of Griffin, of Trenton, gave Mt. Vernon two points, which enabled them to win. The Vernonites took the half-mile relay over Harrisonville.

In an exhibition event J. V. Scholz, former Soldan star, who won the dash at Pennsylvania, defeated Williams, formerly of Mt. Vernon, in 10 seconds flat. He led by 3 yards.

Wolff Low Medal Man at Algonquin Opening Tourney

Municipal Links Graduate Turns in Card of 78 in Qualifying Rounw.

Clarence Wolff, one of the leading graduates of the Municipal links, was the star of yesterday's opening-day at the Algonquin Country Club. The occasion was the club's spring tournament and 107 entries were received for the qualifying round, yesterday.

Wolff was the low man with a 78, next to him was Roger E. Lord, who has held both city and club titles, with 79.

The links were in splendid condition considering the early date, but few of the golfers were on their game.

The entrance fee for the event was $1 and the total sum received, $107, will be given to the Red Cross. Play will be resumed this week. The pairings will probably be announced Monday.

RICKEY TAKES UP GOLF; WORKS OUT AT TRIPLE A

President Rickey, of the Cardinals, is the newest convert to golf. Rickey joined the Triple A last week and was out taking lessons for the first time, Friday.

Branch says that what with his practice obtained in between Liberty Loan drives, baseball drives and the drive for that $50,000 second payment on the club, he ought to be able to hit a wicked ball from the tee.

NEW LEAGUE ORGANIZED

The Southwestern Business Men's League with four clubs will open its season, Saturday, May 18, with contests on the grounds of the City Sanitarium and Manchester Park. Three teams have thus far been lined up and one more is needed. The nines are the Wiles-Chipmans, managed by "Skinny" Fauth; A. A. Van Cleaves; Beck Nagle, manager and Dr. Johns City Sanitarium, managed by Buck Taylor.

LOADMAN TO MEET ERTLE

MILWAUKEE, May 4.—Dick Loadman, a young bantamweight from Lockport, N. Y., will meet Johnny Ertle of St. Paul in a ten round engagement here on May 10.

PERRY HURLS IN FORM

Athletics' Righthander Holds Washington Club to Three Bingles in 11 Innings.

PHILADELPHIA, May 4.—Davidson, recruit from Brown University broke up a runless pitchers' battle between Johnson and Perry today, by beating out an outfield hit in the eleventh inning, Philadelphia winning 1 to 0. The play at first was close and while Judge turned towards Umpire Connolly, Burns dashed home from third with the only run of the game.

Harper wrenched his ankle in the fifth, and with the bases filled and none out in the sixth, Johnson replaced the left-hander. A fast double play pulled him out of the hole. Score:

RUTH'S POOR FIELDING WINS FOR YANKS, 5-4

NEW YORK, May 4.—New York again defeated Boston here today, 6 to 4. The Yankees bunched hits off Ruth early in the game, and took advantage of his poor fielding in the third, when the pitchers two errors aided the Yankees in scoring two runs. Ruth hit a home run with Scott on base in the seventh and his double in the ninth scored Agnew. Score:

RIVERVIEW TENNIS CLUB TO OPEN COURTS TODAY

The Riverview Club, located near the Chain of Rocks, will open its tennis courts this afternoon at 3 o'clock, with several special matches. Fred Josties and Ted Drewes, present doubles champions of the Central States, Municipal Association and the National Municipal Recreation Federation; Val Satterfield and Elmer Schwarz, two other municipal players, are scheduled to play. Ray Schuessler will act as umpire.

KYRONEN WINS MARATHON

NEW YORK, May 4.—Willie Kyronen, Millrose A. A. of this city, won the Evening Mail Modified Marathon race of about 12 1-2 miles here today. He covered the distance in 1:10:20. Charles Pores, Pehlan Bay Naval Training Station, was second in 1:10:45. Hannes Kolehmainen, Meadow Brook Club, Philadelphia, finished third. His time was 1:11:52.

W. M. A. ATHLETES WIN.

McKendree College met defeat in a track meet with Western Military Academy at Alton, yesterday afternoon, 65 to 43. McKendree excelled in the field events but was weak on the track. Capt. Miller of McKendree was the high point individual with 22 to his credit. Butler of Western was next with 20. Immediately following the meet McKendree defeated Western 3 to 2 in a 7-inning baseball game.

SPEAKER AND BURNS LEAD

Tris Speaker of the Indians and George Burns of the Giants are the leading base stealers in the major leagues. The Indian outfielder has seven pilfers in 11 games and Burns seven in 12.

SHERDELL SHOWS WELL AFTER GOING TO HILL

Triple by Caton, Followed by Mollwitz' Single Gives Corsairs Winning Tally—Cooper Hurls for Bezdek.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 4.—The Cardinals gallantly struggled with the Pirates today and were beaten, 5 to 4, but only after 10 innings of strenuous labor. It was a day of lefthanders all the way, but the southpaws of the Cardinals fell a little shy. Gene Packard was not allowed to finish the first inning. When two were out and four runs had meandered over the plate, he was yanked off the rubber to make place for the Milwaukee phenom, William Sherdell. The latter did excellently and finished the game strong. Cooper, the southpaw of the Pirates and its star pitcher was badly punished in one inning, but held out to the last and won. It was the seventh one-run defeat for the Cardinals this season.

The Pirates looked like sure winners when they scored four runs in the first inning. After Caton was an easy out, Mollwitz walked and Carey got a single and stole second. Both scored on Stengel's hit into right field. Cutshaw died, but King followed with a double and McKechnie with a three bagger, which brought in two more runs. Here Packard made room for Sherdell, who toyed with the Pirates until the two blows in the tenth that wound up the game.

Cooper Loses Control.

Those who thought the Pirates had a cinch on the game were rudely brought to their senses in the fifth inning, when the plucky Cardinals chased three runs across the plate and tied the score. Sherdell was out, when Smith sent a single into left field. King carlessly tossed the ball to the winds and Jack took second on the error. Niehoff was thrown out, and then things happened, Cooper lost control, gave Baird a free pass and hit Hornsby, filling the bases.

Cruise also walked, forcing Smith over. With the bases filled, Paulette got his second hit, scoring Baird and Hornsby.

This tied the score, because the Cardinals had hung up a tally in the third inning, when Smith started off with a single, reached second on a muffed fly by Caton and scored when Mollwitz and Cooper tried the "bother" act.

From the fifth inning on the contest was at evens. St. Louis got two men as far as third base and the Pirates only one. On the way to the finish the Pirates had two of their best men, Stengel and Cutshaw, eliminated because of too ardent objections on a decision.

Cooper, first up for the Pirates in the tenth sent a fly to Cruise. However, by some means Caton, one of the smallest players in the league, hit a three bagger into right field. Mollwitz followed with a single, Caton scoring the winning marker.

Wagner Sells Liberty Bonds.

Hans Wagner was in the stand selling Liberty Bonds, togged out in a gray uniform. He made several sales. He also paraded downtown with the other players of the Pirate team.

The Cards left for Chicago tonight, determined to gain another victory before reaching home.

Hoed the corn and raked the hay.

She plowed a forty-acre tract
Then ninety pecks of spuds she sacked.

She knocked the apples from the trees
And took the honey from the bees.

She fed the ducks and slopped the swine
And milked a herd of lowing kine.

While Johann, her devoted spouse,
Did what he could around the house.

He drank his beer and smoked his pipe
And ate the sauerkraut and tripe.

He let Frau Mueller split the wood
As all good German husbands should.

For Johann Mueller loved his frau
Almost as dearly as his cow.

California Team With 42 Points Winner of Meet

Kelley, Olympic Hero, Is One of Stars in Aviators' Events at Dallas.

DALLAS, Tex., May 4.—Cadet aviators, contesting under the banners of the 30 ground schools from which they had graduated and embracing in their numbers athletes of great scholastic prominence, participated at Camp Dick Ground School today in what officials declared probably was the greatest track and field meet ever held in the Southwest. The California Ground School, with Fred Kelley, former Olympic star, won easily, with 42 points. The proceeds were divided equally between the Red Cross and the Camp Dick Athletic Fund.

A fleet of 20 airplanes flying in battle formation flew over the field during the contest. Afterwards they gave an exhibition in trick flying.

Princeton, which also was well represented, carired second honors with 21 points; Austin (University of Texas) 18; Cornell 8; Illinois 6; Ohio 5; and Fort Sill, Okla., 5. The entrants were all graduates of the above named ground schools.

Fred Kelley, Olympic star, W. M. Kelley and R. I. Templeton, starred for California.

Summary:

100-yard dash—Bailey of Austin; time, 10 3-5s; mile run—Stout, Austin; time, 4:51 2-5; 120-yard high hurdles—W. M. Kelley, California; time, 17 2-5s; 440-yard dash—Sanders, Princeton; time, 54 1-5s; high jump—Templeton, California; height 6 feet; shot put (16 pounds)—Husted, Ohio; distance 41 feet 10 inches; 220-yard dash—Porter, Fort Sill; time, 24 3-5s; 220-yard low hurdles—Templeton, California; time, 27s; 880-yard run—Hayes, Princeton; time, 2m. 20s; running broad jump—Templeton, California; distance, 21 feet 8 inches; pole vault—Harwood, Princeton; height, 11 feet 4 inches; relay race—won by Princeton (Hayes, Sanders, Ludwig and Crowley). Time, 1:37 1-5.

AMATEUR BREAKS 197 TARGETS IN TITLE SHOOT

PELHAM MANOR, N. Y., May 4.—Fred Plum of Atlantic City a member of the Independent Gun Club, of Philadelphia won the thirteenth annual trap shooting championship of America at Travers' Island traps of the New York Athletic Club here today, with a record score of 197 out of a possible 200 targets. Second prize went to Leon H. Davis of the Boston A. A. with 196 targets.

Plum also set a new long run mark for the shoot by breaking 154 straight targets. His individual strings were 24, 25, 25, 25, 25, 25, 25, 25, 24, 24. The team shoot was won by the Independent Gun Club with a total of 969 out of 1000 targets.

WESTERN ROWING CLUB STAGES REVIVAL TODAY

The annual revival day regatta of the Western Rowing Club will be staged on the river this afternoon. Five races, all of them closed to oarsmen of the club, will be on the program. The club has lost many of its stars through enlistment, and new crews will have to be developed. Among the newcomers are Abottmeyer, Althoff, Bender, Bushbaum, Henchen, Schulz, Ruhl, Sutter, Vitt, Weking and Werner.

The schedule of races is as follows: single scull race at 4 o'clock; four-oared shell, double scull and two barge events.

ROCK SPRING GETS 40 RUNS IN GAME WITH DEWEY TEAM

Flinger Oliver Holds Rivals to One Hit, While Mates Rap Out 24 Safeties.

Pitcher Oliver of the Rock Spring School team in the Public School League held the Dewey nine to one hit and was the winner by a 40-to-1 score. Besides yielding only one safety, Oliver was a batting star, with a double and two home runs to his credit. His mates rapped Nordhaus for 24 bingles, Bockingcamp getting five of them.

McShane of Benton, and Kalin of Adams, also turned in good hurling exhibitions, holding their rivals to two safeties.

All the games in the colored groups last week proved slugging matches and resulted as follows: Group A—Simmons 23, L'Ouverture 6; Dumas 28, Banneker 4. Group B—Dessalines 43, Cottage 8; Wheatley 16, Lincoln 14.

FRIES GIVES ONLY TWO SAFETIES AND BEATS CLEVELAND

McKinley's Southpaw Pitcher Also Fans 18 Batters and Wins 8 to 0.

The pitching of Bill Fries, the McKinley High School southpaw, who won his third straight game in the Interscholastic League, was the outstanding feature of yesterday's double-header at High School Field. Fries shut out Cleveland, 8—0, allowing only two safeties. In the opening contest, Yeatman won from Central, 7—4. The victory put the North Siders in second place. McKinley now leads with four victories and no defeats.

In the three contests he has pitched this season, Fries has yielded only one run, while he has been found for seven safeties. He beat Soldan with two hits and one run; Soldan, three singles and no runs, and yesterday Cleveland with two hits. In the four games for McKinley, Fries and Hager have allowed only one run, Hager shutting out Central in his only out. Besides allowing only two hits, Fries struck out 18 batters yesterday.

Fries in the third, fanned the entire Cleveland side on nine pitched balls, while in two other rounds he retired the side on strikes.

Errors Help McKinley.

McKinley scored first in the third inning. Spuehler walked, G. Thompson singled, Spuehler scoring on an error. Fries was safe on Tiemeyer's error, and Finn's infield out tallied G. Thompson. Four more runs came for the South Siders in the fourth, on a single, double and triple, base on balls and an error. Errors were mainly responsible for the other two McKinley markers.

One big inning, the eighth, netted Yeatman a victory over Central, when five bases on balls, a hit batsman, an error and hits by Magouolo and Meyer netted the team six runs. In this inning, Bremser after being found for five tallies, was replaced by Graves, who stopped the fireworks after being found for one more talley. Yeatman's other run came in the third on Maguolo's walk, two passed balls and a wild pitch.

Central Scores Twice.

Central scored two runs in the sixth inning on Rutledge's single, a double by Cristal and Crossley's hit. Bremser's walk, a sacrifice and an error, put Bremser over in the seventh for Central. A hit by Graves, stolen base and Egan's safety gave the Mid-city crew its final marker in the eighth.

An aviator from Scott Field flew over the campus, looped the loop and the nose dive. About 500 fans attended the double bill.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Jack Dempsey Peril Wanes.

THAT Jack Dempsey is merely a first-class light heavyweight is the conclusion to be gleaned from accounts of his fight with Billy Miske, of St. Paul, Friday. The deadly peril supposed to hang over all the behemoths of the title division seems to have been created largely by the masterly ballyhoo methods of Jack Kearns, manager of the Californian.

Dempsey, Friday, showed no overwhelming supremacy over a man 10 pounds his inferior in weight; and the margin by which he won was no broader than that of Fulton, who admittedly put up one of his poor fights against Miske.

Dempsey's punches, supposed to be loaded with the essence of T N T, failed to explode with vital effect. How much less likely would they be to torpedo leviathans from 25 to 60 pounds heavier than himself?

Dempsey's Record Cheaply Won.

DEMPSEY'S knockouts have all been achieved over boxers of inferior caliber, for he lost a decision to a fighter little known to the ring world, Kir Norfolk, a colored boxer from the Panama Canal zone. Norfolk last year trimmed Miske in 12 rounds at Boston.

Nevertheless Dempsey and Fulton would make a far better exhibition than Fulton and Willard, from a purely boxing standpoint. Jess and Fred in the ring together would be fully as lively as a pair of sick sloths; whereas the speedy Dempsey would force Fulton to keep pace.

Fight or Get Out.

THE only reason for holding the Willard-Fulton bout is the desire to see the present titleholder retired from the game. This is certain to happen after his meeting with Fulton. For either Fulton will knock him out, or Jess will quit fighting for good, after one last "cleanup."

When he retires it will be the best day the heavyweight division has known. As a ring slacker, Willard is truly a world's champion. He's the only heavyweight in history who never defended his title in a decision fight in three years following his accession to the championship.

Stood It for 30 Years.

A PHILADELPHIA sporting writer pays St. Louis fans the dubious compliment of crediting the Mound City with being a "great baseball town." We're gluttons for punishment, that's all.

Swat the Fly.

KEEPING down the fly may be useful to the community at large, but in a ball game it has been known to cause disaster. This refers not to the high fly, slammed out by a slugger, but to the winged pest.

Harry Smith, the young catcher, tells this one to prove it:

> Signs are a great thing. We had a manager—in my own minor league—who had an elegant set of signs, and one of them was the order to steal a base, made by tapping himself on the forehead with the right hand. One afternoon we had the bases full and none out in a most important game, when he gave the sign to steal. Nothing to do but obey, so everybody stole with the bases full. Of course, the cruel enemy rounded us up and made it a triple play. The manager was a maniac till we told him that he had ordered the triple steal—and then he remembered that he had slapped a fly that had lit upon his forehead!

Swatting that fly might reasonably be called a "triple killing."

DISTRICT GOLF TOURNEY ENTRANCE FEES WILL GO TO MISSOURI BUILDING

Invitations for the St. Louis district golf association annual championship tournament have just been sent out. The event will take place June 1-8 over the links of the Midland Valley country club.

A feature of this year's tournament it is said, will be the donation of the entry money to the Missouri Building Fund at Camp Funston.

BARNEY SCHREIBER'S FAMOUS STALLION DIES

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 4.—The death from old age was announced here today of Barney Schreiger's, famed old racing stallion, Bannockburn, at the Schreiber farm in this county. Bannockburn was 23 years old and was the sire of many good racers including Horace E, which sold for $25,000 as a 2-year-old, and Dr. Gardner, which brought $15,000 when he was 3 years old.

Bannockburn during his racing career won many important races. Burial will take place at the farm.

Illini Beat Notre Dame.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., May 4.—Illinois deefated Notre Dame in a dual meet this afternoon by the score of 69 2-3 to 56 1-3. Illinois took first, second and third in the hammer throw. Notre Dame took first, second and third in the mile and half mile runs. A hand grenade throwing contest was won by Illinois, 29 to 28. This contest did not figure in the meet.

Poor Pitching Beats Michigan.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 4.—Errors of omission and the ineffectiveness of Pitcher Glenn, were responsible for Michigan's defeat by Chicago here today. Score:

SMALL CROWDS SEE OPENING GAMES IN MUNICIPAL LEAGUF

St. Louis Malleables and American Brakes Win Manufacturers' League Battles.

The St. Louis Malleables and American Brakes were the winners in the opening games of the Manufacturers' League played at Fairground and the Triple A grounds in Forest Park yesterday afternoon. Only about 600 witnessed the two battles, because of the Liberty Loan parades being staged downtown. The Malleables defeated the Triple A club, 7—5, while the Brakes trounced the Hezels, 14—3.

Scheibel, who was in center field for the Malleables, starred with a great catch. It probably was his last game with the team, as he is scheduled to depart to join the national army this week. Gruner's triple with two on was the batting feature. Two double plays killed chances for Triple A in the fourth and eighth innings.

"Lony" Fitzporter, who some years ago was one of the best players in the city, was behind the bat for Triple A. The Malleables stole seven bases against him.

In the Brake-Hezel contest, Pitcher Smith allowed only three hits and struck out 11 men in the eighth innings he pitched. Sexton and Keenoy with three hits each, were the batting stars for the winners. The Brakes won in the first inning when they scored five runs.

FORMAL OPENING OF COMMUNITY KITCHEN TO TAKE PLACE TODAY

Premises Will Be Opened to Visitors Following Ceremonies at 1729 South Seventh Street.

Formal opening of the community kitchen which the Women's Central Committee on Food Conservation have established at 1729 South Seventh street will be celebrated with appropriate ceremonies this afternoon at 3:30 following which the premises will be thrown open for inspection and coffee served to the visitors.

The kitchen is the first of a series of similar establishments to be placed in various parts of the city. It designs to effect saving in food, and fuel for the community, and in time and money for the individual patrons. This will be accomplished through the facilities it offers for buying in large quantities, cooking at a central location and distribution through its system of cash-and-carry. Soups, roast meats and other foods requiring long cooking and close attention on the part of the cook will be prepared at the kitchen and sold at cost to patrons of the neighborhood, who are privileged to carry the food home to their own dining rooms. A noonday cafeteria also will be maintained.

Mrs. Tiffany is chairman of the committee of New York women which was sent to France the first staff for the Women's Oversea Hospitals, made up entirely of American women and equipped by the American Red Cross and financed by the National Women's Suffrage Association, which has guaranteed its maintenance in France.

RUSSIAN FLEET WITHOUT BASE

Germans Hope Capture of Sebastopol Will Be Mortal Blow.

AMSTERDAM, May 4 (By A. P.).—The Koelnische Zeitung makes it clear that the Germans hope the capture of Sebastopol will prove a mortal blow to the Russian Black Sea fleet, which seems to have been causing them anxiety. It says:

"The fleet now is without a base and therefore unable to renew its stocks of coal and ammunition or effect repairs."

G. O. P. FRAMING A "SLATE" FOR AUGUST PRIMARIES

Leaders Expected to Begin Holding Caucuses This Week to Choose "Strong" Ticket.

FEAR DEFEAT THROUGH DRAFTING OF VOTERS

Plan Offered in Explanation of Delay in Filings—Democrats Skeptical of Getting Campaign Fund.

The general belief that Republican leaders, including members of the City Central Committee, are preparing to frame a "slate" for the August primaries, is given as the explanation of the delay on the part of Republicans in filing declarations of candidacy.

Although the last day for filing such declarations is but a month distant, no seekers of Republican or Democratic nominations have yet formally announced themselves to the Election Commissioners. In previous years many candidates for nominations had filed their declarations as early as six or eight weeks before the last filing date.

The Socialists have selected their nominees, but their declarations have not been filed.

Lethargy among Democrats is stated to be due to the want of an organization. Democratic observers say there is little likelihood of obtaining a campaign fund in behalf of a ticket while the present Democratic City Committee is in power.

Little Chance for Independents.

In political circles there is a conviction that Republican leaders will attempt to select the nominees for the various offices and that there will be little chance for independents who enter the race for nominations without the support of the local organization. With the city committee and the "machine" behind the "slate," there is no eagerness among independents to spend their time and money in a practically hopeless contest.

Those who are credited with the most influence in naming Republican candidates are Mayor Kiel, Director of Public Welfare Schmoll, who is also chairman of the Republican City Committee; Collector Koeln, Circuit Clerk Goldstein, Director of Public Safety McKelvey, Supply Commissioner Thomas, Sheriff Weirbrenner and Public Administrator Slater.

McKelvey, Goldstein and Thomas are members of the Republican City Committee.

Republicans who would like to be candidates for offices to be filled next November are sounding these and lesser leaders as to their chances of getting on the "slate." It is expected that caucuses of Republican leaders will be held this week and next to choose those who are regarded as worthy of places on the "slate."

Notwithstanding the admitted weakness of the Democratic organization, Republicans fear that their ticket may be defeated next November. The drafting of thousands of young voters into the army has upset all calculations as to Republican strength.

One reason given for the making of a "slate" is the desire of Republican leaders to name a "strong ticket," which will increase the party's chances of success in the November election. A wide-open primary, it is stated, might result in the nomination of "weak" candidates and thus endanger the whole ticket.

The selection of a "slate" by the party leaders does not preclude independents from entering the primary contests, but as a rule only those who have the backing of the organization succeed in being nominated.

Exclusive of senatorial and congressional offices, there are 41 offices to be filled at the election on Nov. 5. These include the offices of Collector at about $12,000 a year, Clerk of the Circuit Court, Recorder of Deeds and City Treasurer, $5000 each; five circuit judgeships at $5500 each; License Collector, $4000, and nine Justices of the Peace at $2500 each.

WOOD ESTATE APPEAL GRANTED

Additional Inheritance Tax Allowance Brings Total to $145,000.

The Probate Court yesterday authorized Frank B. Coleman, attorney for George M. Block, executor of the will of the late Henry Wood, to pay an additional $12,000 Federal inheritance tax, making a total of $145,000 in such taxes levied against the Wood estate.

The attorney also was granted an appeal from the decision of the Probate Court ordering the executor to turn over to Wood's widow, Mrs. Minnie Wood, $750,000 in partial distribution of the estate, valued at $3,000,000. Under the will she was to get $200 a month, but the Probate Court held she was entitled to renounce the will and take a widow's dower, amounting to one-half of the property. It was alleged that she waived her right to a dower interest in a separation agreement executed in 1902.

LINEMAN ELECTROCUTED WHEN AT WORK ON POLE IN COUNTY

Clyde Watkins, Union Electric Employe, Loses Life; Coroner Finds Circuit Was Not Broken.

Clyde Watkins, 28 years old, of Webster Groves, a lineman for the Union Electric Light and Power Co., was electrocuted at 11 a. m. yesterday on a pole at the intersection of the McKnight and Ladue roads in St. Louis County.

He was extending a feed wire to give service to a new subdivision. His rubber gloves were rolled back at the wrist. As he connected the two wires, the end of one touched his wrist. His foot came in contact with a guy wire and 2300 volts passed through his body.

It was brought out at the Coroner's inquest that the circuit breaker, one mile south, was not thrown. It was learned that housewives who have pies in the oven and other consumers object to the interruption of service when repair work is going on and for that reason circuit breakers are not thrown. Such a task as Watkins was engaged in requires about half an hour.

CONFERENCE ON SOCIAL WORK IN KANSAS CITY MAY 15-22

BRISK LEASING IN BUSINESS SECTION A REALTY FEATURE

Business Property Along Pine Street Conspicuous in Deals Carried to Conclusion During Past Week.

BROAD MOVEMENT BELIEVED AT HAND

Close of Liberty Loan Campaign Expected to Be Followed by Great Demand for Investments.

By Berry Moore.

While not of expansive volume, transactions in realty during the week were diversified in character, presaging a larger and broader movement in this realm of barter and trade.

The distinguishing feature was the brisk leasing of property in the business districts, especially on Pine street, between Twelfth and Eighteenth streets. This extended to large and small buildings, also stores. The most noteworthy leases were negotiated by the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co., the Mercantile Trust Co., and the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co.

W. J. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Co., effected a 10-year lease of the basement of the Century building, at the northwest corner of Ninth and Olive streets, formerly occupied by the McTague Catering Co.

The lessees, whose identity has not been disclosed, but who include several Mongolians, will conduct a restaurant on an elaborate scale, with Chinese trimmings, it is understood. The transaction involves the expenditure of a large sum upon embellishment of the premises.

Among leases effected by the Mercantile Trust Co., was one of the John E. McKinney building, a four-story structure at the southeast corner of Fifteenth and Pine streets, acquired for a 10-year term by the Alligator Oil Clothing Co., of which D. M. Flournoy is vice-president. The quarters, which contain 50,000 square feet, will be occupied by the concern's sewing department.

This company makes an extensive line of oil waterproof clothing for outdoor use, and has received large orders from the national Government. It operates a large factory on Grand avenue, south of Chouteau avenue, besides occupying a spacious three-story building at Chouteau and Theresa avenues, the Pine street building having been acquired as an addition to provide for its greatly increased business.

Leases on Pine Street.

Other leases of Pine street buildings, made through the Mercantile Trust Co., include quarters at Fourteenth and Pine streets, formerly occupied by the premium department of ehtiL ishrdlateuoiwmcfypshrdluw of the Liggett & Meyer Tobacco Co. It was obtained by the R. I. Electric Supply Co., now at 1124 Pine street, and originally located at Rock Island, Ill. The lessors of this building are the Brauer Bros. Mfg. Co.

According to the Mercantile Trust Co., the Brauer Bros. Mfg. Co., which hase been awarded heavy war contracts, has leased, through the trust company, another building at 208-10 North Fourteenth street, adjoining its present plant. The lessor in this instance was Frank A. Ruf, a dirtctor of the Mercantile Trust Co., who owns this entire quarter of a block, as well as having numerous other valuable holdings in that part of the city.

Another lease in this section promoted by the Mercantile Trust Co., provides for the erection of a handsome building at 1211 Pine street for the Underwriters' Salvage Corps, now located at 1125 Locust street. The lessor was H. T. O'Fallon, who was represented by Papin % Tontrup.

A substantial fireproof structure, with all the devices and appliances known to buildings of this character, are included in the specifications for this building, which will be erected without delay.

The Mercantile Trust Co. auso announces that negotiations are in progress for numerous sites on Chestnut street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, for contemplated business improvements.

Manifestly, a movement is developing in the business district west of Twelfth street and north of Olive street, which augurs well for the future of this locality.

W. A. Giraldin, president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange and of Giraldin Brothers, says that after the Liberty Bond sale, the demand for investment holdings in St. Louis real estate, will be renewed on a larger scale, judging from the interest evinced on the part of prospective purchasers of this class of property.

Investment Basis Substantial.

"Absorption of vacancies," Giraldin stated, "together with the upward swing of rentals is placing property all over the city on a most substantial basis. The call for small houses from homeseekers is unprecedented. While the low prices prevaniling for houses is attracting the majority, there are not a few small buyers in the market, owing to the increased rentals. None of the buildings listed with us for sale could be reproduced for within 35 per cent of their original cost.

"At present prices of real estate in St. Louis offer exceptional opportunities for safe and advantageous investments, especially in view of the rising trend of prices of everything entering into construction. Probabilities are that the cost of construction will be even higher after the war, when there doubtless will be an avalanch of building as a result of the accumulation of building plans in the interim."

According to W. K. Morrison, manager of the Fullerton Building, at the southwest corner of Seventh and Pine streets, renting of space in the downtown office buildings has almost depleted the supply. There is only one vacancy in the Fullerton Building, this being on the seventh floor, he says.

The Railway Exchange Building, according to Claude E. Rickets, its manager, is 93 per cent rented, and if pending negotiations are concluded, this building will be 89 per cent rented. The M. K. & T. R. R. Co., which occupies extnesive quarters in the Railway Exchange Building, is dickering for large additional space, due to increased business incident to the war.

Ultra-Exclusive Demand.

A distinct feature of the revival is the demand for houses and sites in the ultra-exclusive residence districts, according to R. King Kauffman, vice president and real estate officer of the Mercantile Trust Co.

"We have had many calls during the last week for lots in the Catlin tract, on Lindell boulevard and facing Forest Park, desired as sites for palatial homes by persons who have been enriched by virtue of the new business created by the war.

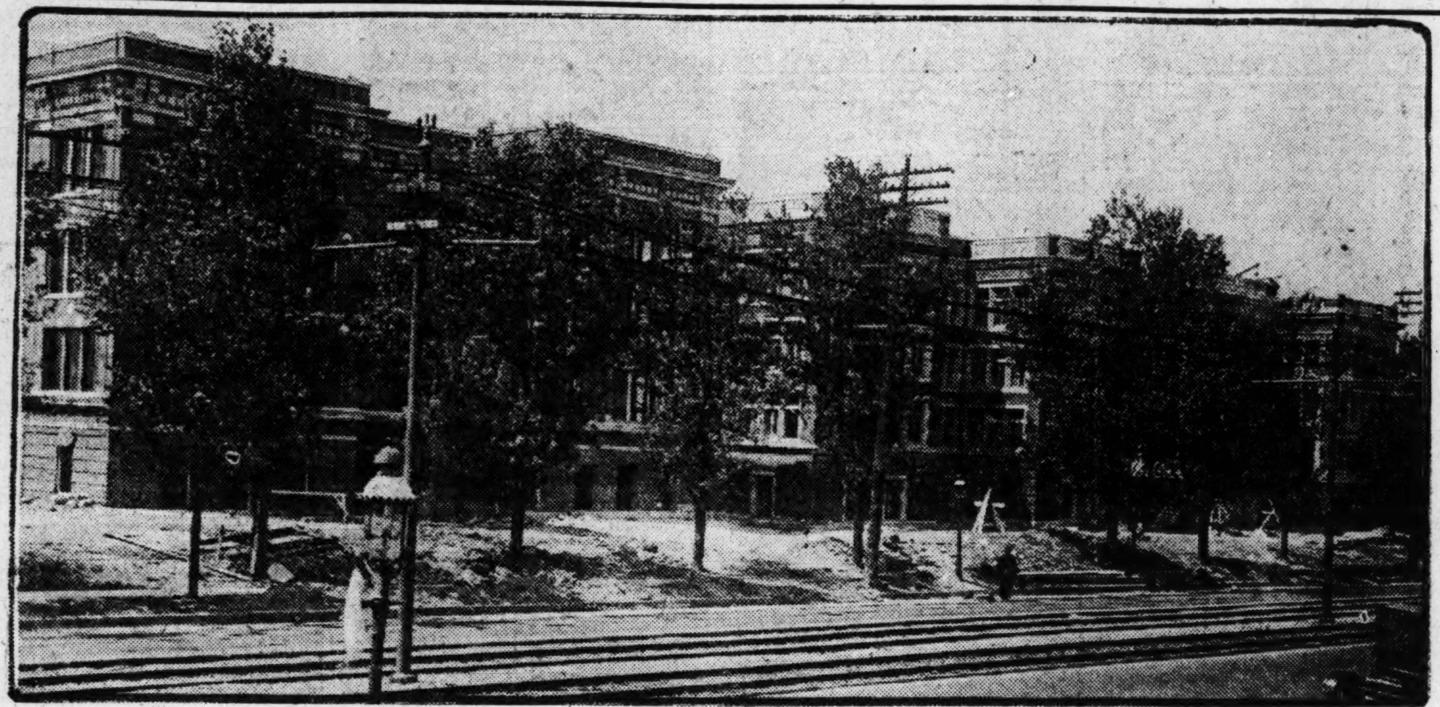
"The sale of the home of Claude E. Vrooman, 5577 Lindell boulevard, to August A. Busch Jr., a client of the Hildenbrandt & Noble Real Estate Co., who married Miss Marie Christy Church, has focused attention on the Catlin tract, in which the Busch home is situated.

"There have also been numerous inquiries as to homes we have for sale in Brentmoor, Forest Ridge and in Parkview. These in several instances, we believe, will culminate in sales."

Apartments and Stores Planned.

Plans have been announced for a block of store and apartments to be erected at the northeast corner of Berlin and Belt avenues by the Sam Koplar Real Estate and Building Co. There will be 18 apartments and four stores, two of which have already been leased. Negotiations are pending for the corner store. The apartments will be on the order of the Westmoreland. Ten building was promoted by Sam Hamberg Jr. of the Rosenbaum Hauschulte Real Estate Co.

New Brentmoor Apartments



FOR the benefit of prospective lessees, the Oreon E. & R. G. Scott Real Estate Co., the agents, have made arrangements with Stix, Baer & Fuller (the Grand-Leader) to furnish one of the new Brentmoor apartments, on the south side of Delmar boulevard in the 5400 block. The value of the furniture selected for the exhibition suite will approximate $10,000.

The improvement will constitute three distinct structures, comprising four stories with finished basement and of fireproof construction. Each has a lot 100x192 feet and has dimensions of 80x125½ feet.

Each building has six suites of 10 rooms and five baths, including reception halls, large living room, commodious dining room and solarium.

Each apartment has 5000 square feet of floor space, the solarium alone having 1600 square feet. There will be four large sleeping rooms, equipped with private bath, floored with flint tile.

The apartments throughout will be finished in mahogany and with tile and hardwood floors; while the solariums will have marble bases, as will also the living rooms, dining and reception rooms. The apartments will be canvassed and frescoed throughout.

There will be separate maids' quarters, with private bath. The kitchens will be electrically equipped while the laundries, which will be off the kitchens, will have electric washing machinery, electric ironing mangle, electric wringer, dryer and ironing board.

Each of the ground floors of the buildings will have a large reception room in the front and six small apartments in the rear, with private baths for the chauffeurs, while the court will be occupied as a garage for tenants' machines.

The cost of the three buildings, including this site, is estimated by the Oreon E. & R. G. Scott Real Estate Co. at $500,000. The builder is the University Investment Co.

LEASES ADDITION TO FACTORY

The Automatic Aluminum Shoe Heel Co. has leased, through the Mercantile Trust Co., the two-story factory building at 811-13 north Tenth street, recently purchased by the Kuhn Realty and Investment Co. The lessee, a comparatively new concern, makes heels for women's shoes out of aluminum.

According to the Mercantile Trust Co., this firm is many months behind in filling its orders, hence the increase in factory facilities.

LENOX PLACE RESIDENCE SOLD

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports having sold the 12-room residence at 5 Lenox place, one of the most beautiful houses in that vacinity, owned by Mrs. Pinkie D. McGrew. It was built for her only a few years ago, but recently Mrs. McGrew has been living with her daughter, Mrs. Albert Bond Lambert. The property was sold to F. L. Hatch, chief engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad System.

HOME-MAKING ON HI-POINTE TO BE INAUGURATED THIS WEEK

First Two Residences Completed on Subdivision to Be Occupied—Season Opens Briskly.

Home-making on Hi-Pointe, the West End subdivision that, at its opening last fall, began to establish a record for favor among discriminating realty buyers, will be inaugurated this week. Herman W. Bromeyer, president of the Nicklin Canning Corporation, will occupy the $10,000 residence just completed on plans to harmonize with the happily chosen site, and Joseph A. Rouveyrol of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. staff will move into one of the prettiest bungalows in the city or suburbs, erected on designs selected by himself from the most modern collection. Only about one-third of the subdivision is open to bungalow improvement, the remainder being restricted to high-class residences.

Among the sales closed at Hi-Pointe last week, it was stated yesterday by Charles De Largy, real estate officer of the Broadway Savings Trust Co., was a 60-foot front lot on Buna Vista avenue to Louis Boeger, president of the North St. Louis Savings Trust Co., on which he will have erected as soon as practicable one of the most imposing homes in that section of the city. Ten other site owners have already approved plans for homes each of which will cost not less than $8000, and the building season has just gotten under way.

"Our season is really just opening," De Largy said yesterday, "having been retarded by the unseasonable weather that marked the latter half of April, but unmistakable indications are for one of the most active, so far as development of Hi-Pointe is concerned, that I have ever known. The matter of a home is receiving greater consideration at this time than in any recent year, owing to the prosperity attending war operations, and our subdivision, with its manifest appeal to every discriminating taste, is at the height of popular favor."

HAT COMPANY IN NEW HOME

Takes Lease on Building at ashington Avenue and Twenty-second Street.

The Caradine Harvest Hat Co., of which J. T. Caradine is president, has leased the four-story and basement building at the northeast corner of Washington avenue and Twenty-second street, owned by the Hart estate, and which has recently undergone extensive alterations. This building contains 70,000 square feet.

The firm has been occupying 1412 Washington avenue and 1427-29 Lucas avenue. It is said to be the largest exclusive maker of harvest hats in the world.

Cornet and Zeibig represented the lessee and the Mercantile Trust Co. the Hart estate.

MANY CITIES STRIVING FOR REALTY CONVENTION DISTINCTION

Kansas City, Chicago and Los Angeles to Send Delebations by Special Trains.

Reports received by A. R. Schollmeyer, chairman of the Hotels Committee of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, for reservations for delegates to the eleventh annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, indicate that various cities are striving for the distinction of having the largest delegation at the convention, to be held in St. Louis June 17 to 20, inclusive.

According to Schollmeyer, an especially spirited contest is on between Kansas City and Chicago. A special train will bring the real estate men from each of these cities, and also from Los Angeles, the home of President William M. Garland, which will also be in the running for high membership.

Tom Ingersoll, secretary of the National Board, is expected here in the near future to aid in completing arrangements for the convention.

The Automobile Committee, of which C. M. McDonald is chairman, has formulated plans to obtain 500 machines for use in entertaining the delegates. The big automobile tour will be held on the second day of the meeting. It will terminate at the Sunset Hill County Club, where a swimming party and dinner dance will be held. R. King Kauffman is in charge of the arrangements for the party and dance.

Crairman W. Giraldin of the Finance Committee, has appointed special committees to solicit funds, and at a joint meeting of committees General Chairman James M. Franciscus urged the committees to untiring efforts to make the convention a success.

ADDED FLOORS TO EXHIBIT BUILDING BEING PLANNED

Development of Enterprise Toward Permanent Form Reported in Definite Series During Past Week.

RAPID FILLING OF SPACE ANTICIPATED

Chamber of Commerce Formally Approves Institution and Will Lend Aid in Promoting Its Suceess.

Fee simple ownership of the former Southern Hotel block at Broadway, Walnut, Fourth and Elm streets, now held under a 20-year lease, and the addition of three or four stories during the coming year, are the plans in process of formation by the Exhibit Corporation, operators of the Exhibit building.

Developement of the enterprise toward a permanent home of business exhibits of all lines, arts, sciences and other worth-while activities, came in definite series the past week. On Monday an official of the Corporation returned from Chicago, where he had a conference with an incorporated concern that wants a larger quantity of space in the building for exhibits of varied character already under contract, with more to follow. The proposal of this concern was to take over the entire building, but it was given no consideration, and the counter offer to accept the exhibits in limited volume on the same basis as those from other sources, was acquiesced in. This has but to be formally ratified by the Exhibit Corporation directors.

Endorsed by Chamber of Commerce.

On Thursday the directors of the Chamber of Commerce formally approved the aims and purposes of the corporation to establish an international exhibit emporium. This action was taken after a representative of the corporation had, at the instance o the board, set forth the objects and detailed the progress of the enterprise. In this statement the fact was made clear that of the more than 200,000 square feet of space in the structure, St. Louis had been allotted a specified amount, which would be held against any outside demand for a reasonable time, the assurance being given that it was the desire of the corporation to have St. Louis dominate heavily. This space the Chamber of Commerce will lend its aid in having occupied as soon as practicable by industrial and other enterprises of the city.

A score or more of the exhibits installed for the Household Show, which closed last night after a successful run of two weeks, were given permanent form, to be reorganized and installed in space taken for that purpose.

It was these developments which, foreshadowing rapid absorption of the existing space in the building, impelled the corporation to turn attention to increasing the height of the structure, which can be done with ease and a minimum of expense because of the heavy type of walls and other characteristics which lend themselves to covering the entire block with one roof.

Coming Sanitary Exhibit.

The Educational Sanitary Exhibit under the auspices of the National Association of Master Plumbers, which will be on for one week commencing June 3, with the convention sessions to be held June 4, 5 and 6, will be the next notable event in the Exhibit Building. This will follow closely the annual convention of the Switchmen's Union of North America which extends from May 20 to June 4 and will be mainly devoted to deliberative work. The Master Plumbers' exhibits will be extensive, embracing all the latest sanitary appliances, with charts and other pertinent features designed to inform the public in matters of health as involved in plumbing. Much of both floors will be occupied by these exhibits, with the central group in recital hall on the second floor. An attendance of about 1500 delegates and visitors is expected by L. McNamara, president of the Association, who is directing the arrangements from headquarters in suite 213, Jaccard building.

President McNamara, who has been identified with the Association since its organization 36 years ago, recalls that the third meeting of the body was held in the Southern Hotel and that the banquet took place in what is henceforth to be the big convention hall. At that banquet Gen W. T. Sherman and David R. Francis were the principal speakers, while at the forthcoming meeting Mayor Kiel and Gov. Gardner will address the assemblage. The only other meeting of the Master Plumbers in St. Louis during the 36 years was in 1904, the World's Fair year.

Market Street Building Leased.

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports a long-term lease of 1026-28 Market street, for the Gehner interest, to W. H. Lee & Co., now located at Tenth street and Clark avenue. The company leased the building because it was new, clean and light, and has one of the best basements in the city, peculiarly advantgeous for storing the Lee products.

LIBERTY PARK LOT SALES INAUGURATED AT GRANITE CITY

Speculators Vie With Homeseekers in Demand for Sites at East Side Industrial Center.

MANY LOTS TO BE IMPROVED AT ONCE

Proximity of Tract to Projected $5,000,000 Industrial Plant a Factor in the Brisk Demand.

Liberty Park, a sub-division of 300 lots, at Granite City, Ill., was launched yesterday with a special sale, which will be continued today, and until all of the lots have been sold. The sale had been postponed from the previous Saturday on account of rain.

Speculators vied with homeseekers in the purchase of lots, which are situated most attractively for home purposes. The sale was continued without cessation until darkness halted it. While the number of lots disposed of at the initial sale was not disclosed, it was obvious that the vendors, the McCausland-Harnett Co., were gratified with the results.

Most of the lots sold, it was stated, were purchased for home sites and will be built upon at once. Among the buyers, it was announced, were a number of professional builders and real estate operators having plans for the erection of homes to be sold on liberal terms. The prices of the lots range from $175 to $300 on sales for cash, a 10 per cent discount is allowed, while on those on monthly payments $10 is required as the first payment.

A factor in the demand for the lots is the proximity of the tract to the 300-acre site purchased for the $5,000,000 coke and by-product plant to be erected by the St. Louis Coke and Chemical Co. in Granite City. This plant, it is estimated, will provide employment for several thousand skilled and unskilled workmen. The McCausland-Harnett company, it was stated, discounted the demand on behalf of the workmen of the projected big plant, when it purchased and subdivided this tract, which is highly available by virtue of its location for homes for the industrial workers of Granite City as a whole.

As a result of the establishment of this great coke and byproduct plant there, it is understood that several dependent industries will erect large plants in that district.

Granite City ranks as one of the most important industrial centers of the Unted States. Factories now running there, it is said, give employment to not less than 15,000 workmen, a majority of whom are skilled artisans who receive annually in wages approximately $7,000,000.

A multiplicity of railroads serve Granite City, which is also connected with East St. Louis and St. Louis by two large interurban systems. It is a flourishing city of 25,000 population, according to the agents, with all the educational and municipal advantages of the larger cities. At least 1000 homes are needed in Granite City, where where a harvest, it is believed, awaits builders.

The McCausland-Harnett Co. is the largest and best known operator of East Side cities, including Wood River.

NEW QUARTERS LEASED FOR "GREATER ADDISON" STORE

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. has effected a long-term lease of the building at 517-519 Washington avenue to Addison's Cloak and Suit Co., which for the past four years have been located at 511-13-15 Washington avenue. The building will undergo extensive alterations and the most modern fixtures will be installed, thus making this establishment one of the most modern in this city. It will be one of the largest ready-to-wear stores for women, misses and children.

The new store will be known as the "Greater Addison's."

The building has a front of about 40 feet on Washington avenue and a depth of 225 feet through to Lucas avenue.

The larger quarters are to provide for the growth of this concern, which has been exceptional.

ROE SHAW'S GARDEN SECRETARY

Charles A. Roe has been appointed secretary of the Misouri Botanical Garden Association, representing the Henry Shaw estate, to succeed Royland W. Switzer.

Roe was formerly manager of the safe deposit department of the Boatmen's Bank, with which he was connected for 20 years, starting as a messenger.

A. D. Cunningham, the first secretary of the association, died two years ago.

Benaiah White, Realty Operator, Dies

Benaiah White, a kell-known realty agent and operator, died at his home in Kirkwood Friday night. White had been participated in many of the larger transactions. He was active in business only a few days before his death.

SYNDICATE PLANS APARTMENTS CHAIN ON DE MUN TRACT

Financial Arrangements Similar to Those Made for Hillcrest Said to Be Under Contemplation.

DEVELOPMENT TO COME AFTER WAR

Advantage of Subdivision Project Enhanced by Adjacent Improvements and Extension of Car Line.

A syndicate is being formed to purchase the De Mun tract, lying on the west line of Skinker road and of Forest Park, with plans for its conversion into a subdivision for high-class apartments.

The project has been conceived by W. J. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co. Financial arrangements similar to those made with the Title Guaranty Trust Co. for the launching of Hillcrest are contemplated. Neither the Title Guaranty Trust Co. nor its companion, the American Trust Co., however, has been disclosed in this connection.

The De Mun tract, which is in the crude, a dreary expanse of clay, has Hillcrest on its north and Hi-Pointe on its south, both of which have developed on an elaborate scale. The three tracts extend west from Skinker road and Forest Park, running parallel with one another.

Developments Enhance Its Value.

Developments affecting the territory west of Forest Park have been of a character recently to enhance its advantages for high-class residence purposes. The most important of these were the execution of plans for extending the Hamilton car line through the center of the district comprising Hi-Pointe, the De Mun tract and Hillcrest, and the purchase by the Christian Brothers of a large tract at the northwest corner of Clayton boulevard and Belleview avenue, as a site for a college structure to cost $500,000.

The West End is being rapidly depleted of sites available for apartments and the De Munn tract has been turned to in order to supply the demand incident to construction of this character after the war which, it is believed, will be unprecedented.

Dedicated to Apartments.

The proposed subdivision is to be placed on the market for apartment houses exclusively. As yet, however, the details of the plan are not available and it is not known whether high-class steamheated flats will be permissible. A large outlay is to be made for its surface and municipal improvements.

Representing a syndicate, the Broadway Savings Trust Co. placed Hi-Pointe at the northwest corner of Skinker road and Clayton boulevard, on the market. This tract has been subdivided on an attractive plan and is being improved on a handsome scale.

The site selected for Christian Brothers' College is west of and virtually adjoins Hi-Pointe. This tract, which has the advantage of the Market street car line, doubtless will receive new impetus with the advent of the Hamilton avenue cars, the tracks for which are being laid.

Hi-Pointe

SKINKER AND CLAYTON

The Highest Tract of Ground in St. Louis

The Beautiful Home

You have so long desired can be yours by building at Hi-Pointe. Everything is new. You start your home when others start, so that, as the years pass, each resident adds his modicum of beautification and thus the community becomes ideal.

For months workmen have been at work grading, making streets and sidewalks, laying sewers and watermains and getting Hi-Pointe ready for your occupancy. Even the alleys are paid.

Now is the time for you to come out and choose a lot. The price of $40 a front foot cannot be held open indefinitely. Already many have bought for investment, and those who come later will have to pay much higher prices. The improvements are all included in the purchase price. Opposite Forest Park on the east and Christian Brothers' College on the west.

As you drive around the fine subdivisions of St. Louis and note the wonderful homes and grounds, the trees and shrubbery, the air of culture and prosperity, just think that only a few years ago these places, not nearly so well situated as Hi-Pointe and not nearly so desirable, were all bare and rough tracts.

Hi-Pointe is superior in every way and has many marked advantages. You should come out without delay and see for yourself how attractive it will be to have your home here.

Motor to Hi-Pointe Sunday and you will see that this is indeed the place for you to live.

The Market street line goes direct. Five-cent fare. Hamilton line now being built through the property.

A Chance of a Lifetime for the "Land Hungry" Man

Ever since before the Civil War the Iron Mountain Stock Farm has been kept intact—a tract of 16,000 acres. Three-fourths of it is mighty near as level as a floor. Fine, black loam land, absolutely free from stone, plenteously watered by creeks and springs, but never subject to overflow. Last year 800 acres planted to corn yielded 30,000 bushels. Splendid soil for corn, wheat, oats, rye—all the staple crops. Stock raising has proved decidedly successful. It surrounds the town of Iron Field One Mile Long.

Mountain, Mo., 83 miles south of St. Louis, no part of it being more than 2½ miles from the railroad station. There are ten miles of fine rock road running through the tract. This land is now being sold in small tracts from 40 acres up, at an attractive price and on EASY TERMS to HOMESEEKERS—people who are "land hungry" and want to farm. For further particulars address:

YOUR LAST CHANCE
I believe unimproved land in the Little River Drainage District, now selling from $50 to $75, will be soon unobtainable below $125. I and my correspondents have listed over 12,000 acres of cut-over unimproved land, which we are selling at $55 to $65. Some of this land is as fine as there is in the entire district, and it is today well worth double what we are selling it for; terms, one-fourth to one-half cash, balance to suit. Box A-13, Post-Dispatch. (c99)

St. Louis County Farms
If you are looking for a farm close to a first-class market and on good rock road, come to St. Louis County. I can sell you a farm of any size from 2 acres up to 300 acres; will sell the farm with or without the crop; will give possession at once; all farms are near church and school, have plenty fruit of all kind, good soil, plenty water; my farms are all well improved and well fenced; will give reasonable terms and will consider trade on strictly clear property.
J. H. A. BUERMANN, Manchester, Mo.

THE GREATEST BARGAIN I have ever offered and by all odds the best buy in Southeast Missouri of which I have knowledge; authorities agree that better land does not exist than is found between Little River and Castor River in the Little River Drainage District in Stoddard County, Southeast Missouri; I own and offer an exceptionally well located tract of 3600 acres; 900 acres in cultivation; 1200 acres deadened; 14 houses, 17 barns; 25 miles woven wire fence; the Frisco R. R. runs through the land and the Cotton Belt R. R. skirts it on the west; two railroad shipping points and townsites, Zeta and Topertown, on the land; price for prompt acceptance, $252,000; one-fourth cash, balance to suit. Griff Glover, 5070 Waterman av., St. Louis. (c99)

Little River Drainage District
In tracts of 80 acres up; $35 to $70 for unimproved land; $85 to $200 for land in cultivation. These are the cheapest agricultural lands in the world today; terms, half cash, 3 years on remainder; 6 per cent interest. Box A-15, Post-Dispatch. (c99)

ARMY DESERTER TELLS OF NAVY DESERTION

Californian Pleads With Secretaries Baker and Daniels to Let His Repentance Stand.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 4.—A dramatic confession of desertion from the United States Navy, carefully kept secret for six years and then revealed in a voluntary admission to Secretary of Navy Daniels, was told in Camp Lewis, Wash., by Second Lieut. Stanley Fred Walker of Los Angeles.

It came as a climax to a court-martial of Lieut Walker for desertion from the United States army. He was accused of remaining in Los Angeles after he was ordered to report for duty at Camp Lewis.

His confession was made on the witness stand during the court martial.

Lieut Walker deserted the United States navy six years ago, when he was known as Walker Nathaniel Gottschalk.

For six years thereafter he passed sleepless nights, tortured by an accusing conscience. He knew no peace and could enjoy no happiness, according to his confession.

Recently, under the name of Walker, he joined the army, receiving an officer's commission.

From Camp Lewis Lieut. Walker was called to his home in Los Angeles and was given leave to make the trip. Just as his leave terminated, he said, he got out of funds and was unable to return to the army post. Several days elapsed before he could find the money for the trip. Finally getting back to camp, he was seized with an overwhelming desire to make a clean breast of his earlier desertion.

He was stung by his relentless conscience until, he declared, it seemed in his own mind that the only way he could "square it" was by going to Washington, D. C., and seeking absolution from the Secretary of Navy.

Lieut. Walker, according to his testimony, did go to Washington and there made his confession to Secretary Daniels, who asked Secretary of War Baker to allow Walker to resume his duties as an officer. And as a result of this request Walker was ordered back to Camp Lewis.

His court martial was completed by Lieut Walker making a dramatic plea for clemency. The findings of the trial will be sent to Washington before being made public.

38,000,000 BUNCHES OF BANANA IMPORTED BY U. S. LAST YEAR

Figures Offered in Protest Against Proposed Embargo to Get Ships for Transatlantic Service.

NEW ORLEANS, May 4.—The United States imported 38,000,000 bunches of bananas in 1917, valued at $13,000,000, of which 1[illegible]00,000 bunches, valued at $6,150,0[illegible]0, were received at the port of New Orleans.

These figures are contained in a protest to the United States Shipping Board over the proposed embargo on bananas. It is planned to use the vessels in the trade for transatlantic service.

If the banana embargo were ordered, it is maintained, it would mean the cessation of virtually all oceanic traffic to South America, and the trade regulations which have been diligently fostered between the two countries would be wrecked.

GIFTS OF ABOUT $224,000 REVEALED BY D. D. WALKER

$116,150 in Cash, Balance in Securities, Founder of Dry Goods Firm Says in Prepared Statement.

REPLIES TO SONS' CHARGE IN SUIT

Gives List of Beneficiary Institutions and Socities — Considerable Sum Went to Individuals.

David D. Walker's own story of his gifts to various objects, relative to his sons' allegations that he was squandering his fortune, was given to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday by his attorney, John D. Johnson. A decision in the Walker guardianship case is expected in Judge Garesche's court tomorrow.

Walker, who is 78 years old, is the founder of the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. and lives in Santa Barbara, Cal., his St. Louis residence being at 5 Hortense place. G. Herbert Walker and D. D. Walker Jr., his sons, filed the guardianship proceeding and a Probate Court jury, Feb. 18, found the elder Walker to be of unsound mind. Probate Judge Holtcamp then appointed the St. Louis Union Trust Co. guardian of Walker's estate, the value of which is estimated at $750,000.

Attorney Johnson and his son, Loomis G. Johnson, who is associated with him in the case, petitioned Judge Garesche to punish Judge Holtcamp for contempt of court, in that he disregarded a writ of prohibition which Judge Garesche had issued before the case was heard. Judge Holtcamp's defense is that he was not served with the writ until after the case was decided. The question of jurisdiction is also at issue. If Judge Garesche either holds Judge Holtcamp in contempt or decides that the Probate Court lacked jurisdiction, the appointment of the guardian will be annulled.

In testifying at the hearing in the Probate Court, G. Herbert Walker said his father had given away $300,000, in the three or four years previous, to persons and causes having no claim on him.

What Walker Gave Away.

In his prepared statement, the elder Walker tells of giving away cash aggregating $116,150, much of it being to institutions and charities of recognized standing, but a considerable amount to individuals. He also tells of giving a total of $800 a year, "for a great many years," to certain objects.

He also tells of giving 475 shares of Laclede Gas stock to his wife, and of giving 335 shares of Laclede Gas and 50 shares of the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. to other persons. The present value of Laclede Gas stock is nearly par, or $100 a share, so that the gift to his wife would represent a present value of nearly $47,500, and the other gifts of Laclede Gas stock a value of nearly $33,500. Ely & Walker stock is usually quoted somewhat above par, so that gift of 50 shares would mean more than $5000. The total of cash and stock gifts, counting 20 years as the period for which he gave the annual sums referred to, is about $224,500. Exclusive of the gift to his wife, it would be about $177,000.

Walkers statement was headed, by himself, in this fashion:

"Why a Little Boy, Named D. D. Walker, Who Left a 65-Acre Farm, 4½ Miles from Bloomington, Ill., on the Third Day of March, 1857, and Landed in St. Louis on the Fourth Day of March, 1857, Never Became a Millionaire."

The list of his gifts to institutions and societies, which he says is made from memory, and which extends back for many years, is as follows:

Gifts to Institutions and Societies.

Catholic University, Washington, $1000; St. Louis Y. M. C. A., $1000; "A. D. Brown, for his Baptist Hospital," $1250; New Cathedral, $6000, St. Louis University Medical School, $7500; Red Cross, in Balkan War, $500; Gen. Howard's School for Boys in Tennessee Mountains, $100; to John Redmond, for Irish Home Rule, $500; Mt. St. Rose Hospital, $4000; St. Louis Y. W. C. A., $5000; St. Louis Queen's Daughters, $2500; Father Coffey's anti-wineroom work, $500; Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home, $1000; Maternity Hospital, $1000; Father Dempsey's Hotel, $1000; Red Cross, in 1917, $10,000; Belgian tobacco fund, $500; Real Estate Exchange, for negro segregation campaign, $5000; Children's Hospital, $600; Knights of Columbus, $500; Sisters of Notre Dame, for new convent, $10,000; St. Vincent de Paul Society, $500; Sisters of the Good Shepherd, $300; another sisterhood, $300; Volunteers of America, $400; religious and charitable institutions in California, $4900; to seven charities, annual payments aggregating $800 a year, "for many years."

He underscores the statement, "I have never wasted a single dollar on foreign missions."

The list of gifts to individuals is in considerable detail as to the different cases. He writes:

Gifts to Individuals.

"I loaned one young man $2000, and two others $3000 each, to start business with. They all lost every cent of it. I sent to Alma Bell, who killed her betrayer, in California, $100; and to a little girl in Paterson, N. J., for the same act, $100; and to Hattie LeBlank, a little French Canadian girl, who was only 17 years old, and could talk or understand but very little English, and who was arrested in Waltham, Mass., for killing a man named Glover, $100.

(He cites a telegram which he sent to Archbishop O'Connell of Boston, in 1909, offering to pay up to $250 for the care of the LeBlank girl in prison, and for her defense. He adds that all three girls were cleared when they came to trial.)

"I advanced a lady in Baltimore, who had been kind to our daughter while she was sick in a convent in Emmitsburg, Md., $2100, at different times, to keep her husband from breaking, but he finally busted, and I did not put in any claim for the money.

"I paid to the Equitable Life Association of New York $7500 for a $50-a-month life annuity for a lady who is not a relation of mine. To our gardener's little daughter in Kennebunkport, Me., who has a broken back (her back was not injured on our place), I gave $2500. To a nephew, $5000. To one of my old office men, $5000. To another of my old office men, $1250. The latter were both hard up against it. To a busted customer in Texas, $1000. To improve the cemetery where my father and mother were interred, $250.

"I gave my wife 475 shares of Laclede Gas stock for a special purpose; she was to keep it and use the dividends for certain purposes. I had previously given her $50,000 in cash.

Stock Gifts to Individuals.

"I gave to an old lady in Charlestown, Mass., 100 shares of the same stock; a lady in Bloomington, Ill., 60 shares; a daughter of a policecan in St. Louis, 60 shares (her mother nursed Bert and Teddy when they were babies); a highly esteemed maid, 40 shares; our gardener's daughter in Maine, 25 shares; to Edward Ingamells' son, 50 shares; to a cousin of my wife, 50 shares of Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. stock; to Minnie Bensiek, G. H. Walker's cook, $500; to Edward Ingamells, $1000; to Edna Ijams, a niece, $3000; to Mrs. Curtis, a niece, $1000; to Hattie Watson, a niece, $1000; to Mrs. John Kendall, a niece, $1000; to Rev. Father O'Connor, $750; to Dena Grader, Teddy's former nurse, $500; to Charles Clark, Bert's former deaf chauffeur, $1000; to Ella Gildea, a pensioner of my wife, $5000; to Miss Semmes and Miss Cronan (both had been my wife's trained nurses), $500 each.

"To a lady whose husband had been taken from her by the Government, and whose bank account had been attached, leaving her with a $2 bill on hand, I put $3000 in the bank here, which will pay her $50 a month for six years. She had five children at the time, aged from 12 years on down.

"I tip everyone of the working class who does anything for me. I pay 25 cents for a shave, 50 cents for a haircut and 15 cents for a mustache-trim; tip the manicurist 50 cents; and stenographers from 50 cents to a dollar, in proportion to the length of my letters. I pay these tips, no matter what part of the United States I am in.

Lost $150,000 in Bucketshop.

"Practically speaking, I have never spent very much money on myself, and have never lost anything by gambling, except through a certain 'bucketshop,' where I have lost not less than $150,000 net."

He also tells, in a supplementary statement, of large expenditures which, he says, he made for certain members of his immediate family.

"Most of the money I have been giving away the past year," he says, "is money that my wife would have inherited from me, should she have outlived me." Mrs. Walker died last July.

Attorney Johnson also showed the reporter a copy of a statement prepared by the elder Walker as to his differences with his son, G. Herbert Walker, at their adjoining summer homes in Maine. After considerable financial detail he gives a copy of a letter which he sent to his son Aug. 6 last, serving notice on him "not to put your two feet on any part of my ground, the balance of the season of 1917.

"I will permit you to use the main road down to our garages," the father writes, "pass between them and take the path which passes my new cottage and leads on up to the stone pier. You must return the same way. Should you violate this demand I am justly making against you, you will do so at peril of your life. I have Teddy's shotgun borrowed and ready to use. If I am compelled to use it I will shoot you near your knees, so as not to kill you, but disable you for life."

G. H. Walker testified, regarding this letter, at the hearing in February, that his father wrote threatening to kill him if he set foot over an imaginary line.

RUMMAGE SALE FUND AT END OF FOURTH DAY WAS $7900

Junior League Hopes Remaining Articles Will Carry Total to at Least $12,000.

At the close last evening of the Junior League rummage sale at 1011 Franklin avenue, the receipts for the four days were $7,900.

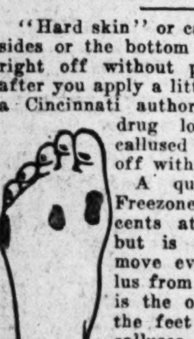
The Junior League girls expect to have between $12,000 and $15,000 when the remaining articles are auctioned this week. They will meet tomorrow to decide how they will dispose of the remaining articles.

There are still several garages full of articles, among them an orchestrelle—an organ which plays player-piano rolls—which it is hoped will sell for $1500.

The rush which began on carpets, rugs and lace curtains the first day continued throughout the sale, the tables being replenished every morning and almost emptied in a few minutes. Trunks and satchels also sold well.

A man who watched a group of girls who served as saleswomen, approached them and said: 'I have a secondhand store, and any time any of you girls want a job you can get one from me."

The money which the Junior League realizes from the sale will be used to establish a fund for teaching nurses vocational work for soldiers and sailors who return from the war disabled.



PEEL OFF ANY CALLUS

Here's Magic! Instant Relief Without Any Pain

"Hard skin" or callus spots on the sides or the bottom of the feet peel right off without pain or soreness, after you apply a little Freezone, says a Cincinnati authority. This ether drug loosens the dead callused skin so it peels off with the fingers.

A quarter ounce of Freezone costs but a few cents at any pharmacy, but is sufficient to remove every corn or callus from one's feet. This is the only way to free the feet from corns and calluses without soreness, danger or infection.

After the corn or callus is lifted away the skin beneath is pink and healthy, and not sore, tender or even irritated.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

FIRST JEFFERSON BARRACKS.

S. M. G.—Jefferson Barracks, one of the most noted landmarks on the Mississippi River, was established as a military post by the War Department in 1826. It was at first designated as the "New School for Instruction" for the training of soldiers. The tract embraced 1702 acres, and was, until 1824, a portion of the commons belonging to the village of Carondelet, now a part of St. Louis. It was leased by the old village to the United States, with a view to getting a market near by. A quit claim to the tract was given to the U. S. by the corporation of Carondelet in 1854, when a patent was granted for the balance of the original commons. Afterwards an unsuccessful effort was made by Carondelet to recover the land. In the commonly accepted accounts it is stated that the site for the barracks was selected by Gen. Jacob Brown, the general in chief of the army, implying that the selection was made after a personal inspection. But according to the recollection of the late Richard Dowling, the General did not visit the barracks until some progress had been made in the work of construction. Dowling was a carpenter's apprentice, and was employed in making window frames for the barracks when Gen. Brown, whom he saw, visited the place. But however this may be, the selection was an excellent one. The site has been approved as the most eligible cantonment in the whole country, and was warmly cherished by all the old army officers who have been stationed there. An officer, seldom quoted, stopping at the post in 1827, writes that the location is situated amid gentlly rolling hills, crowned with lofty forest trees, without undergrowth save grass and wild flowers. Yet, as the buildings were in the process of erection, with none complete for habitaion, the first troops ordered there must have suffered great inconveniences. The following may give a slight glimpse of the situation in 1928-9: The soldiers lived in huts and tents, protected by long fences in front. One of the regiments was in cantonment on the south side of the first hill. On the crest of the hill were extensive stone barracks in progress. Lower down were encamped the First Infantry, some staff and other officers with their families. They occupied huts in very detached situations. The tedium of existence was only enlivened by the music of a full band, the musicians occupying what by comity, was called the "grand parade," shaded by venerable trees. By Christmas the Sixth Infantry got into the stone barracks, yet unfinished and uncomfortable. On the Ja. 8 the First Regiment gave a splendid ball in an unfinished barrack. There was a display of flags, and hundreds of bright muskets, with a candle in the muzzle of each, furnished the needed illumination. The elite of St. Louis and Louisville were present, and beauty added its spell to the charming scene. The barracks were planned and their erection begun under the superintendence of Gen. Henry Atkinson of the Sixth Infantry. In 1837 the buildings were completed, and occupied by the First and Sixth Infantry. They were built of gray limestone, much of the masonry being done by the soldiers at a cost, it is stated, of only $70,000. It was originally intended to accommodate 22 companies. The barracks were built on three sides of the parade grounds, leaving the front open to the river.

BEAUTY CULTURE.

MARGARET.—Cucumber milk is a specific for redness of face, roughness and sunburn. The ingredients are: Oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; fresh cucumber juice, 10 ounces; essence of cucumbers, 3 ounces; white castile soap (powdered), ½ ounce; tincture of benzoin, 2-3 drachm. The juice of cucumbers is obtained by boiling them in very little water. Slice them thin, skin and all, and let them cook slowly till very soft. Strain through a fine seive and then through a cloth. Make the essence by putting an ounce and a half of the juice into the same quantity of high proof alcohol. Put the essence with the soap in a large jar or bottle—the larger the better, as the mixture requires shaking. After a few hours, when the soap is dissolved, add the cucumber juice. Shake till thoroughly mixed. Then pour out into an earthen bowl and add the oil and benzoin, stirring constantly till you have a creamy liquid. Be sure that the cucumber juice is strong, for it is the natural arsenic in the cucumber which imparts its whitening power. Put in small bottles, keep tightly corked and in dark. Always shake before using.

HEALTH HINTS.

MRS. M. G.—Dr. Eugene J. Asnis, professor of pathology of Temple University Medical School, Philadelphia, has concluded fresh experiments with olive oil bought in the open market, and he finds that it is not only very servicable in its capacity to diminish the acids in the stomach, but it also assuages and comforts the cramps and spasms of the stomach and intestines. Moreover, his researches indicate that olive oil is superior to nitrate of silver, belladonna, even bismuth, when there is phyperacidity or excess of the natural acids of the stomach. It is local in its action and does not injure or affect the rest of the anatomy as does belladonna. Neither does olive oil tend to constipation, as bismuth does. Nor is there any danger of ulcers and local injuries, which cannot be said of the use of silver nitrate. When there is ulcer of the stomach or intestines the ulcer is sometimes kept from healing by the hyperacid stomach juices as well as by the muscular movements and spasms of the stomach walls. According to Dr. Asnis, olive oil checks the formation of acid and also relieves the spasm. Furthermore, it forms a soothing coat of protection upon the injured lining membrane. Perhaps a feature of olive oil that is as useful as any of the others is that it remains in the stomach for a longer period than any of the other drugs. It is also a nourishing food and a mild laxative to some persons. There can be no denial of the heat, fuel and energy values of olive oil. It is sometimes helpful in gall stones and other bile ailments.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MEMPHIS.—No premium on Mexican dollar of 1835.

A WIFE.—Your husband will be required to allot you at least $15 of his pay and the Government will make you an allotment of an additional $15.

E. C. R.—Soldering aluminum: Aluminum, 8 pts.; pure zinc, 92 pts. Aluminum melted first, zinc added gradually; finally add some fat, stir with iron rod and pour into molds. For flux, use copaiba balsam, 2 pts.; Venice turpentine, 1 pt., and a few drops of lemon juice. Dip soldering iron into same flux.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of Robert J. Pierce, who died May 3, 1917.

One long year has passed away
Since that most sad, mournful day,
When God alone, who knows the best,
Called father to that home of rest.
From his loving WIFE AND CHILDREN. (c)

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Ferdinand J. Henckler, who departed this life one year ago, May 7, 1917.

In silence you suffered,
In patience you bore,
'Till God called you home
To suffer no more.
Sadly missed by your wife.
MRS. MAGGIE HENCKLER. (c)

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear mother, Amelia Keller, who passed away, May 2, 1916.

Forget you, no I never will;
It was a bitter pain and shock
To part with one I loved so dear;
It left me broken-hearted.
Day by bay I miss you more.
Sadly missed by her daughter.
AMANDA KELLER. (c)

In Memoriam.

In memory of our darling, Rose Prince, who departed this life May 7, 1917.

We list the sound of footsteps
To the laughter and childish joy
Of the children coming from school;
Then we think of our own little girl.
You've gone from this worl of sorrow
To a land of sunshine and joy—
But we long to have you with us,
Our own dear little girl.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, BROTHER, GRANDPARENTS, AUNTS AND UNCLES.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In memory of my beloved mother, Bridget Heffernan, who died one year ago, May 2, 1917.

Just one year ago you left us;
How I miss you, mother dear.
And remember all your kindness
As I drop a silent tear.
More and more each day I miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within my heart concealed.
Sadly missed by her DAUGHTER.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father.

Twelve months have passed, dear father,
Since you have gone to rest;
We hope and pray that ere this time
You are among the blest;
Although you now sleep peacefully
In Calvary's quiet shade,
Our love and prayer, dear father,
For you shall never fade.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of my dear little mother, Anna J. Watkins (nee MacArthur), who died five years ago, May 2, 1913.

"I'm dreaming I see and feel thy caress,
Thy heart beating warm against mine;
That I hear thy low whisper yet murmuring, 'God bless
And protect my dear boy, thee and thine.'"
Sadly missed by her only son.
JOHN ARTHUR WATKINS.

In Memorian.

In loving rememberance of our darling mother, Anna Richarz, who departed from us 1 year ago, May 2, 1917.

Time rolls on, it will not stay.
What brief we felt since that sad day,
With one so loving, kind and true,
How hard it was to part with you.
Sadly missed by her
CHILDREN. (c)

In Memoriam.

In sad and loving memory of our darling and only baby, Florence E. Orf, who departed this life on April 29, 1917, aged 4 years 11 months.

Another little darling lamb has gone to dwell with Him who gave;
Another little darling baby girl
Is sheltered in the grave.
God needed His sshrlduetaoishrdlu
God needed one more angel child
Amidst His shining band,
And so He bent His loving smile
And clasped one darling baby's hand.
Sadly missed by heartbroken
MOTHER AND FATHER, GRANDPARENTS, AUNTS AND UNCLES.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear son and brother, John H. Eakhoff Jr., who departed this life one year ago May 7, 1917.

Our darling son and brother from us is gone
To a home beyond the sky.
We tried so hard to keep him,
But our boy we could not save.
To his grave we slowly wander,
Until death calls us away
Where we hope to join him hand in hand
At the throne on Judgment day.
Sadly missed by his FATHER, MOTHER, SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Doermer, who departed this life May 2, 1917.

On this day, the 5th of May,
We laid our darling mother away.
Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear mother, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
Our dear mother would be called away.
We could not realize what was said
When the message came that mama's dead.
Silently the shades of evening
Gathered 'round our lonely door,
Silently they bring before us
The sweet face we see no more.
So, often we go to your grave,
Lingering there and trying to be brave;
But, oh, 'tis hard to bear
To go away and leave you there.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

SEE NEWELL FOR USED CARS

An Attractive Small Tourin

The owner of the Chevrolet Baby Grand touring is the best argument in favor of looking at this number of the car; it has been overhauled, repainted and has a new top; has ample room for 5 people; is a powerful car; and a most comfortable one; the price is right—$350; it is a buy; terms if desired. McKELVEY, 3324 Locust. Bomont 95; Central 301.

A HUDSON BARGAIN

Here's a car that is in good mechanical shape—it has good, serviceable tires—it has been entirely repainted; equipped with a new top; and makes the appearance of practically a new car; it's the 6-40 type; and we believe that to any man who wants a good car at a low price this offering will fill the bill. It's one of those cars that must be seen to be appreciated and it won't last long; the price is really low; terms can be arranged. McKELVEY, 3324 Locust. Bomont 95; Central 301.

HOW GREENSTUFFS ARE GROWN ARTIFICIALLY

"Sprouter" Will Prove Excellent Device for Backyard Poultry Raiser.

The use of green stuff in feeding poultry is always advisable, but it is especially so now. It means less expense, better health for the fowls more rapid growth, increased egg production. Raising greenstuffs is easy for the farmer during most of the year. It is a problem that largely takes care of itself. The back lot poultry raiser has a more difficult problem. He may solve it in several ways or by a combination of plans. He can have sprouted oats, a most excellent food at all stages, for the newly hatched chick and for the laying hen. It is easy to produce.

A commercial sprouter may be purchased, or one can be of the home-made variety. The usual type of sprouter has several shelves upon which the oats are placed. They are kept moistened. A small kerosene lamp is kept on the floor of the sprouter. The growth is surprisingly rapid. To little chicks especially it should be fed while small and tender. The finished product of course should be coming along at different stages on the shelves or drawers of the sprouter. The sprouted oats may be fed generously, at small expense, and with fine results. Of course other forms of green stuff may be provided, such as lawn grass and clippings. But clippings should be fed with caution. Long, dry wiry grass will cause a crop-bound condition. Lettuce is good. Swiss chard is better than lettuce, grows more luxuriantly and is more easily produced. If one has the room two sets of yards may be used.

The fowls are kept alternatively in the two yards. While they are kept in one yard green stuff is growing in the other. It may require some thoughtful care and ingenuity to provide plenty of green stuff. But it can be done, and indeed must be done in order to secure the most satisfactory and profitable results.

How Curiosity May Spoil the Best Hatch

Many people using incubators forget the old maxim about counting their chickens, and by opening the door to see how many eggs are pipped, materially reduce the number finally hatched. The last three days of incubation is the most critical part of the hatching period, says T. S. Townsley of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, and the care at this time has an important bearing upon the hatching per cent. At this stage the control of temperature and the regulation of moisture supply are particularly important. The temperature after the eighteenth day must be watched carefully. The activity of the chicks creates heat, and there is a tendency for the temperature to rise.

Any considerable increase in the heat in the macihne weakens the chick and drives out moisture, thus causing the chick to dry fast to the shell. Opening the incubator door to show the neighbors what a wonderful hatch is promised also allows the moisture to escape, cools the machine and thus gives the chicks a shock which adds materially to the list of dead in shell.

On the eighteenth day the machine should be closed and not opened again until the hatch is finished. During this time the temperature should be watched closely and regulated by turning the lamp down, so that the temperature on a level with the top of the eggs will not be above 105 degrees. The machine should be darkened during the hatching period to prevent the first hatched chicks from trampling those coming out later. There is nothing gained by helping chicks out of the shell, as those unable to get out unaided are not worth the effort required to help them out. After the hatch is finished the shells and unhatched eggs should be removed and the temperature of the machine gradually reduced to about 95 to 98 degrees and the chicks left in until the brooder is ready.

Nation Urges Use of Potatoes for Chickens

Potato week for people begins today, and potatoes for chickens are also to be urged, the ration having been tried out and proved successful. At Deltsville, Md., they are feeding hens cooked potatoes in mash with excellent results, using from one-third to three-eighths by bulk potatoes, mixing with bran, cornmeal and beef scrapes enough to give a good consistency to the mash.

One instance of great success in feeding potatoes to hens is reported by Mose Smith of Ontario, Canada, who had almost 500 hens, and because of the high price of grain, decided to sell half. As he had a big supply of potatoes on hand, he thought he would fatten the hens on the potatoes before selling them. About 10 days after feeding the potatoes mixed with brans, etc., he found the hens on that ration were laying many more eggs than the rest of the flock which was being fed on a balanced grain ration. So he kept the hens, and is feeding his while flock on a potato ration.

The Department of Agriculture, which is conducting a "Back Yard Poultry" campaign in St. Louis under the direction of Mrs. W. D. Henderson at 905 Locust street, has issued many interesting free booklets which can be obtained at that office.

Swallows Nest Mostly on Unpainted Surfaces

There has been a good deal of discussion, with differences of opinion, as to some of the nesting habits of cliff swallows among bird lovers and ornithologists. It has been contended that such swallows never build their nests on the sides of painted barns or other buildings. Others report that they do build nests on painted buildings. Of this there can be no doubt, but it is certain that they prefer unpainted buildings for the reason that if the nest is built on a painted surface, the paint may come off and the nest fall to the ground. A farmer had a barn, unpainted, which was a favorite nesting place of cliff swallows. He painted three sides of the barn at first, leaving the fourth side unpainted for a time, in order to see what would happen. The birds built their nests only on the unpainted side. But there are instances which cannot be questioned in which they have used painted surfaces for nest building.

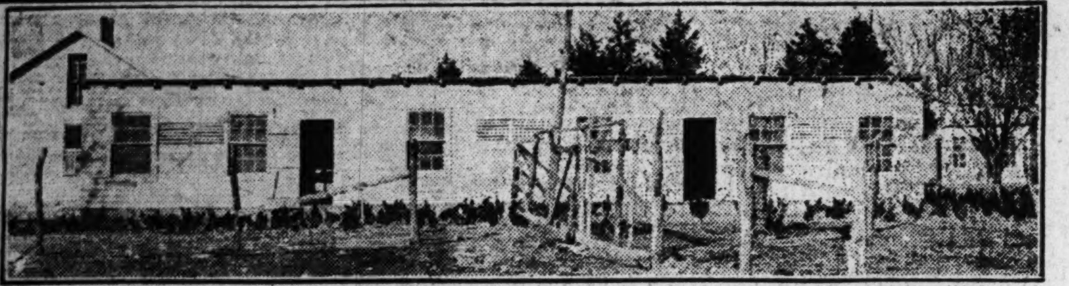
POULTRY, BIRDS and ANIMALS

A "FOOL-PROOF" POULTRY HOUSE



THIS picture shows the poultry quarters on the farm of George R. Russell, Chilhowee, Mo. Mrs. Russell, who has charge of the poultry department, calls it her "fool-proof" poultry house. It is built according to the recommendations of the Poultry Experiment Station at Mountain Grove, Mo. It has raised dropping boards and all the floor space is available for the use of the birds for scratching in the winter. The house is easily cleaned and the manure spreader is driven in front of it so that the manure and litter from the house may be thrown directly into it and hauled to the fields or garden.

"We have found that mites and lice can be controlled absolutely," says Mrs. Russell, "if the roosts, nests and dropping boards are painted twice a year with coal tar paint. This is a black, sticky substance that is used to paint paper roofs. It has a strong smell and not only kills all mites that it comes in contact with, but covers the nits so they will not hatch. It costs about 60 cents a gallon and can be bought from lumber yards or drug stores."

S. C. WHITE ORPINGTONS A LEADER, SHE FINDS

Woman Grower Relates Success With Breed in Five Years of Production.

BY MRS. ROBERT ITEN,
Of Iten's Poultry Farm, Overland, Mo.

Five years ago, when we started breeding the single comb White Orpingtons, it was our opinion that any breed bred right was a good breed, and still believe it. But after raising the White Orpingtons for five years, have come to the conclusion that it is the leader among breeds bred right.

It is my opinion that there is not another variety that can compare with the White Orpington in its massive bearings and white plumage, which makes a beautiful contrast with green grass, and there is no prettier sight than these snow-white birds scattered over a green lawn. There is no part of the showroom that will attract so much attention as the coops of White Orpingtons if they are well conditioned and properly cooped. The kingly pose of the male bird will call the attention of the most unskilled breeder.

Stand Confinement Well.

The Orpingtons stand all manner of confinement and keep contented, or will be good foragers, always looking for something to pick up. With a fowl combining these qualities there is certainly not a breed that will give the satisfaction that the Orpingtons possess.

In winter we get more eggs from our White Orpingtons than the breeders of other varieties, because the White Orpington is naturally a winter laying variety and because of the care we give our birds.

Then, when I kill an Orpington for eating, it makes a good meal for a good-sized family; also when dressed for market they do not present the unfinished appearance of some of the darker varieties, and they are well known for their fine quality of meat.

Are Good Layers.

Coming back to their laying qualities they are virtually immune to climatic changes and lay when eggs are high in price, which means more profit, as an egg laid then is worth two laid in the middle of summer.

It is quite simple to pick out your layers by sight in the first place by touch or feeling in the second instance. First all good layers have a fine shaped head and neck, the poorer layers having a coarse thick head. If you have a large flock just take seven or eight birds at a time and put them together in a small coop then observe them and pick out finest headed birds; do this with all your flock when by sight you will have picked out all your best layers. Second, make more sure by the second test feeling; all good layers have very thin, pliable vent bones, while all the poor layers have coarse vent bones. After a few trials at this work you will be able to know your best layers without any trouble.

The males are a little harder but the vent bones are a sure test. If you pick your male birds that are forward and cheeky you will find on applying the vent test that you have the right ones.

Best Hatching Month.

The best months for hatching white Orpingtons are March and April or better still in February, if you have a warm place to keep them. We have found that the coal heating brooder stoves are the best for brooding a large number of chicks. (Around the stove we have chick wire which prevents the chicks from wandering off from the heat during the first few days.) With this system you have no dark stuffy corners and chicks always need an abundance of good fresh air.

When chicks are taken from the incubator they are not fed for nearly 48 hours then are given sour milk or butter milk. If the milk is not obtainable we feed a buttermilk mash. Infertile eggs, tested out of the incubator, boiled for 20 minutes and ground shell and all, and mixed with the same quantity of rolled oats certainly makes chicks grow. We do not feed commercial chick feed until after the chicks are a week old and then only sparingly until they get used to it.

Chicks properly fed are fast growers and will easily attain the weight of 2 lbs. in eight weeks. The fact that they are such fast growers makes them a wonderful market fowl and there are few breeds of which this can be said.

The standard weight of an Orpington pullet is 6½ lbs., and if properly raised will begin laying at from 6 to 7 months of age. Eggs from fully matured stock will weigh 24 to 26 ounces to the dozen, which is another point in their favor. To sum up, no matter for what purpose you want a chicken we can't see where you can improve any upon the present day white orpingtons.

Poultry Paragraphs

A bird afflicted in any way should not be put into the breeding pen.

Variety in feeding is one way of keeping the flock in good condition.

Little and often is the best feeding system for little chicks.

The hen that lays lots of eggs needs lots of grit and oyster shell.

There should be at least one nest for every four or five hens in the laying flock.

The less exercise market birds get the more quickly they will fatten.

Other conditions being equal the busy hen may be expected to lay the most eggs.

No matter what the style or equipment, the poultry house should first be windproof.

Fresh poultry droppings are said to have about twice the fertilizing value of cattle manure.

Chopped onion tops fed to chicks tend to keep the little fellows in good health.

Two very common causes of bowel trouble in chicks is feeding too early before they are ready to use food, and feeding too much at a time.

It seldom pays to doctor a chicken that is really sick. But it does pay to use every precaution to keep the birds in health.

Dry earth sprinkled under the perches after the dropping board has been cleaned will make the next cleaning easy, and it improves the manure for the garden.

This is the time of year when a bone cutter pays dividents. Fresh cut bone takes the place of bugs and worms in winter, and is a great egg maker.

Darkened nests will discourage the egg eating habit. Don't encourage egg eating by throwing whole egg shells to the flock with the table scraps. Crush them.

Feed three times a day and no more, but add rolled oats to the chick feed twice a day and stale bread crumbs or corn bread will do if there are no rolled oats on hand.

There is not much advantage in getting young turkeys hatched early. If they come off the first part of June they will be in time to be "ripe" by Thanksgiving and they won't need so much feed.

Dust the hen with insect powder before setting her, and about twice more during the hatch, but don't put on too much at a time. Then the chicks will not be full of lice to begin with.

Grass Clippings Good Green Food for Chicks

Grass clippings are an excellent green food for chickens. The backyard poultry flock of a family often lacks sufficient green feed with a consequent reduction of egg and availability of lawn clippings the city poultryman can always have green feed through the summer for his chickens. The flock can be fed daily as much of the green clippings as they will eat. If any continued bowel trouble shows, the amount should be reduced. The remainder of the clippings can be allowed to dry and fed moistened during the time between lawn cuttings.

Amounts in excess can be dried for winter use. Dried grass clippings are a good green feed for winter. They can be dried and stored in sacks. These dried clippings, moistened and fed to the flock, are a very fair substitute for the succulent green feeds of summer.

TOO MANY SEED PUT IN AVERAGE HOME GARDEN

Back-lot Growers Urged to Plant Scientifically and Conserve Scanty Supplies.

COLUMBIA, Mo., March 4.—The average home gardener plants four or five times as many vegetable seeds as are needed to obtain a stand, according to J. T. Rosa Jr., of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. There is now a great shortage of vegetable seed due to several factors, and the chances are that the seed situation will be little better next year unless the home gardeners bring relief with a nation-wide crop of home-grown seed. For the season of 1918 the are not enough seed to go around if the usual wasteful way of sowing is continued. Since home gardeners use 90 per cent of the vegetable seed in this country, it is clearly their problem to conserve in their planting and see that every seed is made to produce food.

"The first step in conservation of seed," says Rosa, "is to estimate carefully about how much of each crop is needed, and how much seed will be required. Usually the 5 or 10 cent packet contains enough seed of most crops for the home garden, with perhaps a surplus for next year's planting. In buying seed, don't get too many varieties or too many different kinds of crops unless good use can be made of them.

"The most important point of all is to plant carefully. Instead of dumping the seed carelessly, place them accurately, by hand, so that they will come up at just about the right spacing, eliminating the tiresome job of thinning and saving the plants usually destroyed in this way. Plant good seed, and pulverize the soil well so that a good stand may be had. The distance apart in inches of plants in the row for some of the common crops is as follows: Beets 2 to 4, carrots 2 to 3, turnips 2 to 3, radish 1, onions 2, lettuce 4 to 6, spinach 4, peas 2, beans 4, sweet corn 9 to 12, squash 12, cucumbers and melons 12 to 18. These spaces are calculated for an 85 per cent stand.

"Another means of saving seeds is to sow the seed in special beds, where the best conditions for germinating are given, and practically every plant can be used for transplanting. Cabbage, cauliflower, celery, onions, tomatoes, peppers, eggplant and parsley should be handled thus. Any seed left over should be saved in the original package, dated, and stored in a tin can or glass jar in a cool dry place. Most kinds will keep from to to four years, and some even longer. These held-over seeds will relieve the scarcity another year and also save expense of buying a fresh supply."

Rooster Is Gallant Bird to His Mates

The breeding male should, of course, be a good bird, true to type, good in color, at least up to average size for the breed, well furnished in the matter of comb and wattles, which betoken vigor, good in shape, that is, broad and deep and full in most breeds. And in all his actions he should give evidences of abounding vigor. It will not hurt if he is a scrapper. But beyond this, and fully as important, he should have extra good care; better care than the females. He should not be mated to too many hens. Often a male should, once a day, be picked up and given all he will eat apart from the females, because many males, especially the best ones, are very gallant and will eat little or nothing until his mates have eaten. Many breeders follow the practice of alterating males in a pen, keeping one in a coop half the time. Moreover, my experience has been that a male in a breeding pen will, more often than the hens, be infested with lice. Many males do not fight lice so vigorously as do the hens. The breeding male, therefore, should be examined often for lice and should be treated for them. Yes, the male is half the pen—and more.

For New Russian Army.

City Items in Brief

Three Terminal Railroad Association employes were arrested yesterday on charges of thefts from interstate shipments and goods valued at $700 were recovered in their homes. The men are John E. Horton, 1210 Grattan street, a fireman; Harry B. Cook, 3434 Park avenue, a fireman, and Peter Callahan, 3834 Flad avenue, a switchman. All denied the thefts.

Sergt. Uriah Mackay, in charge of the motor cycle squad, suffered a fractured left leg and internal injuries when his motor cycle was run down yesterday morning at Grand and Chouteau avenues by an automobile driven by Gus J. Weis, 3012 Indiana avenue. Weis was arrested.

Mrs. Louisa Magnah, 60 years old, discovered a man with a drawn revolver on the second floor of her home at 3636 Evans avenue at 10:35 a. m. yesterday. He escaped with $60 in cash.

Carl Schreiner, a printer at 510 Elm street, told the police that yesterday morning, when he was in the rear of his shop, someone stole 1000 tickets of admission to the third annual festival of the St. Louis district, North American Gymnastic Union, to be held at Lemp's Park, Thirteenth and Utah streets, on June 9.

Henderson Wilkins, 40 years old, 1914 Thomas street, East St. Louis, suffered a broken shoulder and internal injuries last night when hit by a Lansdowne car at Seventh street and St. Clair avenue. He was crossing St. Clair avenue.

Albert Smith, 22 years old, 27 South Main street, East St. Louis, and Elmer Walker, 23, of Morris, Ill., were arrested in East St. Louis last night after they had dropped off a train that was passing through, to visit their homes. The train went on, but the police later received a telegram to hold them. The men were from a training camp.

NO RE-AUDIT OF WARNING BOOKS

Supervisors Reject Proposal by Former County Treasurer.

The St. Clyair County Board of Supervisors, in session at Belleville yesterday, refused to order a re-audit of the books for theterm of former County Treasurer Fred Warning.

Warning, in a letter to the board, said he had reason to believe that the audit is not correct and offered to pay for the reaudit if the results failed to show that the audit by the Chicago expert was incorrect. The charge of a shortage against Warning is pending before the grand jury, which will reconvene tomorrow.

Every Woman's Shoe Problems Solved By These Soles

How to save money on shoes and still have her feet smartly clad—

How to keep her feet dry on wet days and still have her foot gear as trim-looking as on dry days—

These are the two greatest shoe problems for every woman.

In the solution of both these problems Neōlin Soles fit amazingly well.

Saving shoe money is largely a question of getting shoes with soles that wear longer, for sole wear is the greatest factor in shoe cost.

And Neōlin Soles, though they cost no more to start with, are so durable that they wear longer and so cut shoe bills down.

You have just as good-looking shoes as before, but pay less for them, by the year, because you need fewer pairs.

Having the feet trim on wet days is merely a matter of dispensing with rubbers.

When your shoes have Neōlin Soles it is safe to go without rubbers, unless you walk in puddles or mud that reaches to the upper, for Neōlin Soles are absolutely waterproof.

Yet wear and waterproofness are but two of the important virtues of Neōlin Soles. They are exceedingly comfortable—easy as an old shoe from the first moment of wear, not a bit of breaking-in required.

And they make walking safer and easier by providing a better grip on walking surfaces.

Don't you think that you should wear Neōlin Soles, now that you know these facts?

Get them on the new shoes you buy, or have your worn shoes re-soled with them.

Get them also for others in your family. They are available everywhere, on new shoes or as re-soles, for men, women and children.

But when you buy Neōlin Soles be sure you see the Neōlin trade mark underneath. If it is not there the sole is not Neōlin. Mark that mark; stamp it on your memory: Neōlin—

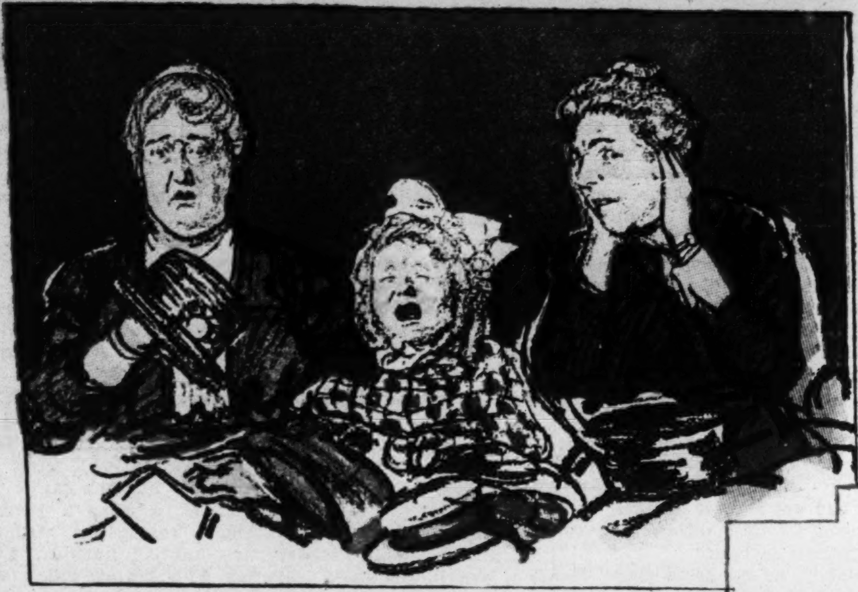
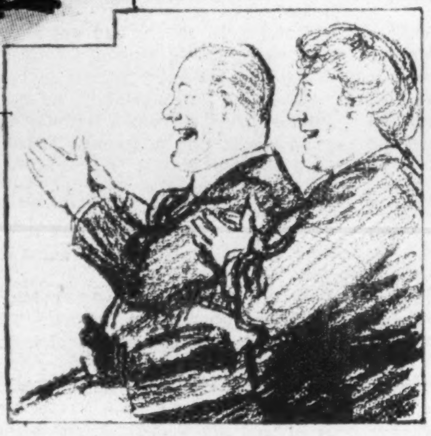
THE WAR PLAY

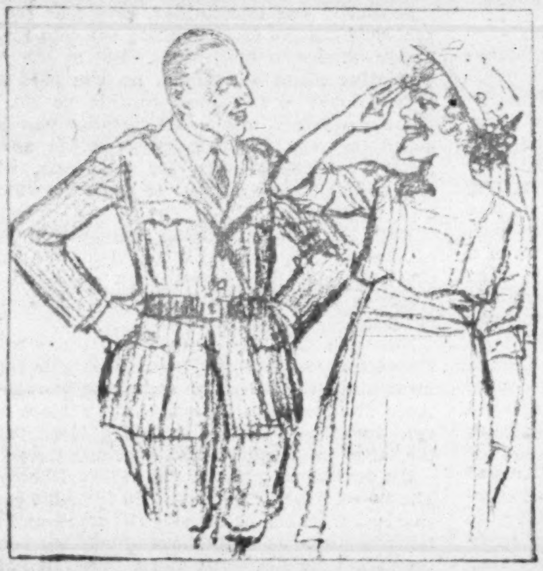
CHARACTER SKETCHES BY W. E. HILL



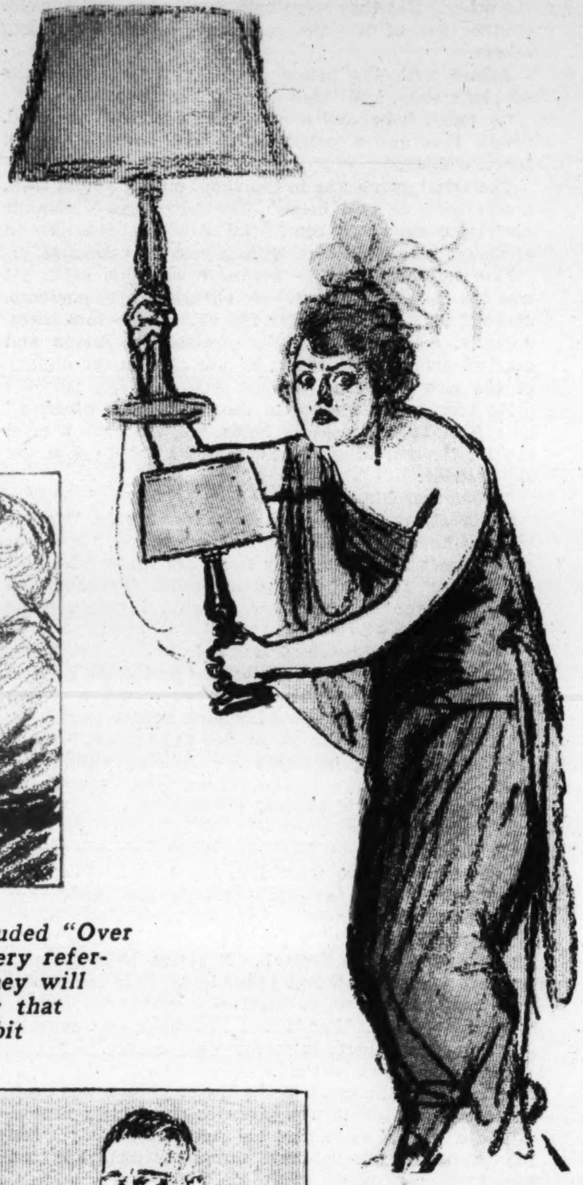
Shell shock victims have nothing on the people down in front during the gatling gun scene.



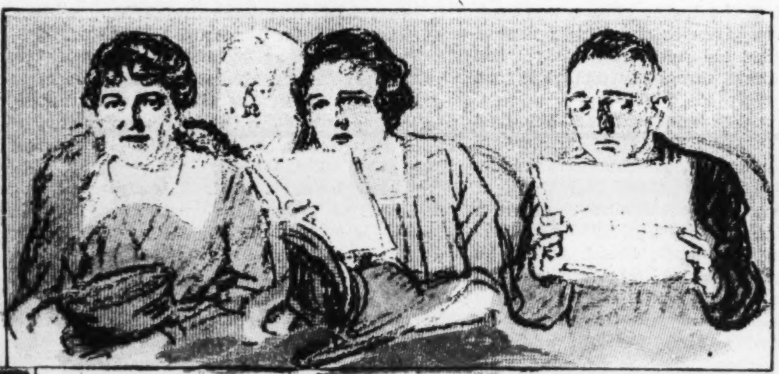
Mr. and Mrs. Diggs have applauded "Over the Top," "Carry On," and every reference to the allied cause. They will go home feeling somehow that they have done their bit in the great war.



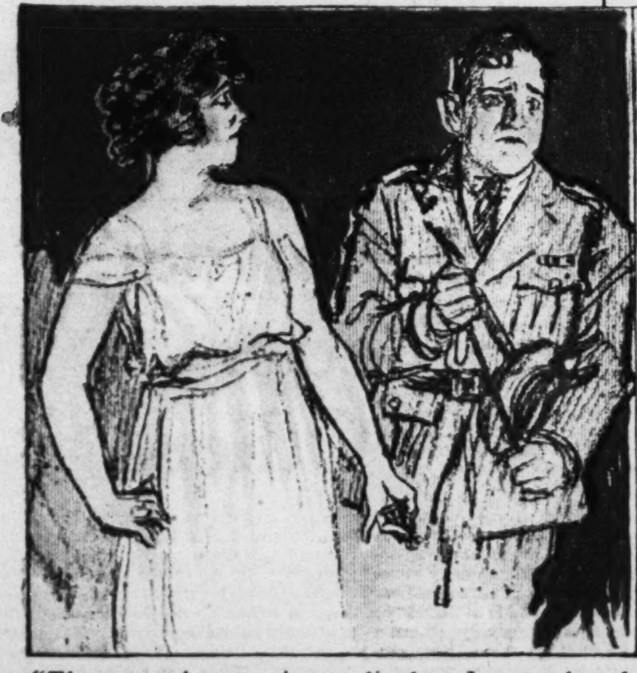
Bert, the juvenile, and Enid, the ingenue, putting over some very soggy comic stuff.



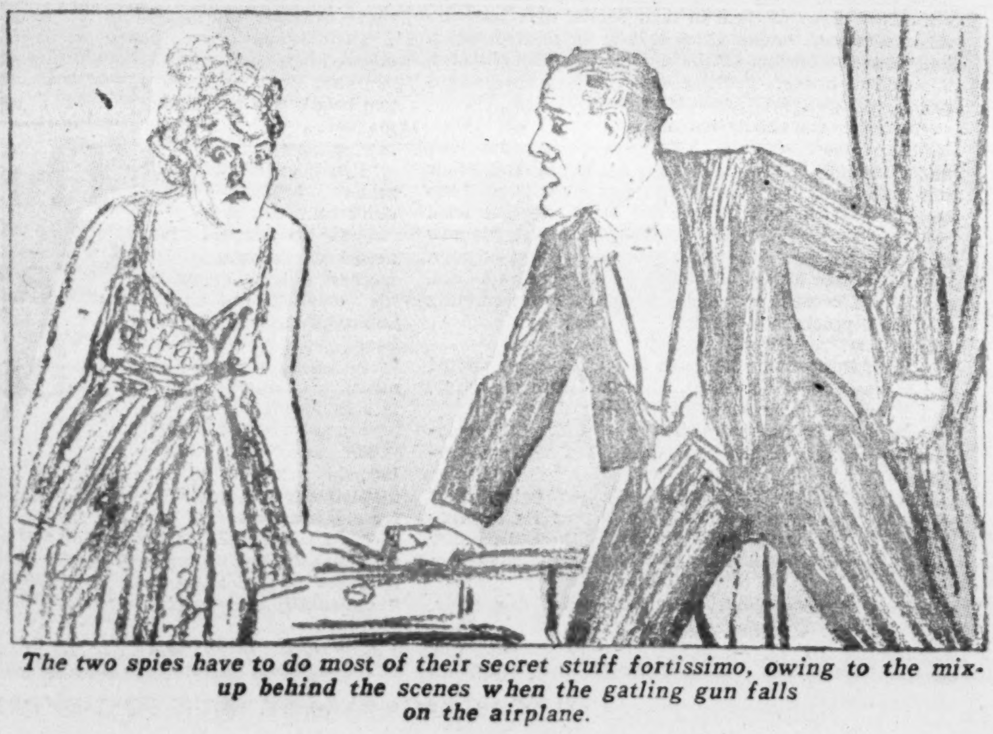
The lady spy, on the pretext of looking out at the view, walks over to the window and signals the Zeppelin, which is awaiting orders just down the block.



A 4-minute man in his talk on recruiting: "A fine chance to do some fighting in the trenches right away." Mr. Toyer becomes suddenly engrossed in his program.



"The secret is not mine to divulge; I can only ask you to trust me, Grayce!" But Grayce is going to give back the ring unless Gerald shows her that the packet contains not the letters of another woman, but the plans of the fortress.



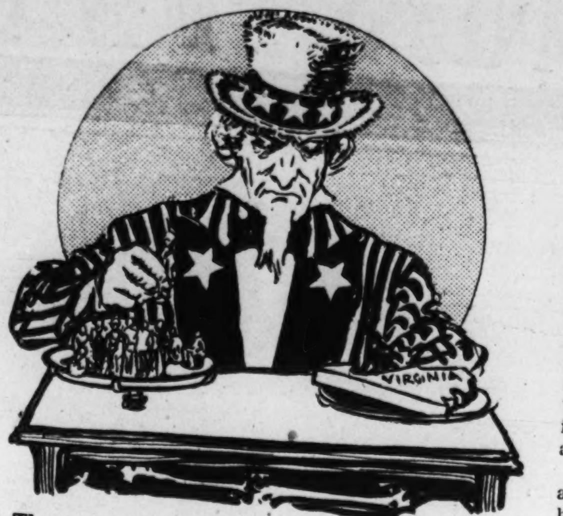
The two spies have to do most of their secret stuff fortissimo, owing to the mix-up behind the scenes when the gatling gun falls on the airplane.

HUNTING SUBMARINES IN THE NORTH SEA
ON AN AMERICAN DESTROYER
Personal Narrative of a Sailor Just Back From the War Zone

Drafting the Lounge Lizards, the Tango Boys, and the Merely Idle, for War Work

West Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey and Rhode Island adopt laws declaring all idlers, whether rich or poor, to be vagrants, subject to fine and sentence to compulsory labor—Other states expected to follow suit—Canada announces regulations defining as misdemeanor idleness on part of able-bodied males between 16 and 60—No defense that one is wealthy enough to live without toil

:: :: ::



The task is to equalize the supply of labor with the needs of regions and states.

THESE be parlous times for the lounge lizards, tango hounds, poolroom loafers, the "Weary Willies" of the idle rich, the hoboes and all that great army of the devotees of lassitude, wealthy as well as poor. "Fight or work!" is the order, enforceable by statute in four states—West Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey and Rhode Island. Other states may soon enact similar laws. And Canada has taken the national step of announcing an order in council declaring idleness a crime, subject to fine and imprisonment at hard labor.

Most states have vagrancy laws under which men may be prosecuted for failing to have visible means of support; but heretofore the man of income and property, who found it unnecessary to work for a living, has been permitted to dwell in idleness if he saw fit. The war, demanding the last resources of civilian as well as military energy, has changed all that in several localities, and is likely to do so in more. The gilded youth, despite the family dollars, will be under the painful necessity of engaging in some useful occupation voluntarily, or else he will be drafted into one by the law, such as making roads or hoeing potatoes.

The theory in the four states named is that all men, save those who are ill or of advanced age, should take some part in the war against the Prussian barbarians. If they are not called to the training camps or feel no impulsion to enlist, they can still work.

West Virginia led off two years ago with a special act adopted by the Legislature, which virtually classified as vagrants all idle and able-bodied males between the ages of 16 and 60, with the exception of students. It was no defense for a jobless man to prove that he had an adequate income without working. If a man in West Virginia who is physically capable of earning his own living does not regularly engage in some "lawful business, occupation or employment for at least 36 hours a week," he becomes a vagrant under the law, and may be sentenced to work for 60 days on the State roads.

Later Maryland passed, as a war measure, a statute which stands as a model of its kind. It was framed by Attorney-General Albert C. Richie and Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, president of Johns Hopkins University and an expert on constitutional law. It has been in operation since last August.

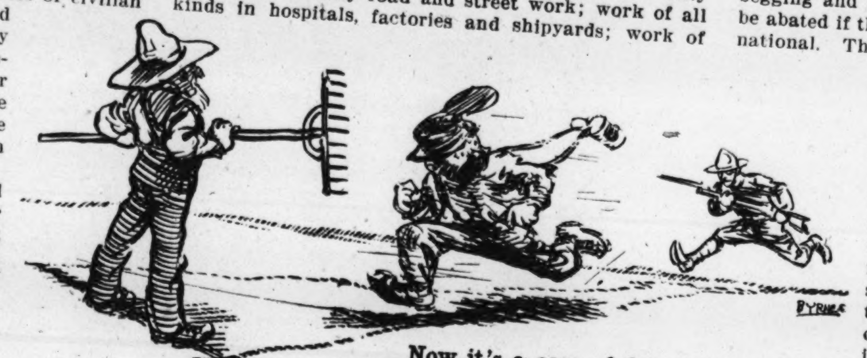
Under this law all unemployed men, whether rich or poor, are compelled to register with the police, under pain of arrest if they fail to do so. The State engages to find occupations for all jobless men, with pay at the current rate of wages. The work may be either for the State or the United States, or for some farmer or manufacturer under State supervision.

The age limits of the act are 18 and 50, and it exempts only students at some recognized educational establishment who are fitting themselves for a useful career. All others between these years who are physically able to work, must be regularly and continuously employed. The authorities report that many idlers, both rich and poor, have been arrested, fined and sent to jail, no matter whether they were plain loafers and hoboes or had means to support themselves without work, or were maintained by relatives.

Section 2 of the act plainly states: "All persons able to support themselves by reason of ownership of property or income, or those supported by others, shall be included among those required to register." Commenting on this provision, Philip B. Perlman, assistant to Attorney-General Richie, says:

"The section speaks for itself. It is the first attempt to wake the idle rich up to the necessity of putting their shoulders to the wheel and helping to produce something of value to their country in the time of national emergency."

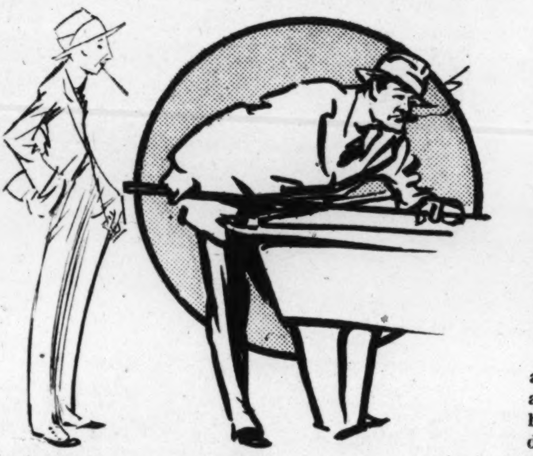
Idle persons may be forcibly assigned to the following occupations: Agricultural and horticultural work of all kinds; cannery work of every sort; State, county and Baltimore city road and street work; work of all kinds in hospitals, factories and shipyards; work of every sort done in the State of Maryland by or in behalf of the United States in connection with the prosecution of the war; and work of all kinds done by the State of Maryland itself in the prosecution of the war.



Now it's a case of fight or work, for the tramp.

The man put at compulsory labor may quit his job at will, but under the distressing proviso that he at once obtain work elsewhere. Strikers who have left their jobs under controversy with their employers do not come within the operations of the law.

New Jersey passed its anti-loafing law last February. It is closely modeled upon that of Maryland. The intention was specifically declared of putting "society idlers, hoboes and loafers" to work. A proclamation issued in March by Gov. Edge ordered the police and other officers to exercise a "sharp vigilance for those workless individuals whose lack of ambition and fondness for idleness constitute not merely a financial burden to every community, but also a genuine menace to the welfare of the nation's manhood under arms, and to their safety on the battlefront."



Society idlers, pool room sharks and tango lizards must either work or fight.

Rhode Island enacted a compulsory labor law a few days ago, which also classifies as idlers, with provisions for putting them to work, all unemployed men, whether rich or poor. All of these efforts have created a powerful reaction in New York City, the original habitat of the lounge lizard, that well-dressed society bum who hangs about the hotel lobbies and cafes and seeks to make himself attractive to women as idle as himself. The police have been urged to arrest such exponents of chronic tired feeling as vagrants, and some of the radicals have recommended that the classification be extended to include "landladies' husbands who are nonpaying guests, hat-checking brigands, politicians, pool sharks, saloon habitues, poets, bohemians and all other hoboes."

In four states thus far Constables, Town Marshals and city policemen are visiting railroad stations, tobacco shops, bowling alleys, poolrooms and saloons and rounding up all those who cannot show they are regularly employed. Street corner loafers are being inscribed in the police registers, and many a youth is making, under compulsion, his first acquaintance with labor.

These state laws deal specifically with resident loafers, but they are considered elastic enough to gather up any itinerant hoboes who should be so unwary as to venture into West Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey or Rhode Island. No doubt the word has gone out among the brotherhood of the brakebeam to avoid these states like the plague. During normal times huge armies of hoboes are abroad in the land, eating wheat, meat and sugar for which they give no return in labor, begging and stealing. This expensive nuisance would be abated if the compulsory labor movement were made national. They could not escape. Mexico has perils instead of attractions for them, and now Canada has ceased to be a summer resort for enemies of toil.

The new Canadian regulations were announced in the House of Commons a few days ago by Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister. By the Government's action idleness becomes a misdemeanor throughout the Dominion. The measure recites that all male persons, in the absence of reasonable cause to the contrary, shall be engaged in some useful occupation. The purpose of the order is to prevent persons capable of performing work from remaining in idleness at a time when the empire requires every iota of its human energy. It is to be noted that in Canada, as well as in the four American states, the possession of wealth or the enjoyment of support by others is no defense of idleness. The regulations begin with the following sweeping declaration:

"Every male person residing in the Dominion shall be regularly engaged in some useful occupation."

Then the list of exemptions is announced as follows:

"Those less than 16 or more than 60 years of age; bona fide students in training for some useful occupation, or bona fide students in actual attendance at some recognized educational institution; persons physically unable to comply with the requirements of the law; persons usually employed in some useful occupation, and temporarily unemployed owing to differences with their employers common to similar employes with the same employers; and persons unable to obtain, within reasonable distance, any kind of employment which he is physically able to perform at current wages for similar employment."

Penalties for failing to observe the order are thus stated: "Violation of the regulations imposes liability to a penalty not exceeding $100, or, in default, to imprisonment not exceeding six months in any common jail or in any institution or on any farm owned by a municipality or province and declared by the bylaw or order in council, respectively, to be a public institution or farm for the purposes of this law, which said institution or farm, for the purpose of this law, shall be a common jail."

It is needless to say that these laws, in the States and the Dominion, constitute in one of their features a revolution in economics. Hitherto the man who inherited money or had a rich wife was not legally condemned if he sat down and took it easy. Public sentiment was inclined to envy him at heart. But now, in the statutes concerned, he is treated as nothing less than a pariah, a parasite, and a vagrant.

Long Live the King! --

ent from the left in shape. Thus he managed thriftily to wear, on his leg, first one of the pair, then the other. But they were both worn now, and because of the cost of the new uniform, he could not buy others.

Armed with the better of the two he visited the cobbler's shop, and there met with bitter news.

"A patch here, and a new heel, comrade," he said. "With that and a polishing, it will do well enough for marching."

The usual group was in the shop, mostly young men, a scattering of gray heads. The advocates of strange doctrines, most of them. Old Adelbert disapproved of them, regarded them with a sort of contempt.

Now he felt that they smiled behind his back. It was his clothing, he felt. He shrugged his shoulders, disdainfully. He no longer felt ashamed before them. Already, although the tailor pressed its seams and marked upon it with chalk, he was clad in the dignity of the new uniform.

He turned and nodded to them. "A fine evening," he said. "If this weather holds, we will have a good day for the marching." He squinted a faded eye at the sky outside.

"What marching?"

Old Adelbert turned on the speaker sharply. "Probably you have forgotten," he said scornfully, "but in a week comes an anniversary there are many who will remember. The day of a great battle. Perhaps," he added, "if you do not know of what I speak, there are some here who will tell you."

Unexpectedly the crowd laughed.

Old Adelbert flushed a dusky red and drew himself up. "Since when," he demanded, "does such a speech bring laughter? It was not laughing matter then."

"It is the way of the old to live in the past," a student said. Then, imitating old Adelbert's majestic tone: "We, we live in the future. Eh, comrades?" He turned to the old soldier: "You have not seen the bulletins?"

"Bulletins?"

"There will be no marching, my friend. The uniform now—that is a pity. Perhaps the tailor"—— His eyes mocked.

"No marching?"

"An order of the Council. It seems that the city is bored by these ancient reminders. It is for peace, and would forget wars. And processions are costly. We grow thrifty. Bands and fireworks cost money, and money, my hero, is scarce—very scarce."

Again the group laughed.

After a time he grasped the truth. There was such an order. The cause was given as the King's illness.

"Since when," demanded old Adelbert angrily, "has the sound of his soldiers' marching disturbed the King?"

"The sound of wooden legs annoys him," observed the mocking student, lighting a cigarette. "He would hear only pleasant sounds, such as the noise of tax money pouring into his vaults. Me—I can think of a pleasanter: the tolling of the cathedral bell, at a certain time, will be music to my ears!"

Old Adelbert stood, staring blindly ahead. At last he went out into the street, muttering. "They shame us before the people," he said thickly.

The order of the Council had indeed been issued, a painful business over which Mettlich and the Council had pondered long. For, in the state of things, it was deemed unwise to permit any gathering of the populace en masse. Mobs lead to riots, and riots again to mobs. Five thousand armed men, veterans, but many of them in their prime, were in themselves a danger. And on these days of the anniversary it had been the custom of the university to march also, a guard of honor. Sedition was rife among the students.

The order was finally issued.

Old Adelbert was not keen, but he did not lack understanding. And one thing he knew, and knew well. The concierge downstairs was no patriot. Time had been when, over coffee and bread, he had tried to instill in the old soldier his own discontent, his new theories of a land where all were equal and no man King. He had hinted of many who believed as he did. Only hints, because old Adelbert had raised a trembling hand and proclaimed treason.

But now?

Late in the evening he made his resolve, and visited the bureau of the concierge. He was away, however, and his niece spoke through the barred window.

"Two days, or perhaps three," she said. "He is inspecting a farm in the country, with a view to purchase."

The old soldier had walked by the palace that night, and had again shaken his fist at its looming shadow. "You will see," he said, "there be other sounds more painful than the thump of a wooden leg!"

He was ill that night. He tossed about in a fever. His body ached, even the leg which so long ago had moldered in its shallow grave on a battlefield. For these things happen. By morning he was better, but he was a different man. His eyes glowed. His body twitched. He was stronger, too, for now he broke his sword across his knee, and flung the pieces out of the window. And with them went the last fragment of his old loyalty to his King.

Old Adelbert was now, potentially, a traitor.

The spring came early that year. The last of February saw the parks green. Snowdrops appeared in the borders of paths. The swans left their wooden houses and drifted about in water much colder than the air. Bobby abandoned the airplane for a kite and threw it aloft from Pike's Peak. At night, when he undressed, marbles spilled out of his pockets and rolled under the most difficult furniture. Although it was still cold at nights and in the early mornings, he abandoned the white sweater and took to looking for birds and nests in the trees of the park. It was, of course, much too early for nests, but nevertheless he searched, convinced that even if grown-ups talked wisely of more cold weather, he and the birds knew it was spring. And, of course, the snowdrops.

On the morning after old Adelbert had turned his back on his King, Bobby Thorpe rose early, so early, indeed, that even Pepy still slept in her narrow bed, and the milk sellers had not started on their rounds. The early rising was a mistake, owing to a watch which had strangely gained an hour.

Somewhat disconsolately, he wandered about. Heavy quiet reigned. From a window he watched the meat seller hang out a freshly killed deer, just brought from the mountains. He went downstairs and out on the street, past the niece of the concierge, who was scrubbing the stairs.

"I'm going for a walk," he told her. "If they send Pepy down you might tell her I'll be back for breakfast."

He stood for a time surveying the deer. Then he decided to go hunting himself. The meat seller obligingly gave him the handle of a floor brush, and with this improvised gun Bobby went deer stalking. He turned into the park, going stealthily, and searching the landscape with keen hunter's eyes. Once or twice he leveled his weapon, killed a deer, cut off the head, and went on. His dog trotted at his heels. When a particularly good shot presented itself, Bobby said: "Down, Tucker," and Tucker, who played extremely well, would lie down, ears cocked, until the quarry was secured.

Around the old city gate, still standing, although the wall of which it had been a part was gone, there was excellent hunting. Here they killed and skinned a bear, took fine ivory tusks from a dead elephant, and searched for the trail of a tiger.

The gate was an excellent place for a tiger. Around it was planted an almost impenetrable screen of evergreens, so thick that the ground beneath was quite bare of gress. Here the two hunters crawled on stomachs that began to feel a trifle empty, and here they happened on the trail.

Tucker found it first. His stumpy tail grew rigid. Nose to the ground, he crawled and wriggled through Bobby saw the trail, footprints. It is true they resembled those of heavy boots with nails. But on the other hand, no one could say surely that the nailmarks were not those of claws.

Tucker circled about. The trail grew more exciting. Bobby had to crawl on hands and feet under and through thickets. Branches had been broken as by the passage of some large body. The sportsman clutched his weapon and went on.

An hour later the two hunters returned for breakfast. Washing did something to restore the leader to a normal appearance, but a wondering family discovered him covered with wounds and strangely silent.

"Why, Bob, where have you been?" his mother demanded. "Why, I never saw so many scratches!"

"I've been hunting," he replied briefly. "They don't hurt, anyhow."

Then he relapsed into absorbed silence. His mother, putting cream on his cereal, placed an experienced hand on his forehead. "Are you sure you feel well, dear?" she asked. "I think your head is a little hot."

"I'm all right, mother."

She was wisely silent, but she ran over in her mind the spring treatment for children at home. The blood, she felt, should be thinned after a a winter of sausages and rich cocoa. She mentally searched her medicine case.

A strange thing happened that day. A broken plate disappeared from the upper shelf of a closet, where Pepy had hidden it; also a cup with a nick in it, similarly concealed; also the heel of a loaf of bread. Nor was that the end. For three days a sort of magic reigned in Pepy's kitchen. Ten potatoes, laid out to peel, became eight. Matches and two ends of candle walked out, as it were, on their own feet. A tin pan with a hole in it left the kitchen table and was discovered hiding in Bobby's bureau when the fraulein put away the washing.

On the third day Mrs. Thorpe took her husband into their room and closed the door.

"Bob," she said, "I don't want to alarm you. But there is something wrong with Bobby."

"Sick, you mean?"

"I don't know." Her voice was worried. "He's not a bit like himself. He is always away, for one thing. And he hardly eats at all."

"He looks well enough nourished!"

"And he comes home covered with mud. I have never seen his clothes in such condition. And last night, when he was bathing, I went into the bathroom. He is covered with scratches."

"Now, see here, mother," the hunter's father protested, "you're the parent of a son, a perfectly hardy, healthy and normal youngster, with an imagination. Probably he's hunting Indians. I saw him in the park yesterday with his air rifle. Anyhow, just stop worrying and let him alone. A scratch or two won't hurt him. And as to his not eating, well, if he's not eating at home he's getting food somwhere, I'll bet you a hat."

So Bobby was undisturbed, save that the governess protested that he heard nothing she told him, and was absent-minded at his lessons. But as she was always protesting about something, no one paid any attention. Bobby drew ahead on his pocket allowance without question, and as his birthday was not far off, asked for "the dollar to grow on" in advance. He always received a dollar for each year, which went into the bank, and a dollar to grow on, which was his own to spend.

With the dollar he made a number of purchases—candles and candlestick, a toy pistol and caps, one of the masks for the carnival, now displayed in all the windows, a kitchen knife, wooden plates and a piece of bacon.

Now and then he appeared at the scenic railway abstracted and viewing with a calculating eye the furnishings of the engine room and workshop. From there disappeared a broken chair, a piece of old carpet, discarded from a car, and a large padlock, but the latter he asked for and obtained.

His occasional visits to the railway, however, found him in old Adelbert's shack. He filled his pockets with charcoal from the pail beside the stove, and made cautious inquiries as to methods of cooking potatoes. But the pall of old Adelbert's gloom penetrated at last even through the boy's abstraction.

"I hope your daughter is not worse," he said politely, during one of his visits to the ticket booth.

"She is well. She recovers strength rapidly."

"And the new uniform—does it fit you?"

"I do not know," said old Adelbert grimly. "I have not seen it recently."

"On the day of the procession we are all going to watch for you. I'll tell you where we will be, so you can look for us."

"There will be no procession."

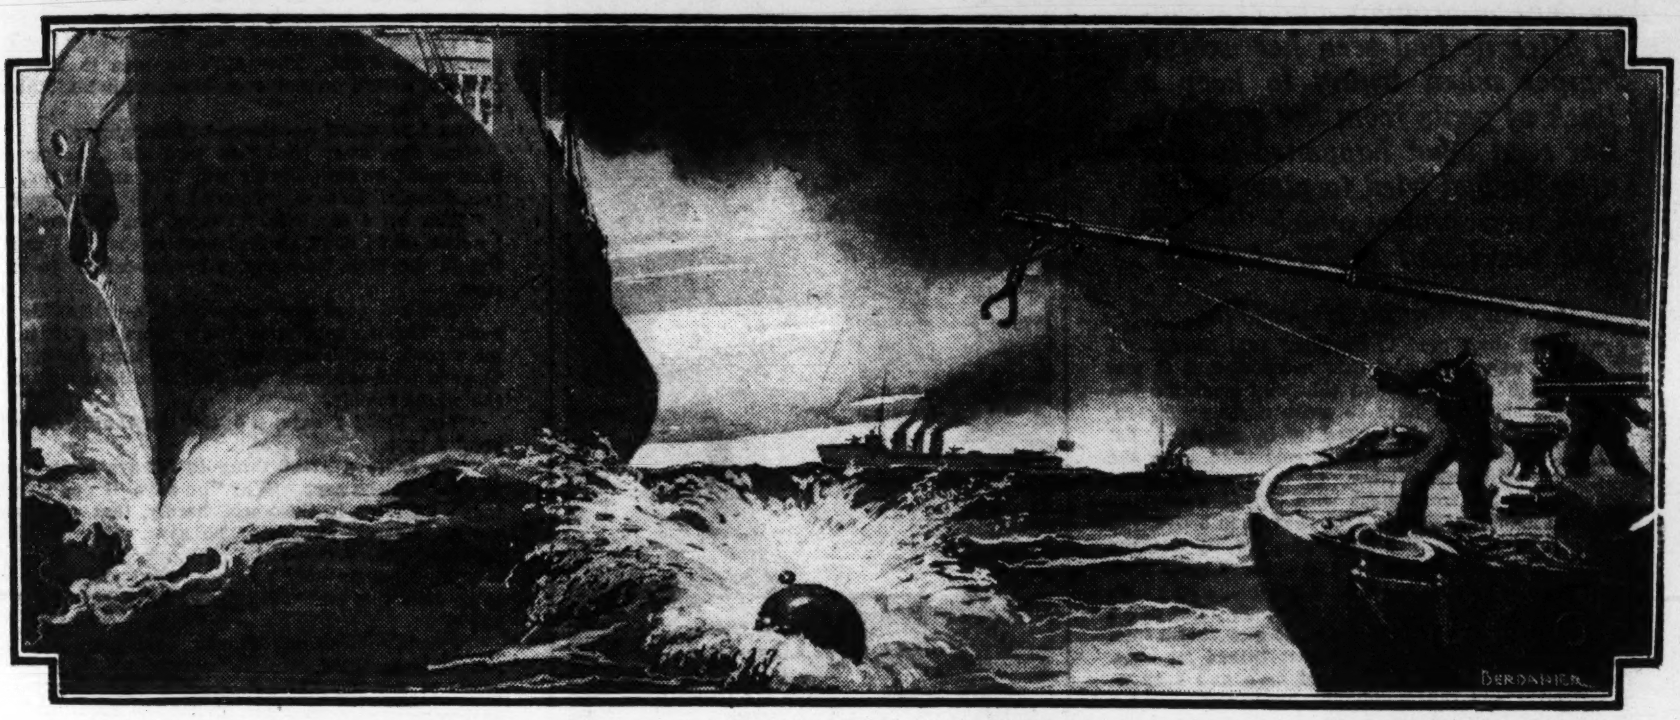
This Face Powder Stays on Better Than Any Other

Thousands of women have unsightly complexions because they use injurious face powder. A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that really stays on. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder to make it stick. Five thousand dollars is offered any chemist who analyzes it and finds it contains any white lead. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder pimples. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors use to heal the skin. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. It is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and because it stays on better than any other, it is already sold everywhere. The large size is only fifty cents and the half size twenty-five cents. When you see how wonderfully it beautifies your complexion you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York.

HUNTING SUBMARINES IN THE NORTH SEA ON AN AMERICAN DESTROYER

Personal Narrative of a Sailor Just Back From the War Zone



As we passed about twenty yards in front of the bow of the steamer we dropped a depth bomb.

In the first detailed account to reach America of day by day life with Uncle Sam's destroyer fleet, he tells how a German U-Boat, whose periscope was cunningly concealed by a lifeboat, was detected and destroyed, and how a big Canadian transport was saved from destruction — Months of tedious patrol duty enlivened occasionally by brushes with the enemy -:- -:- -:- -:- -:- -:-

VOLUMES have been written, in newspapers and magazines, of life in the American army abroad, but little thus far has appeared of what is going on day by day in the United States navy, especially in that most active branch of the service, the destroyer fleet. Here is the first detailed article to reach this country showing how our fast destroyers in European waters are protecting transports and merchantmen from the depredations of German U-boats.

The writer, Robert W. Burke, is a seaman on an American destroyer and has been in the thick of the submarine hunts off the coast of England and France. In the story, written for the Boston Transcript, he describes one instance which came under his personal observation of how a transport, with its precious freight of fighting men, was saved from destruction. One also may read how destroyers engage submarines in battle by use of depth bombs, usually with the result that "the surface of the water was soon covered with oil, the best proof we have that we've got them."

EARLY last spring we left here—the first of our warships to reach France. With all our speed it took us about two weeks going across, on the course we took. It was a calm passage all the way, except on the last couple of days, when we ran into a norther. One morning, about 6 o'clock, we sighted a big black steamer, which turned when she saw us and ran full speed in the opposite direction. We went after her and signaled for her name and number. She refused to give us any information.

At the time I was pointer of the fo'castle gun. The Captain gave orders to load and train her on the bridge of the ship. That was the first real excitement we had. Every boy turned out and we thought we had a raider. As soon as we had the gun trained on her, she immediately turned about and ran up her colors. She must have been watching us closely. She ran up the British merchant ensign and sent word that she didn't know what we were. We being the first American boats over there, she didn't recognize us. Our raider was only a peaceful merchantman.

On the following day we were to pick up the French patrol which convoyed us to our port of destination. About 8 o'clock that morning two black specks appeared on the horizon, which turned out to be the French convoy we were looking for. As they came alongside, we saw they were small boats, about 100 feet long, motor driven, but carrying unusually large guns for their size. They were manned by old Frenchmen, most of them wearing long beards, which struck us as very funny.

As they passed us the Captain of each ship assembled his crew on deck and gave three cheers for the Americans, which we answered with a will. After a long and tedious discussion, as neither our Captain spoke French very well nor theirs English, we managed to get on the right course.

Later in the day we passed mine sweepers and many trawlers and other light craft, patroling and sweeping the seas. We were now well within the submarine zone, as one could see by the wreckage and life preservers and other parts of sunken ships. We had now to change to watch and watch, four hours on and four off. It kept us pretty busy and we got very little sleep.

Early next morning, about 4 o'clock, we were turned out to go over the sides and scrub ship, not a very sweet job, especially on a cold and rainy morning, and so early. I suppose we had to look well going into port, to make a favorable impression. About an hour later, we hauled anchor and pulled into the inner harbor.

On either side of the entrance the populace swarmed down to greet us. The thing that struck me most was the absence of young men. Everywhere there were old men and women. Young men who were there were all in uniform, most of them wounded. Before we tied fast there was a great rush among us to see who would have the honor to be the first American on French soil, the first to be sent over by the United States at war. I was fourth in the scramble over the side.

It was a beautiful little town, the houses of a queer lavender-colored stone, with gray roofs, such as I had never seen before. Everything seemed quaint and old. The streets were immaculately clean as well as the big boulevard which ran along the water's edge for miles, shaded on either side by trees. That night, after cleaning ship, we all went ashore. This was the first chance we had to become acquainted with the French people. We can't speak too highly of them. They did all in their power to make our stay pleasant. They insisted upon taking us to dinner, to the theater and to their homes. I met a young French aviator there who was back from the front on a few days' leave. He spoke a little English, so we managed to get along together. He brought me to his home for dinner, in a quaint old chateau overlooking the sea, where I met his mother and sister. They had given everything to the war, turned over their machines and even their dog, to the Red Cross. "We cannot give too much to France," they said. "It is a pleasure."

This thing we noticed everywhere, that the people have given up all they have to their country. They have turned over their private motors and sacrificed all their pleasures gladly, in the name of France.

Before I returned to the ship the aviator gave me his hat as a souvenir. We remained in port for a couple of days and then pulled out about 5 one afternoon. As we left the inner harbor the people again lined either shore and cheered and even covered the decks with flowers.

Now the rumors began. First we heard we were to go to the North Sea. It's a funny thing, the way rumors start aboard ships. Nobody knows where or how they start, but all statements, of course, are passed along as "official." At last we got out to sea. Ours being the senior boat, we took the lead. The supply ship we had left in port, so we were only two.

Now we could show a little speed, about 25 knots for the standard. Everybody was down to business. Nothing of any account happened for a couple of hours. Then suddenly the lookout at the masthead reported a black object off the starboard bow, on the horizon. We soon recognized it as a submarine riding on the surface. General quarters was sounded and we turned sharply, at the same time bringing up to full speed. Fritz ducked immediately.

As he was at least five miles away, he had completely disappeared by the time we got there, and so we had to proceed on our course, still waiting for our first bag.

It was now well along in the evening, though the twilight was still bright. Land was sighted dead ahead. As we came closer to shore we noticed some wonderful green hills, a patchwork of farms, divided by dark green hedges. It was well after 11 o'clock, but it was still light. The sun seemed to be just setting. A small British patrol boat, similar to our submarine chasers, met us a few miles out of the harbor. We reduced speed and followed in her wake. It was a sight I shall never forget. I have traveled in many foreign parts, but I have never seen such a harbor in my life. It was a wonderful picture, with the green hills on either side, and at the entrance the famous old lighthouse.

When we were inside, around the inner bend, we were surprised to find many American destroyers,

Constant, Though Unfelt, Eye-Strain Is the Cause of Many Afflictions

THAT many persons who suffer from minor ills, such as headaches, fears and panics, dizziness, disturbed sleep, train sickness, depression and fainting fits owe these to a slight but long-continued eye strain was demonstrated in a study of 00 cases presented by Dr. Harold A. des Voeux of Brussels before the Medical Society of London recently and reported in the Lancet.

Women are more subject to these "attacks" than men, because "man learns early in life more surely o control his nervous system than woman does." The symptoms generally become manifest between the ages of 15 and 25, and the average oculist says the defect in the eyes is too slight to warrant correction by glasses.

But Dr. des Voeux says it is the slight degrees of error of accommodation in the eyes which do the harm, not the extreme degrees. For a person who has the latter soon finds he cannot see well without glasses, while he who has only the former can see perfectly well; he does not feel the strain, but this is producing its results as time goes on.

"The human eye," said Dr. des Voeux, "was made for man in the roving or agricultural life; it is not adapted for the restless, unceasing movement at close quarters in a town. Life on a Transvaal farm, where objects at a distance of 20 miles are easily seen, is the natural life."

The symptoms differ in different persons, but most of them recognize that they "are produced by (or are worse after) railway traveling, sight-seeing, theaters, crowds, railway stations, big shops, shopping, race meetings, ordinary meetings indoors, motoring, sometimes games of baseball and also frequently by hard and prolonged reading. They nearly all prefer to walk in side streets to main streets, and, if possible, in the parks instead of the streets. They complain of 'smoky rooms,' 'hot rooms,' 'stuffiness,' and attribute the results to the heat and stuffiness and not to the real cause."

As time goes on the sufferers tend to avoid the occasions that cause them trouble, and if they suffer much are likely to drift into the life of a recluse. Two of Dr. des Voeux's patients were only really well when living in the desert of Africa. They are always improved by life in the country. One woman said to him: "I can hunt from 10 to 6, but if I go out to dinner, and especially if I go to a ball at night, I am ill for days after."

And, according to Dr. des Voeux, all this is due to very slight defects in the eyes. In some cases the orbits are not perfectly aligned, in others there is slight myopia (short sight), in more there is hypermetropia (long sight). Any of these defects can be remedied by proper glasses, and in many cases, if treated early enough, can be cured.

Hunting Submarines in the North Sea - -

the Captain of the ship came down from the bridge to see them, they came up to a salute as one man.

They were military right down to their toes. They certainly are a game lot, one must say that for them. Before finally surrendering, with their ship split in two, from the force of a depth charge, and rended in many places from shell fire, they still manned their deck guns and tried to get back at two destroyers. They seemed to be typical of all the rest, judging from the way they all manage their submarines. It is a great honor to be assigned to duty on a German submarine, as it is the only activity of the German navy at present.

With all the advantages they have, of not being seen and of getting away in a hurry, it is much like finding a needle in a haystack, but the American destroyers are digging them out. Up to the present there has not yet been lost a single American troop ship under convoy by an American destroyer. That is the pride of the flotilla, and they mean to keep up the good work. The system now is nearly perfect, and, best of all, we've got them bluffed. We have it on them and they know it. This credit goes to Admiral Sims, the biggest man in naval warfare today. Everybody on board the destroyers swears by him. Whatever he says goes. As we now work, no ship leaves port unprotected. The men feel sure that we are getting the better of the submarine menace, and that as soon as we get destroyers enough we'll be able to drive them out of the seas. The work is hard, but the men do not complain.

On one night alone a storm drove us so far that it took us three days to come back. The wind blew 90 miles an hour. We were headed for our base, but the seas rose to such a height that we had to turn and go with them. At 6 o'clock that night, when I was on the bridge, acting as helmsman, the Captain came up and took the wheel himself. The seas were easily 80 feet high. If we had got one of them on the beam it would have turned us over, and the Captain wouldn't allow anyone else to have the responsibility for that. He took it on himself, and stuck to the wheel from 6 o'clock at night to 1:30 on the following morning.

Another fellow and myself sat down on the fo'castle, with our feet against the liferails and our back against the deckhouse. It was a great sight. We would come up to the crest of a wave, and slide down the other side on a great coast down hill. On all sides would be a huge wall of water. When he would start up the side of one of these walls, we'd get about three-quarters of the way up and find we couldn't make it, and would slip back about half the way. Every time we slid back a sea would come over the stern and wash down the deck. In this way we lost two small boats and a ventilator and flooded all the compartments to a depth of three or four inches.

Life below may be imagined under these conditions, when a man attempted to turn in. We never expected to reach port again, but we did. It was all part of the day's work, a little instance of what goes on regularly over there. All summer long we wear furs and rubber boots. To look at one of the sailors in his war-zone outfit, you would never take him for what he is. He looks more like a Cossack, with his knitted helmet, thick jacket, boots and a few sweaters underneath all. He looks anything but an American sailor. But he is cheerful all the time. Even in the roughest weather you may hear the sound of mandolins below. The harmonica is one of the chief musical instruments. And one has to hear a mandolin and harmonica together a hundred miles at sea, to discover what music we can make on board.

I mustn't forget to mention our mascot, Jocko, a monkey we picked up on some wreckage many miles at sea. We think he has a meaning all his own. Because we expect to make a monkey of the U-boat.

at the end of the first year of your period of quiescent reflection, backed by the Kaiser's promise, you'd find yourself in the position of a quiescently reflective spring lamb that has been benevolently assimilated by a quiescently reflective, but ravenously hungry pack of wolves. Did you even analyze one of the Kaiser's so-called words, doctor?"

"No," said Dr. Johnson, "I can't say that I ever did."

"Well, try it some time," said Archimedes. "You'll find it one-fifth hypocrisy, one-fifth mendacity, two-fifths egotism and the rest pure gloss. Bill is the verbal prestidigitator of all time. He gives you a word and in a jiffy it turns to a prevarication on your hands. He puts a promise in a hat, pronounces an incantation over it, taps the hat three times and, lo! out comes a slippery fish of repudiation, and all the time he is doing it he is humming 'Nearer My God to Thee' under his breath. Take my word for it, Sam, while there's a Hohenzollern left out of jail what you call a universal agreement is one part camouflage and 99 parts taradiddle."

It was at this point that Shakspeare, wearing a wreath of laurel on his brow, entered the room. He looked haughtily about him, apparently oblivious to the existence of everybody else.

"Me and the universe," said Caesar.

"Did you ever see such a sight?" said Raleigh.

"He needs to be taken down a peg," said Virgil.

"Go up and tell him his name is familiar, but you don't recall his face, Boney," said Xerxes, nudging Napoleon with his elbow.

"Leave him to me, boys," said Homer. "I'll put a tack in his tire all right—just watch your Uncle Home."

Whereupon the illustrious Greek smiled broadly, and in a loud voice called out:

"Hello, Shake, old pote, whither away?"

"Ah, Homer," said Shakspeare, condescendingly, holding out his left hand for a flabby pressure. "That you? What you been doing with yourself lately—writing little verses?"

"I've been laying out a billiad, with you as the hero, Bill," said Homer.

"What's the big idea, wearing that mistletoe bough over your eyebrows, William?" asked Napoleon. "Trying to stampede Anne Hathaway into starting something?"

"That's not mistletoe," retorted Shakspeare. "That is laurel."

"O, indeed," said Napoleon. "Latest thing in spring bonnets up your way, I presume."

"Not at all," said Shakespeare coldly. "I always wear the laurel as a matter of right on my birthday."

"O, I see," said Napoleon. "The far-famed spinach of Parnassus, eh? Fine! If you put a little mayonnaise on it it'll be more dressy, Bill."

"So, today is your birthday, is it, William?" said Homer. "Well, well, well! What a big boy you are getting to be!"

"Must have reached his second childhood!" said Aeschylus.

"I am three hundred and one years old today," said Shakspeare, with frigid dignity, "as you might have known for yourselves if you had ever read about anybody but yourselves in the latest edition of 'Who's Who In Hades.'"

"Congratulations, William, congratulations," said Homer. We had forgotten. Nepenthe had us in her grip; but we stand ready to make amends. Gentlemen," he added, rising and addressing the large group of those present, "today is the natal day of our Bard of Avon, the dulcet voiced Swan of Stratford, the sweet singer of soft suspirations that stir the soul and make the pulses throb like a gibbering jitney on an unscalable slope."

"Three cheers for the spark-plug of letters!" cried Raleigh. "May his tire never deflate."

Shakspeare bowed in acknowledgment of the tribute."

"It seems to me, gentlemen," continued Homer, "that today being the anniversary already alluded to, this club will honor itself by doing honor to the greatest dramatist of all time."

Shakspeare lifted his hand in deprecating assent.

"I repeat," said Homer, "that our brother's connection with the stage makes it fitting that we should drain a cup to the health of that master of his craft, of that rare spirit who has touched nothing that he did not adorn, of that great genius whose wit has the keenness of the razor, and the tempered flexibility of the Damascus blade, whose knowledge of human life, and whose sympathy for human weakness withal"——

"Aren't you piling it on rather thick, Homer?" whispered Herodotus.

"Just wait—don't interrupt," said Homer, sotto voce. "In short, gentlemen," he added aloud, raising his glass, "I give you the greatest dramatist of all time"—

Homer paused, possibly for dramatic effect, and then turning to the blushing Shakspeare, he finished in ringing tones:

"That greatest dramatist of all time, whose name I doubt not has already suggested itself to you—Mr. George Bernard Shaw."

There was a roar, a rush, a sound of tinkling glass and a splash. Shakspeare had dived through the window into the river, making the black waters of the Styx fairly boil as he swam madly up the channel.

"Hi, Bill," cried Homer, leaning over the rail and calling to the puffing poet. "You've left your life preserver behind you!"

And he tossed the laurel wreath, which in Shakspeare's angry flight had fallen to the floor, into the seething wake of the hero of the day.

NEENIE TELLS HOW SHE CONVERTED NICK TO SUFFRAGE

He was opposed to votes for women on general grounds, and especially after he had seen her exhibit temper when trying to keep a flock of goats from the garden—But read what happened to him after he had tried to plow a field with two mules which he had just purchased in "Sent Louis"

By Alice Curtice Moyer-Wing.

"I'M shore glad to see you," said Neenie. "I was a-thinkin' this mornin' that if you didn't git around this way soon, I'd jist natcherly have to write a story myself. I've got it all fixed up in my mind, jist how I would say it, and even have the principal pitcher to go with it—me a-standin' on the front steps with chickens a-comin' up, jist as if they was pets. Like they do in books, you know. It was tuck jist after me and pa got the weatherboardin' on the house, and it shore looks nice. I seen a pitcher oncet of a girl and her chickens tuck together on a calendar. They was plumb purty and I jist didn't rest, hardly, till I got mine tuck that-a way.

"Say, our hens is the all-overest things fer eggs. They buy all my cloes and all of ma's and keep pa in terbacker and the fambly in sugar and cawfee. Theyr'e the layin'est things out!

"But the story is about Nick and why he quit takin' on aginst womern sufferage. Nick's my feller. We've been a-settin' up for nigh onto a year, now, and I think a heap of him, but I ain't so blind about him that I cain't see his faults, and one of 'em is the way he hates the idee of women a-votin' and the fool argyments he brings up agin it.

"Oncet this spring he seen me good and mad. Not that it was new fer him to see me riled up. That wouldn't a-been nothin' to bother about—but the day he seen me have a spell about the goats—well, I guess I'll jist tell you how it was:

"Pa and ma went to town and left me to watch the goats off of the garden. The fence was down and pa couldn't put it up till he could git some more wire and nails, and the goats, they jist wouldn't nothin' do 'em but that they must be right in that garden. And I was a-readin' and didn't want to be bothered. Readin' 'Dory Thorne.' It's a awful good book. Ever read it?"

I went back in my mind to the "Dora Thorne" period experienced by every boy and girl that ever grew up and said I thought I had.

"Well, jist as I would git to a excitin' place, all at once I'd think of them goats. Funny how I thought of 'em ever' time jist when it seemed like I couldn't noway, put the book down fer a minute, and ever' time I looked out, shore enough they was a-pullin' up the winter onions.

"By and by, Old Billy, he tuck a notion not to be bothered about bein' driv away. He jist 'lowed he wouldn't go and the others backed him up in it so that ever' time I started for 'em, Old Bill would run me inside of the yard. Then he'd santer back as proud and grand, with all the others a-lookin' on—the old scalawag. It was shore aggervatin' and Nick, he come up jist when I was a-havin' the biggest fight with him, yet. He seen him knock the club out of my hands and chase me into the yard again. He watched me throw rocks at him and heerd me call him all the mean names I could think of, and seein' how little the old vilyun keered, I jist got madder and madder, till I was a-stompin' my feet and cryin' right out loud like as if I was 6 instead of 16. And Nick, he jist stood and watched the whole proceedin's. I had a notion to sack him fur it, but he wouldn't hear to it, and ever since, he's had 'temper' as a argyment again women' votin'.

"'Why, if you was to git mad at a man,' he says, 'you'd vote agin him just because you was mad at him, regardless of how good a man he might be fer the office he was a wantin'.'

"Nick is tintchered, anyhow, with the idee that men is so fur ahead of women that we won't never git in hollerin' distance of 'em, and now, purty nigh ever' time he comes, he tears off a strip er two about a person that gives way to their tempers. Says they ortn't to be trusted with anything fer the good of the public, like the vote, fer instance, he'll say. Then he tells how men would act under sartin sarcumstances, and especially how he, hisself, acts—that is, he did, till that day he plowed new ground with his prize mules.

NEENIE.

"But say," changing the subject, "you wouldn't a-thought that I had my dress on wrongside out'ards when that pitcher was tuck, would you? I shore hated it, but the kodak man was there and wouldn't be back agin fer no tellin' when, and I was bent on havin' my pitcher made—and, of course, I didn't dast to change my dress. You see, if you happen to put a thing on wrong side out'ards, it is a sign of good luck a-comin'. But if you change it afore the day is gone, you're liable to bring the wust kind of luck on yourself that they is. That's what Sim Outlander done the day he was so bad hurt by a tree a-fallin' on him. He jist 'lowed he wasn't a-goin' to wear his britches wrong side out'ards fer nobody, sign er no sign, and they carried him in at noon frum the woods, purty nigh dead."

Neenie stopped to shudder, and then continued, brightly:

"The day I wore my dress wrong side out'ards, Nick, he sold his hawgs fer the biggest price they had been or has been sence. I don't reckon the dress had ever-thing to do with it, but I shore believe it helped. So, if you git any of your cloes on wrong side out'ards, you better wear 'em that-a way all day. If you don't, they's no tellin' what'll happen to you, a-ridin' round in the country like you do. La Belle might throw you off and hit your head on a rock. A tree might fall and kill both of you right in your tracks. A mad dawg might git after you; they're powerful bad in this country sometimes. Er a snake might bite you—maybe a rattler er a copperhead er a cottonmouth. A painter might be a-hidin' and drap down on you frum a limb as you're a-ridin' along. Painters is about the wust animiles they is. Er a wolf might"——

"For pity's sake," I interrupted. "Don't let anything else happen to me. I'll go right home if you do—and stay there."

"No, no," said Neenie, "they ain't no call to do that. I ain't a-wantin' to skeer you too bad. I jist want you to know some of the things that could happen to you goin' around by yourself, so you'll be keerful."

Reading my wonder at her anxiety about me, Neenie hastened to explain:

"You see, I want you to keep on doin' what you're a-doin', because some of these times all these women is a goin' to git the vote without so much as liftin' a finger. It'll just come to 'em with somebody else a-doin' the work. And because it jist comes to 'em, and because their men is so ginerally sot again it, it's goin' to be the easiest thing in the world fer 'em to not vote after they git the chance. And the men has got to want 'em to same as them a-wantin' to. That's why I want you to keep on workin'. I want the men to git so anxious fer the women to vote that they won't think up a thousand excuses to leave 'em at home on 'lection day. And now," she urged, "will you shore wear your cloes wrong side out'ards if you happen to put 'em on that-a way?"

And I said I would.

"You see," said Neenie, "all women ain't as independent as I am. They ain't no man in the world that I'm afeerd of, not even Nick, with his high and mighty ways.

"But I must tell you the rest of the story:

"One day, after Nick had tore off a longer strip than usual, he says, kinder sad, 'You air a-tryin', ain't you, Neenie?' he says. 'You're a-tryin', ain't you?'

"'You bet I am, Nick,' I says, jist as sweet, 'and I notice that I don't git mad near as easy as I used to, jist in the little time you've been a-talkin' to me,' I says.

"'That's a good girl,' says Nick, a-pattin' his own back. 'That's a good girl. You'll shore be a fitten wife fer a good, level-headed man if you keep on,' he says. 'A good level-tempered man that can do the votin' fer the whole fambly.'

"'Yes, Nick,' I says, 'I'd give anything to be like you,' I says.

"'It's shore a great thing to always have control of yourself,' he says. 'Why,' he says, 'I don't reckon they's anything in the world, hardly, that could make me git crazy, cryin' mad,' he says, with proud importance jist a-stickin' out all over him.

"'No, I reckon not,' I says. 'What air you a-goin' to be doin' this evenin'?' I axes him, jist as if I didn't know.

"'Plowin',' he says. 'Plowin' that piece of new ground I sprouted off this winter.' Nick is plumb proud of that piece of new ground. 'I'm goin' to jist natcherly tear them roots up by the heels with the mules, and I've got to be gittin' along home right now. By the time I eat my dinner it'll be time I was a-gittin' at it. Good-by,' he says. 'I'll be so tard tonight frum plowin' that I reckon I cain't come over, hardly, but I'll see you at the postoffice next mail day.'

"Right after dinner I reckoned to ma that I'd better go over to the store at Lowdenburg fer to git some bluein' afore wash day, and she 'lowed it would be a right good idee.

"I didn't say nothin' else, but I jist skirmished around by that new ground to see how Nick was a-gittin' along. I jist had a hunch about them prize mules of his'n, somehow. He bought 'em up in Sent Louis at a bargain, rid one home and led the other, and was the tickledest feller you ever seen. 'If only you women knowed a bargain when you seen it like us men does,' he says, a-showin' off his mules, 'it wouldn't be sich a resk to let you spend money,' he says. 'But women jist natcherly ain't the jedgment,' he says.

"Well, I skirmished around and hid in a fence corner where they was some blackberry brars and peeked through between the rails.

"Law-zee! I wisht you could a-seen them mules. They was city broke and would pull a wagon, I reckon, but they hadn't never seen a plow since they could remember till one was hitched onto 'em that evenin' in Nick's new ground. Jinny, she looked around at the new contraption, and Maud, she tuck a look at it. Then they put their heads together and talked it over while Nick was a-gittin' the lines gethered up and put over his shoulder and under his left arm. 'Git up, Jinny! Come here, Maud!' he says.

"Well, I shore wisht you could a-seen Jinny and Maud a-gittin' up and a-comin' here. They was off quicker'n scat, and the capers they didn't cut! Some of the time they was a-standin' on their heads, a-wavin' their tails in the air. Some of the time they was a-tearin' up and down the field with the plow a-jumpin' along behind 'em, er a-sailin' in the air like a bird er somethin', and part of the time they jist set down and made signs with their front paws and grinned like a couple of hyenars I seen in the show that time I went to Poplar Bluff.

"And the way Nick went on! Some of it was a heap like cussin', and he'd often told me how he hated cussin'. Said it didn't mean a thing but makin' a fool of yourself when you done it. But he shore tore off a strip to them mules. Said he'd kill 'em if he ever got loose frum 'em, which was the reason, I reckon, that they got loose frum him fust and went fer the woods, lickety-brindle.

"Nick shuck his fist at 'em and kept on talkin' and promisin' 'em what he would do and when he was so mad he couldn't say another word, he jist drapped down in a fence corner and cried and kicked like a kid, jist frum nothin' but temper. I don't know how he happened to drap down so close to where I was a-hidin'. I thought at first that he seen me a-peekin' through the fence, but he was too mad to see.

"After he commenced to cool down a little I poked my hand through a crack and patted his hot forehead,

Hunting Submarines in the North Sea on an American Destroyer

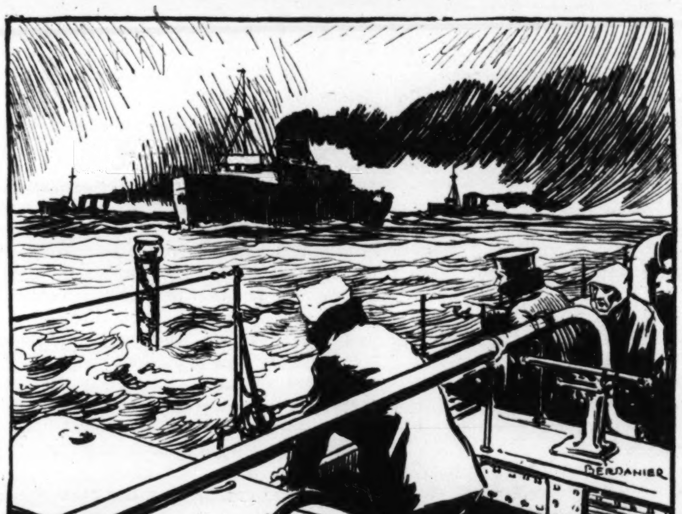
They still manned the deck gun and tried to get back at the destroyers.



I remember looking over the side and seeing the periscope not more than ten feet away.

flagships and various British war craft. Once again the rumors came to the front. They were going to make a break for Helgoland. But the cap of the climax came when we heard that on the following night we were to start on a rush for the Kiel Canal and try to finish the job at once!

Well, we all turned in happy, and turned out next morning, but we didn't seem to be going to Helgoland or the Kiel Canal. We just worked all day, cleaning ship and removing excess weight, so that we might ride clear of the mines. We spent a few days and many shillings in port, and then put to sea, along with a number of other destroyers.

Now we started in on our business of keeping Fritz busy.

Day and night the destroyers patrol the coast, for weeks at a time, never for a minute giving up the search. We went after everything, firing on boxes, suspicious looking barrels; in fact we challenged anything that hove in sight. Naturally, we spoke every ship. Near our particular station the Lusitania had been sunk. Ships had been torpedoed about there regularly. It seemed to be a hotbed of submarines.

For a month or more we kept this up, in all kinds of weather, until at last it seemed that our work had been rewarded. For the sinkings had decreased to such an extent that the many ports which had been completely closed to shipping were opened again.

The first real brush we had with a submarine occurred one morning in July. It was a beautiful, calm day, one of the few warm days we had then. We had just picked up our convoy, a big British ship, which had on board a whole base hospital of American doctors and nurses, and full equipment. We came alongside close, so that our Captain could give his instructions to the skipper of the transport, so close that one could recognize the people on deck, and it sure was good to see some American girls again. A few hours later, while we were cruising peacefully along, a lifeboat was sighted about 3000 yards ahead of the transport on the far side from us. We thought nothing of it; it appeared to be an ordinary lifeboat, when suddenly it started through the water straight for our convoy.

The Captain of our boat called to the men at the fo'castle gun to blaze away at the lifeboat. Our very first shot was a clean hit, the shell exploding and destroying the lifeboat. We then saw the periscope which had been hidden under it. General quarters was rung up. We turned and cut across the transport's bows. It was a ticklish moment, for we had to figure on brushing past her at close quarters. As it was we shaved within 20 yards of her, and then passed directly over the periscope, which had then sunk from sight. As we passed we let go a depth bomb, the first we had dropped. When she went off most of the men aboard us thought we had been torpedoed, for the explosion nearly bounced us out of the water. We got that one, all right; the surface of the water was soon covered with oil, the best proof we have that we've got them.

That was the end of our first sub. In the meantime the transport had turned in the opposite direction, and the passengers got into the lifeboats, which were being rowed away. They, too, thought they had been torpedoed, the shock of the depth bomb was so great. It was all over in a few minutes, but we had saved the big ship, and nothing was said of it, no record made. Yet this same thing is going on like clockwork. Little is said about what the destroyers are doing, but when you come right down to it, it is the destroyers that are really winning the war over there.

For a month or more we kept up our patrol duty, convoying ships in and out of port, a monotonous enough affair. We were out in all kinds of weather, without excitement, compartments flooded with water, the decks continually swept by seas, with the water so rough that we couldn't cook a thing for weeks. We got "canned bill"—that is, canned corned beef, hardtack and the like. It would be a pleasure to tell, if one might, the reforms that Admiral Sims has introduced in the convoy system. Since the American boats have appeared on the scene the Admiralty figures show increases in sailings and decreases in sinkings.

Our next sinking occurred when we were escorting a Canadian troop transport. With two other destroyers we put out one day to meet three such transports. They were all famous British liners. If their names could be mentioned, everybody would know them. We each took our own transport. We took up our formation, to form a scouting line. Late the second evening after we had picked up these boats, about 10 miles off the British coast, just ahead of us was an oil tanker being convoyed by a British patrol boat. I had just come off watch and was standing on deck talking to a number of the fellows before turning in. We were making bets as to when we would pass this convoy ahead of us. We had nearly caught up to her when she turned sharply to the port side and opened fire with her stern battery. General quarters as usual was immediately sounded, everybody going to his station on the double. On our port bow, half way between us and the transport, we could see plainly the wash of a periscope. We turned sharply and passed directly over the path of the submarine. I remember looking over the side and seeing the periscope not more than 10 feet away. It stood about three feet out of the water, and was about six inches in diameter, with a big black knob on the top. As it was still twilight we could see it, otherwise it would have been hard to make out as it was painted light green, and white spotted—the regular camouflage used on all German submarines.

Just as we got directly over, we let go two depth charges, which nearly blew us out of the water and shook the troopship so badly that she thought she was torpedoed. She immediately turned for the shore, switched on all lights, and all hands turned into the lifeboats. Our ship went back over the spot where we had dropped the depth charges, and circled about looking for proof that we had sunk the submarine. Oil and bubbles were coming to the surface, also a number of hats and papers, which we didn't stop to pick up. A little while later we received a message from the Admirality, "Well done. ——."

Within a few hours after this the troops were safely landed at their destination.

I could go on and cite many other instances, very similar to this, where large ships and many people have been saved by quick action on the part of our destroyers.

I remember the time, not long after this, when we picked up a small French ship. We had just left a convoy and were returning to our base, when one of the destroyers in the company turned sharply off her course and opened fire. We signaled to her, asking if she wanted any assistance, but she said she needed none. That night when we tied up in the harbor, the boat that had fired tied up alongside of us. She had on board five old Frenchmen, at least 80 years old, and one boy about 10. They were regular old fishermen, who had been at it since they were kids, and hardly knew that a war was going on. They had been picked up after being shelled by a German submarine, while peacefully fishing in their little old smack. There were 12 originally in the boat, and when the sub came up, six of them had put off in one boat and six in another. The Captain of the submarine, having nothing to do that day, first shelled the smack, and then one of the rowboats, killing the six men in it. It was at this point that the destroyer came on the scene, the submarine immediately ducking. One doesn't mind so much seeing them sink munition ships and going after transports, because by doing that they are protecting themselves, after their fashion, catching an army before it gets started; but when you see them firing on little fishing boats, it's just plain murder.

The other subs we bagged, during the spell we were out, we got in much the same manner. The method is simple enough. One time we were cruising along easy in a fog, when, about 200 yards off our port bow, we saw a submarine just submerging. Before we could train a gun on her she had got clean out of sight. As we were only making about six knots, we couldn't drop a depth charge without danger of blowing ourselves up. It is on a foggy day such as that that we get most of them. When they come to the surface to recharge their batteries, they are apt to be easy marks for the gun. We can then come right up on them. But most of the ones we potted we got by means of depth charges.

Most people have the idea that the crews of the German submarines are roughnecks, who have to be forced to go on board ship. Just let me tell you what we are up against now. Our sister ship, one of the destroyers, captured the crew of a submarine, afterward tying up alongside our ship. In order to get the captured crew on board the flagship they had to be brought across our deck. Every man of them was about 18 to 21 years of age, fine, big, strapping fellows, with pink cheeks and blue eyes, all clean-shaven and looking the pink of perfection. As they filed on the decks of the flagship they formed in line. When

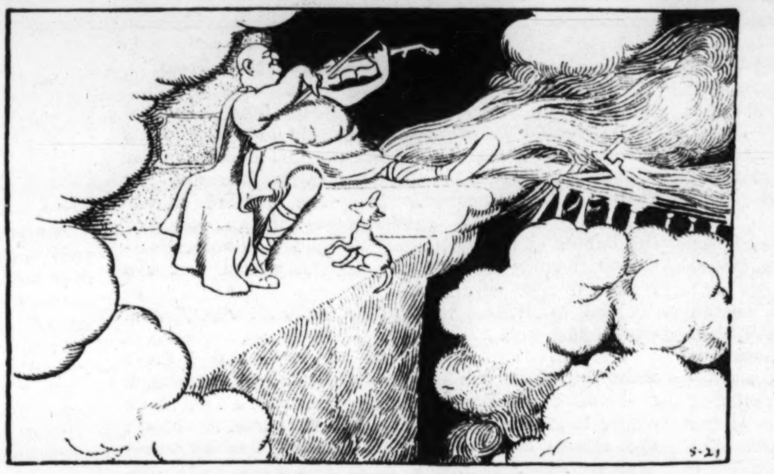
Shakspeare's Birthday and Other Things



He merely fiddled while Rome was burning.

IT was Shakspeare's birthday, and the divine bard's appreciation of his own greatness had become so increasingly evident that it had got on the nerves of a large number of his fellow Hadesians.

"He's not exactly what you would call unpopular with himself today, is he?" said Homer, as the great dramatist strolled by with his head thrown so proudly back that he seemed aware of nothing but himself and the ceiling.

"Nun—no—no," stuttered Demosthenes, "bub—bub—but youh—you kuk—can't—bub—blame him. This is Bub—bub—Bill's bub—bub—birthday, and of all the gug—great fuf—figures in the wow—world's huh—history he is the only wow—one th—that's sus—celebrated bub—by lul—lul—living im—mum—mortals."

"Get Demosthenes a new needle, will you, Raleigh?" whispered Homer, to the chairman of the House Committee.

"That's enough to give anybody's nose a tilt," said Addison.

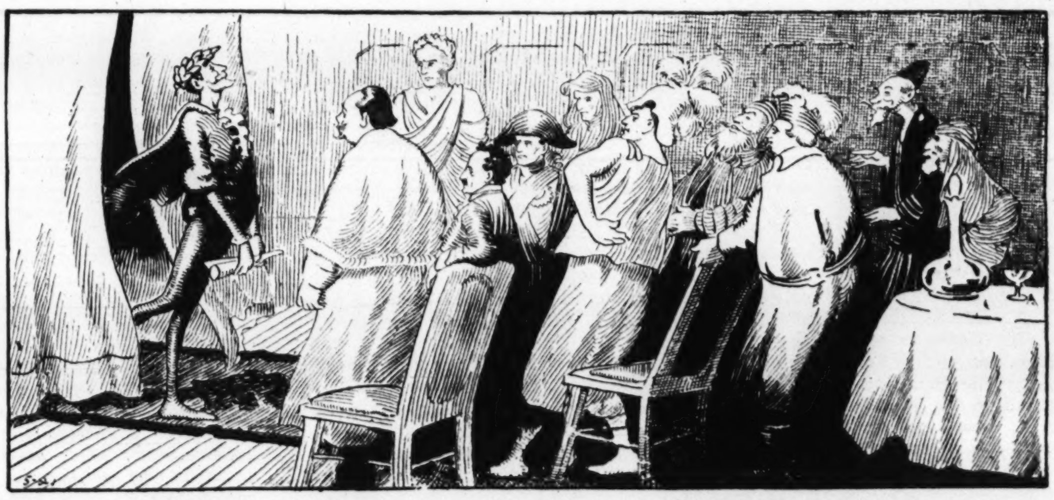
"That's true, said Homer, "but Bill's been rather toploftical for some little time. To hear him talk you'd think he and the solar system were twin brothers. He's the only man I know of outside of Potsdam who really patronizes the universe. You don't see George Washington strutting around like a pouter-pigeon looking for a worm in the milky way when people celebrate his birthday, do you?"

"Nor me, neither," interjected Guy Fawkes, "when they celebrate my day in dear old Lunnon with fireworks and the pealing of bells, with speeches by the Lud Mayor, and"——

"That'll do for you, Fawkes," said Napoleon. "I shouldn't think you would, because you were a failure. Bill Shakspeare may be as chesty as the Kaiser, but he turned the trick he started in to turn, while you were as far from accomplishing your benign purpose with your gunpowder plot as the Crown Prince is at Verdun. Why I wouldn't peel a potato in honor of your day, much less a bell!"

"How did this Fawkes person ever get into this club, anyhow?" demanded Dr. Johnson, with a heavy frown upon the intruder.

"He threatened to blow it up some night if he was black-balled," explained Sir Walter Raleigh, who as chairman of the Committee on Membership had frequently to accept disagreeable responsibilities.



Shakspeare, wearing a wreath of laurel, entered the room.

"And I'll do it yet, too," growled Fawkes, menacingly, "if you shades don't treat me with a little more respect."

"I'll move to have you suspended, sir," roared Dr. Johnson, shaking his cane at Fawkes.

"I should worry," laughed Fawkes. "A man who has been hanged by the neck, Dock, doesn't bother much about being suspended from a club. Go as far as you like. I'm immune."

"I refuse to discuss this Bolshevik's disqualifications for membership in this organization, when the subject under consideration is Shakspeare's birthday," interjected Homer. "If we're going to discuss the disqualification of members for membership in this club, we'd better take a year off and start at the beginning with Cain and Ananias."

"Well," said Aristophanes, "dropping our possible Fawkes Pas for the time being and getting back on the main line again, I want to say that my objection to birthday celebrations is that they are so darned exclusive. Why the deuce, let me ask you, do they celebrate Shakspeare's birthday and let Aristotle's and Plato's and mine slide? And Homer's, too? Why don't they celebrate that?"

"I guess one of the reasons is that nobody knows when you were born, and in Homer's case there's some doubt that he was ever born at all," said Benjamin Franklin.

"Tush!" retorted Aristophanes. "I don't hold any brief for Homer, but as far as I can find out he was born more times than any of us. If you don't believe it, Benjy, read your history and you'll find that Homer was born at Smyrna, at Rhodes, at Colophon, at Salamis, at Chios, at Argos, at Athens and heaven only knows where else—Brooklyn, for all I know. It would take at least a week to celebrate his birthday at the very lowest estimate. Why the itinerary of Homer's birth places almost suggests the idea that his mother was out on the Chautauqua circuit when her illustrious son first dawned upon the horizon of mortality."

"Sure thing!" said Addison. "I've thought that very same myself. Homer's birthplace reads like a time table on a jerk-water railroad in western New York. How did it all happen, Home?"

"I was a favorite son in all those places," said Homer.

"How did you come to overlook Saloniki and Ypsylanti?" queried Xerxes.

"And Kokomo?" put in Poe.

"I'd have called him, an Away-From-Homer if I'd been his father," said Aeschylus, with a wink at Petrarch.

"Well, I agree with Aristophanes," said Nero. "It is invidious to pick out certain people to celebrate, and ignore the others. Think of all I did for Rome, and yet who ever remembers my birthday?"

"A birthday, Nero," said Dr. Johnson, "is celebrated in commemoration of a man's virtues, and you didn't have any."

"Oh, I don't know about that," said Marcus Aurelius. "I think Nero showed considerable self-restraint when he merely fiddled while Rome was burning, instead of going out and pouring gasoline on it, as you naturally expect a man of his character to do."

"By Jove, Marcus," cried Nero. "What a bully idea! I wish to heaven I had thought of it."

"I guess those who heard you play wished you had, too," said Stradivarius, who had always resented Nero's claims to musical virtuosity.

"But, really, boys," said Homer, "when you think of all the illustrious people in history, from me down to—er—down to—er"——

"Jack Johnson," prompted Samson.

"All right," said Homer. "I never heard of Jack Johnson, and I am, therefore, not familiar with his writings"——

"He invented what they call punch in American letters," said Poe.

"Well, said Homer, whatever Prof. Johnson invented or did not invent, to get back to what I was saying—when you think of all the famous men in history, from me down to Jack Johnson"——

"Or from Adam to Trotsky," said Alcibiades.

"Not to mention such illustrious women as Helen of Troy and Salome and Cleopatra and Queen Elizabeth and Joan of Arc and George Eliot and—er"——

"Lydia Pinkham," said Moliere.

"Precisely," said Homer, "and Lydia Pinkham"——

"The mother of pacifism," suggested Napoleon.

"Better leave the women out, Homer," said Beau Brummel. "They wouldn't like it. You can't tie a woman down to a specific birthday that would give you a clue to her actual age."

"Be that as it may, but for Apollyon's sake let me finish!" roared Homer. "What I have been trying to unload for the past three weeks is this: with all these illustrious persons of both sexes undoubtedly born at some time or another, why pick out Shakspeare for a fortissimo blast and put the soft pedal on the rest of us?"

"I think I can solve that problem," said Washington. "It would hardly be expedient to celebrate everybody's birthday. If you make a national holiday of everybody's birthday, as has been done in my case, the world's work wouldn't go on. We'd all be taking a day off all the time. There are only 365 days in a year, Homer, but there have been more than 365 famous persons born into the world. We've got a thousand of 'em on the membership list of this club right now, with a waiting list that stretches from Dan to Beersheba."

"Well, even at that," said Dr. Johnson, "it wouldn't be a bad idea. Considering what the world's work has latterly become, a universal holiday in which all the activities of the time were suspended for say 10 or 15 centuries wouldn't hurt anybody much. If you could get the earth calmed down into a state of quiescent reflection for as little as a hundred years, what a boon it would be! Time would take care of Bill Sykes of Potsdam and his crowd, and once the people of the earth had a chance to think, and think straight, we'd see the end of all they stand for."

"It wouldn't do, Doc, it wouldn't do at all," put in Wellington. "Time may be the cure for Bill of Potsdam, but what Bill needs is not a cure, but treatment. The only fear I have about Bill is that he won't live to see the outcome of this little picnic of his. It is not Time's job, but the stunt of Nemesis to take care of little Willie."

"Well," said Weilington, Bill's got to be licked."

"But suppose you could get him to promise to lay off for a hundred years," persisted Johnson.

"Promise!" roared Archimedes. "Promise? Really, Doctor, you are not a scientist, you know, and, therefore, you don't know how to analyze what is known as a Kaiser's promise. You have known all about other words, but it is quite evident that you are not yet on to William's words. His promises are made in Germany and are, therefore, largely synthetic. They appear to be one thing, when, as a matter of fact, they are directly the reverse. When William crosses his heart and says I will, you know that he is double-crossing yours and means that he won't. When he says I won't, if you have any intelligence you lay bets that he will. His promises are as reliable as the party platform of a Bolshevist convention, and makes it hard, you see. Harder for him than for either of us."

"You are generous," she said, but she saw how keenly this thing was making him suffer.

"No, not generous—only just. There's another side to it—Bob's side. Uncle James never understood him. He hasn't understood either of us sometimes. But he's done his best for us. He's believed in us, been ambitious for us, wanted to give us everything his own life lacked"——

"Except love," she softly supplied.

"Well—perhaps. I'm not sure. I think he loves us, in his way. Otherwise we couldn't hurt him so. And when he's hurt he isn't tender, he's savage. He's savage now. So he's going to hurt Bob."

"And you?"

"It doesn't matter about me. I have—other things. And I think I can hold Bob, in a way. He's sorry now. I think he appreciates for the first time what he has lost. But I can't do anything with Uncle James. I've tried everything I know—but it's no use. And nobody can ever make it up to him."

"Tom, how you love him!" she pitifully exclaimed.

"Love him! "Why, yes," simply. "He's the only father I ever knew much about, you know. He's harsh and rough and doesn't make friends, but to us he's been—— There he is now, probably looking for me. You'll excuse me?"

James Mason had appeared in the door of his bank at the next corner and now, as he caught sight of his nephew, he waved his hand and came briskly toward them.

"Tom, introduce me to him," she begged.

"Oh—would you mind if I didn't—just now?" he stammered. "You see, he might—he's not"——

"Yes, yes, I know! I know a lot of things! But I have a special reason. Now, please."

The elder Mason, however, paused for no ceremonies, but addressed himself abruptly to the younger, without noticing the girl.

"I'm going over to the police court, Tom!"

"I was just coming to see you about that, sir. I suppose it's Stan Chase?"

"Yes, his father telephoned me, thinking I might know something about it. I do. I can exonerate Stanley, and I'm not in a position just now," bitterly, "to refuse John Chase anything." John Chase was one of the men Bob had pilloried.

"Very well, sir. But before you go, let me present you to Miss Wallace." His uncle perfunctorily uncovered, still with hardly a glance in her direction. Apparently the name had not touched his consciousness. "She must have been on that train last night, too."

"I was," Bess quietly affirmed. "Mr. Mason and I made part of the journey in the same car." Tom's uncle looked at her then sharply.

"Oh," said he, "you're the young woman who didn't scream."

"I am," was the demure reply.

"Were you in the car when the bomb went off?" demanded Tom.

"Yes. Do you know about that?" From his manner, she thought for a moment that he might even know the truth.

"That's the very thing we're talking about. Stanley Chase, a chum of—of my brother's, was in that car, and because he's been mixed up in one or two college affairs in which those Italians got rather the worst of it they've pitched upon him as the bomb-thrower, and they've taken out a warrant for his arrest."

"What a very un-Italian thing to do!" she laughed, glancing at Mr. Mason, whose face was like a mask.

"Yes, but, you see, they're not very keen to tackle Stan personally. They've been up against that before, and he's an allround athlete. So somebody has evidently told them that they can hit him hardest through the law."

"And is he languishing in prison?" she lightly asked, with another apparently cursory glance at the elder man. It was Tom who replied.

"He hasn't been arrested yet. His father heard about the warrant—you see, everybody knows everybody else here—and Stan's keeping out of the way for a while, hoping that somebody can be found who can swear that he had nothing to do with that affair last night. Then he'll go and give himself up and have the thing put right through."

"And that's what they've asked of your uncle? But he can't help much," she spoke with light assurance, "for I heard him say last night that he didn't see it done."

"I can have the charge dismissed," James Mason curtly told her.

For a brief moment she looked into his face, deeply lined and grim. Then she said softly:

"Won't you let me attend to that for you, Mr. Mason? You are a busy man, I know, and—I think I'm the only person who really knows who killed Cock Robin. I saw that 'bomb' fired."

"Saw it fired!" he repeated, staring at her. Then the color swept up into his face in a heavy flush.

"Yes, I saw it." Very quietly she held his glance—so quietly that not even Tom was suspicious—and her tone continued one of amused explanation. "You see, I wasn't asleep, though I dare say I seemed to be. I did have my eyes shut for a while, and when I opened them I saw this man coming down the aisle.

"What man?" asked Tom.

"I hadn't seen him before," she replied, with a quick movement of the hand as James Mason opened his lips to speak. "I didn't know when he entered the car, or where he came from, and, of course, I didn't know who he was." She looked from one to the other as she told the story, smiling slightly, but with the last phrase she again met the elder man's glance, squarely and significantly. "I saw him look at those slouching, snoring Italians; I saw him pick up the big firecracker from the floor, where some boys had dropped it; I saw him laugh a little and look about to see if anybody was awake, and I saw him set the thing off. Later, in the height of the excitement after the explosion, I saw him leave the car—and I did not see him again."

"And where was Stan Chase all this time?" eagerly inquired Tom.

"I don't know—unless he was the nice-looking boy asleep in the seat across from mine. There were several other people in the car, perhaps ten."

"Well, there's the whole thing in a nutshell!" cried the young man. "That will fix Stan all right."

"Why didn't you tell some of this last night?" asked the elder. "You had the opportunity."

"I had several reasons," she returned, still lightly, but fearlessly meeting his stern and penetrating gaze. "You see, when he was doing it, he looked so jolly," she laughed a little, "so like a boy in funny, naughty mischief, that I rather enjoyed it. And those Italians were a little unpleasant; don't you think they were? So it was just funny at first. And then—well, I don't think he expected it to make quite so much of a row, and he was a little upset by it—a little taken aback. Don't you see that if I had told what I knew some dignified, respected man might be humiliated today, through having been detected in a foolish, boyish prank?" There was now a warm, pretty, pleading eagerness under her laughing tone. "Don't you see that it really didn't do any harm at all, but that petty, little, narrow people might take it up and magnify it and make him ashamed? He wasn't a young man—he must be a person of some importance in some of these little towns about here—and don't you see what it might mean to him, and to his friends—and to his children, if he has any—if those Italians had had him arrested today on a silly charge like that? Oh, I'm so glad I didn't say anything about it last night! I'm glad, too, that I can honestly say I had never seen the man before, that I didn't know when he came into the car and that he left it before the excitement was over. It was a very natural, boyish sort of thing to do under the circumstances, but it wasn't, as it turned out, a thing that a dignified, responsible, rather elderly man would care to have published and spread broadcast about himself. Now was it?" she appealed to Tom.

"Most certainly it was not," he agreed, smiling for the first time since she had met him. "Was he that sort of a man? A gentleman?"

"He was a man of great natural force and distinction," she quickly replied. "I fancy he had been dining in town and had had a glass or two of wine. I don't mean that he was intoxicated, but just a little careless and jolly. In fact," slowly, "I have an idea—though I didn't think of this until it was all over—that he was one of three men who stood under my window talking before the train started. The others tried to make him go back with them, but he wouldn't. They said: 'You've got about three more drinks aboard now than you usually carry, and you're almost human. Come back, and we'll give you three more.'" She glanced up at James Mason and caught a softening in his face. "Maybe he has a headache today, but he was human and jolly and—and a good fellow last night," she dared, audaciously. "Now, you'll let me go to the police court and tell all this for your friend, won't you, Mr. Mason? It will be quite proper," she gave him no opportunity to reply and kept the same light, half-laughing tone, "for my sister, Mrs. Ford, is with me and Tom can take us over. And you really couldn't liberate the poor youth, for you didn't see the man who killed Cock Robin at all. Tom, will you explain all this to Kate and ask her to come with us?" The young man went at once to summon Mrs. Ford, and Bess turned to his uncle.

"Why did you do this?" he asked. Why should you do it?"

"Will you—will you remember last night, and—be a little kind to Bob?" For the first time she faltered slightly. Then, as his face hardened, she added, with a shaky laugh: "Remember the time you painted Prexy's cow green, and—and all the other times."

"So! You were eavesdropping," he said.

"No; you were careless. More careless than you know. Mr. Mason, I've not been quite honest with you, and I prefer to be." She glanced back and saw Tom still occupied with Kate's friends. "I've given you the reasons why I'm glad now that I didn't tell what I knew last night. And no one else knows all of what I knew, except you. But at the time the reason I didn't tell was that I was angry—you had made me very angry, and when I found out who you were I concealed my knowledge of your connection with that foolish little affair, as I might have concealed a sharp, mean little weapon that I might some day use against you."

"Why?"

"Because, when the train started you stood with your friends directly beneath the open window where I sat, and said—what did you say. I don't think you quite realize yet, Mr. Mason, that I am Bess Wallace."

"Bess Wallace! Tom's girl?"

"The girl of whom you spoke to your friends—so frankly. I heard every word of that." She shut her teeth hard for a moment, remembering, but continued at once: "So I started downtown this morning, having heard about Bob—whom I have never seen—and knowing about your attitude toward him, and about what you did last night—I started downtown determined that before I returned I would put you in a position where you would have to admit your part in last night's affair and take the shabby consequences. I meant to force you to humiliate yourself—to make yourself ridiculous—to gratify my petty pride."

"Why did you change your mind? Shall we walk on? Why did you change your mind?"

"I met Tom."

"Well?"

"He talked to me about Bob—and about you. But mostly about you. He made me see what this thing Bob has done means to you—and why. I saw, too, that it hurt Tom most where it hurt you. Then I knew that he loved you and that any blow I aimed at you would strike him. Those are the real reasons."

"Hm! said James Mason, and walked a whole block in silence. Then: "But I'll have to send Bob away—after this."

"Oh, yes, send him away! But send him understanding—you know!"

"Perhaps I do. Perhaps I do." Another block.

"Miss Wallace, I'm an old man—and a hard man. Apology does not come easily to my lips"——

"Oh, please don't!" she cried. "Please don't! Let's forget it all!"

"Thank you. We'll not forget it, but we'll not speak of it—at present. Perhaps when you and Tom are married—by the way, you're going to marry Tom, aren't you?" She glanced up and met his rare smile, to which she instantly responded:

"How can I say, when he's never asked me?"

"You're woman enough to know that he wants to ask you."

"I have the word of a member of his family for it," she dryly retorted.

"Hm! So you won't tell me? Well, I suppose that's right, too."

"I'll tell you this," she offered, looking up at him through eyes bright with tears. "If ever—that—does happen, I shall call you Uncle Jim."

"I hope you will," said James Mason, stopping to take her hand. "I hope you will! Now I'll go and telephone Chase—and see Bob." (Copyright.)

NEENIE TELLS HOW SHE CONVERTED NICK TO SUFFRAGE.

jist like I imagined his mother would a-done. Did you ever notice how motherly a woman feels toward the man she thinks a heap of? It's jist a sign of bein' in love with 'em, I reckon.

"I don't know how he knowed it was me, ner why he wasn't surprised at me a-bein' there. He was too upset, I reckon.

"He jist laid there fer a little bit and then he tuck hold of my hand and says: 'Neenie, you won't rub it in too awful hard, will you?' 'No,' I says, 'I won't, Nick. And it ain't that I'm a angel, nuther. "I seen that he was plumb whipped out, so I laughed, too, and says: 'Let's jist wipe the slate off plumb clean and start all over agin,' I says.

"'All right,' says Nick. 'I'm shore willin' if you air, and when we git to votin' we'll make it again the law fer'——

"'When WE git to votin,' I says, with a accent on the we.

"'Shore,' says Nick, a-laughin' agin. 'You shorely don't reckon,' he says, 'that I'd ever go to the polls without you,' he says."

Who Killed Cock Robin?

BY MARGARET CAMERON

BESS WALLACE, going alone to visit her sister, Mrs. Ford, in the little college town of Brookfield, had been delayed in reaching the city by a wreck ahead of her train, and was obliged, in consequence, to take the 12:25 local out instead of the earlier express she had hoped to catch.

It was a very hot night, the last in June, and she had been traveling since early that morning, and was tired and sleepy. Therefore, she went out to her train as soon as it was announced; and since a woman with a fretful, sticky, candy-munching child had been sitting behind her all the afternoon, she chose the back seat in the car, insuring herself against annoyance from that direction, at least. Then, realizing that in no way should she hasten the departure of the train, she wearily propped her hand against her cheek and closed her eyes.

She could not even lean her head comfortably against the window casing, for this was in the days of stiff, straight-brimmed sailor hats. She also wore a high, stiff, turn-over collar and a slim cravat, and her mannish coat of blue serge opened over a plain, white shirt waist.

She hoped Kate had received her telegram and would have someone at the station to meet her, and wondered whether Tom Mason would be there, deciding at once that he would not. He would surely present himself in the morning, however; and, remembering this, she smiled drowsily, readjusted her elbow and felt a little less tired.

A few people straggled into the car, hot and listless; a couple of Italian laborers, who chose a place near the middle of the coach and put their feet on the opposite cushion; a pleasant-looking young fellow, who dropped into the seat across from Bess and immediately fell asleep; and the soiled and bedraggled parents of two soiled and bedraggled but still vociferous small boys, whose hands were full of rockets and pinwheels, and whose pockets bulged with firecrackers, in preparation for the approaching Fourth of July. These also found seats near the middle of the car, when the strident voices of the boys, as they displayed and gloated and quarreled over their treasures, smote upon her tired ears.

Presently her attention was attracted by a particularly merry and mellow laugh just outside her window, and a jovial masculine voice said:

"The only trouble with you, Jim, is that you don't loosen up often enough. You'll wake up some fine morning and find yourself an old man, if you don't look out."

"I am an old man, Frank," replied another voice. "By George! I forget that I ever was a boy, except when I get out with you fellows of '83 and live over my one year in college."

"Oh, dry up!" exclaimed a third voice. "We're all boys yet. I defy anybody who's been with us the last two or three days to deny that—or that Jim Mason's the youngest of the lot," he added, whereat they all laughed.

At this mention of the name, Miss Wallace's eyes opened wide, and she was plainly startled. Tom Mason had told her much of a severe kinsman, whom he called Uncle James, who had reared his younger brother and himself from early boyhood, and who was grimly determined that they should take the education for which he had vainly hungered and achieve in their lives the success that he felt his had missed. She had once asked Tom why he never spoke of this relative as "Uncle Jim," and he had replied, with a dubious little shake of the head, "Uncle James isn't that sort." Could this Jim Mason be that Uncle James whose home was in Brookfield?

"By the way, how are your boys getting along?" asked the one called Frank. "Fine fellows, aren't they?"

"They would be if they weren't both damn fools," grimly returned Mason, all the genial quality gone from his tone.

"What's the matter with 'em?" asked one of his friends.

"Bob, the younger, is a brilliant, erratic, untetherable young comet, bending all his energies just now toward knocking every heavenly body clear out of space—oh, it isn't funny," he interrupted himself, as the others laughed. "And Tom, the elder, is steady enough, but he's suddenly developed an asinine streak that beats anything his brother every thought of."

"What's that?"

"He wants to get married!" His tone intimated that beyond this criminal folly could not go, and his friends chuckled gleefully; but the girl inside the car window sat erect, her lips a straight line and her gloved hands clenched. Once she glanced hastily about at the seats remaining vacant, and touched the handle of her suit case. Then, as the voices continued, frankly audible, the impulse waned, and she remained tense and still.

"That won't hurt him, if the girl's all right," said one of the men.

"Humph! I've never seen the girl, and I don't want to. She's one of those silly society butterflys, accustomed to more luxury in a month than Tom could afford to give her in a year—and, of course, she hasn't any sense. No girl of that sort has. I've no objection to Tom's marrying when he's of suitable age, but he's only 27"——

"What do you call a suitable age?" demanded Frank.

"Well—40." The other men shouted with laughter. "That's all right, but you fellows know as well as I do that a young married man is a man that's marred, and Tom's got too good stuff in him to fool with. I'm not going to stand for it at all."

"Look out, Jim," warned the third man. "You may be monkeying with a buzzsaw. Perhaps he's in love with her."

"Tsh! In love! I suppose he is in love with her! Anyhow, he's letting her make a fool of him, all right. He's home on his vacation now—he's an architect, in the offices of Grove & Kingdon, and doing mighty well—and this girl has somehow managed to get an invitation to visit somebody in Brookfield, and is likely to turn up at any time. I suppose she thinks she's going to land him this time—and he's certainly floating around there with his mouth open, just waiting to swallow the bait—but I've a fly or two in reserve myself."

Bess drew a quick breath through set teeth and struck a tight little fist against the window sill. She knew, and she found it incredible, that James Mason should not know, that Tom had worked early and late, and had used all the influence he could summon, to arrange this vacation of his at the time when she was to be in Brookfield. She had been visiting in the West, and it would be their first meeting in several months, as well as her first visit to the old town in which Tom had grown up and to which her sister had recently moved.

"Oh, I'll break it up," confidently continued Mason; "but it's the first time I ever had any serious trouble with Tom, and it took me unawares. Why, when he told me he was going to ask this girl to marry him and I said I wouldn't stand for it, that boy defied me. Yes, sir, actually defied me!"

"Bully for him!" laughed Frank. "I wouldn't give a tinker's dam for a man who wouldn't defy anybody living for the woman he was in love with! And neither would you, you old clam! As for your comet, give him a big enough orbit, and he'll be a credit to you. Give him room."

"I'll give him room—to work in!" retorted the other. "I've issued an ultimatum for him, too. One more escapade, and he comes out of college and goes to work in overalls, so quick it'll make his head swim. If he's got so much energy that he can't control it, I'll find a vent for it! He's come near being expelled twice already."

"Oh, come, Jim!" chaffed the third man. "Remember your own youth! Remember the time we painted Prexy's cow green and hoisted her up to the roof of the chemical building?"

"That's right!" chuckled Frank. "That nearly put us all out of business! That was one of your scintillating ideas, Jim. And did you ever tell your comet about the time we held up the train with old Busby aboard?"

"You bet I never did! Nor Tom, either. But, confound it, man, I was a freshie! We were all freshies then. Bob's past all that—or ought to be."

"Remember Bill Dewing? Brightest chap in our class? Remember what a perfect lamb he was—oh, you weren't there! Well, he never got over being a comet. It took the whole class, during the senior year, to keep him in order long enough to graduate; and look at him now! Probably the most brilliant political writer in this country."

"Right you are!" exclaimed the other man. "Give your comet room to swing in, Jim. Nobody ever gets over being a kid until he's dead. He may be unburied, but he's dead all right. Look at yourself. You've been walled up for years in that academic mausoleum of a town up the road here, and even yet you're not defunct. You still wake up and raise"——

"Only once a year, boys! Only once a year!" protested Mason; and the others laughed.

"Well, then, make a night of it, for heaven's sake! You've about three more drinks aboard now than you usually carry, and you're almost human! Come on back with us, and we'll give you three more, and then you'll begin to enjoy life again. Come on."

"No, boys, not tonight. I'd like to, for I still feel like cutting everything loose, but I've got to be home early in the morning."

"Oh, you're a quitter!" gibed the other two, as the starting bell rang. "Cinderella galloping home to the ashes at midnight! Come on! Dare you to! No? Good-by, then, until next year!"

The train moved, and Miss Wallace, erect and tense and vividly angry, waited for Mr. James Mason to come into her field of vision; but apparently he chose the car behind, for no one entered the one where she sat, and gradually she relaxed somewhat, although it was long before her lips lost their rigidity of line, or her eyes their somber fire.

Meanwhile other people drifted in, chiefly country patrons of the city's roof gardens and open-air restaurants; and as the train crawled through the hot night they left it again, by twos and threes, at the little stations. Shortly before 1 o'clock the parents of the boys, awaking opportunely themselves, hurriedly aroused their slumbering offspring and dragged them from the car, reluctant and whimpering, but still firmly clutching their pyrotechnical treasures.

There were few passengers remaining by this time, and of these all were asleep, except the girl in the back seat, now the only woman in the coach. Even she finally put aside the magazine in which she had been trying to interest herself, and again propped her head upon her hand and closed her eyes, giving herself entirely to indignant contemplation of James Mason's utterances and attitude.

Thus she did not notice an elderly man who entered from the doorway behind her, and who, after glancing at the scattered passengers, selected a seat across the aisle from and slightly behind the two Italians, now peacefully, if somewhat audibly sleeping. Nor did she see him go forward and help himself thirstily to ice water; but as he turned to come back through the car she chanced to open her eyes, and indifferently observed him from behind her screening fingers. He was a man of medium height and weight, past middle age, and well dressed. More she did not mark at the moment.

He looked with evident disapproval at the unconscious Italians, whose dusty feet still reposed in the opposite seat, and whose open mouths and flushed, perspiring faces were a fitting accompaniment to their loud snores. After passing them, his attention was attracted by something on the floor. He paused, looked sharply at it, and stooped. When he arose, he held in his hand that special delight of the youth of our land known as a "cannon cracker," dropped by the children.

For a moment he considered it carelessly; then a mirthful spasm crossed his face, and after a hasty but searching glance at his fellow passengers he slipped into the seat behind the Italians. Bess cautiously turned her head and looked at the youth across from her, finding him palpably asleep, as all the others seemed to be. She realized at once that her own drowsy attitude was probably reassuring to the elderly man, but she could not know that her mannish dress had contributed to his conviction that there were no women present, her face being partly concealed by the propping hand. Once more he quickly scrutinized the passengers, then fumbled in his pocket, stooped a little—and slipped across the aisle and a few seats back.

A moment later a terrific detonation not only ef-its best that the city, in need, might do likewise.

And he had staged the affair well. The Crown Prince, standing alone, so small, so appealing, against his magnificent background, was a picture to touch the hardest. Not for nothing had Mettlich studied the people, read their essential simplicity, their answer to any appeal to the heart. These men were men of family. Surely no father of a son could see that lonely child and not offer him loyalty.

With the same wisdom, he had given the boy small instruction, and no speech of thanks. "Let him say what comes into his head," Mettlich had reasoned. "It will at least be spontaneous and boyish."

The Crown Prince was somewhat nervous. He blinked rapidly as the delegation entered and proceeded up the room. However, happening at that moment to remember Nikky with the brass inkwell, he forgot himself in amusement. He took a good look at the gold casket as it approached, reverently borne, and rather liked its appearance. It would have been, he reflected, extremely convenient to keep things in, pencils and erasers, on his desk. But, of course, he would not have it to keep. Quite a number of things passed into his possession and out again, with the same lightning-like rapidity.

The first formalities over, and the Crown Prince having shaken hands nine times, the spokesman stepped forward. He had brought a long, written speech, which had already been given to the newspapers. But after a moment's hesitation he folded it up.

"Your royal highness," he said, looking down, "I have here a long speech, but all that it contains I can say briefly. It is your birthday, highness. We come, representing many others, to present to you our congratulations and—the love of your people. It is our hope"—— He paused. Emotion and excitement were getting the better of him. "Our hope, highness, that you will have many happy years. To further that hope, we are here today to say that we, representing all classes, are your most loyal subjects. We have fought for his majesty, the King, and if necessary we will fight for you." He glanced beyond the child at the Council and his tone was strong and impassioned. "But today we are here, not to speak of war, but to present to you our congratulations, our devotion and our loyalty."

Also a casket. He had forgotten that. He stepped back, was nudged and recollected.

"Also a gift," he said, and ruined a fine speech among smiles. But the presentation took place in due order and Otto cleared his throat.

"Thank you all, very much," he said. "It is a very beautiful gift. I admire it very much. I should like to keep it on my desk, but I suppose it is too valuable. Thank you very much."

The spokesman hoped that it might be arranged that he keep it on his desk, an ever-present reminder of the love of his city. To this the Chancellor observed that it would be arranged, and the affair was over. To obviate the difficulty of having the delegation back down the long room, it was the Crown Prince who departed first, with the Chancellor.

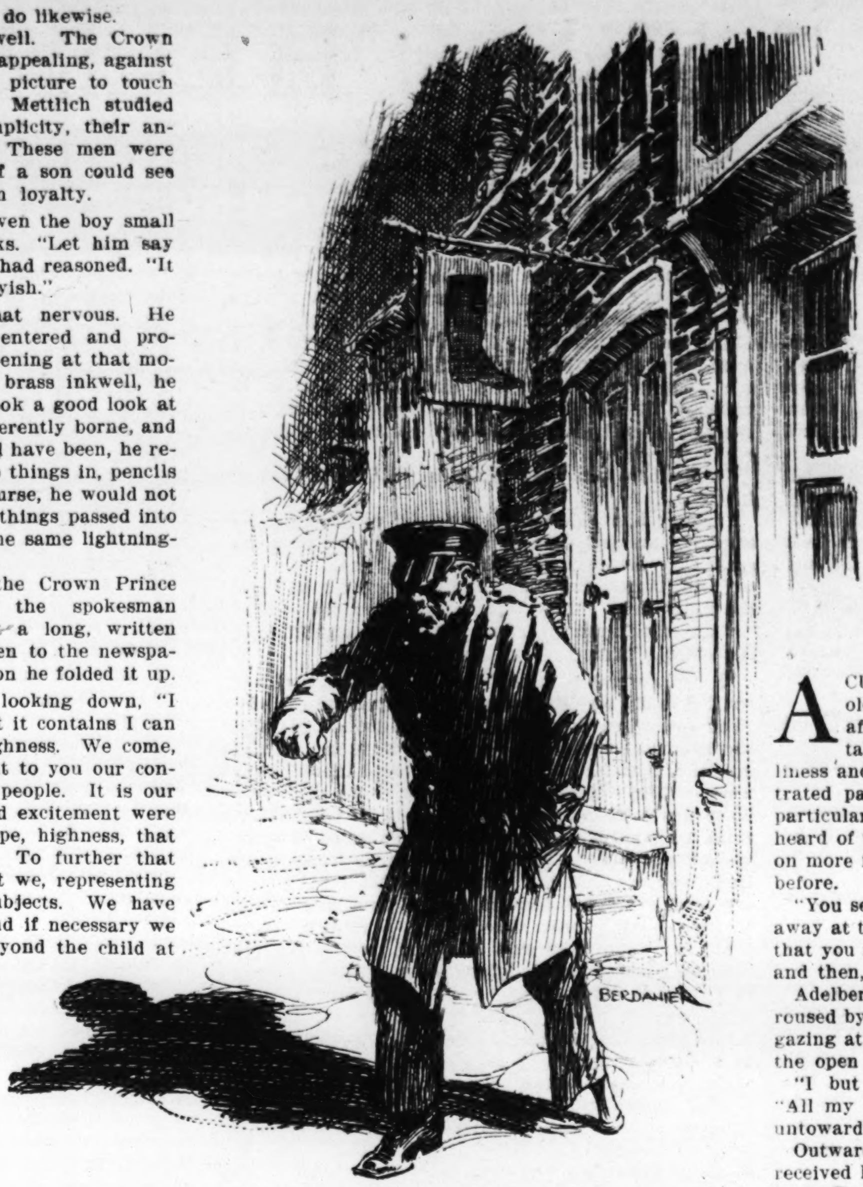
Altogether, it was comfortably over, and the Chancellor reflected grimly that the boy had done well. He had made friends of the delegation at a time when he needed friends. As they walked along the long corridors of the palace together, the Chancellor was visualizing another scene, which must come soon, pray God with as good result: the time when, the old King dead and the solemn bell of the cathedral tolling, this boy would step out on to the balcony overlooking the place, and show himself to the great throng below the windows.

To offset violence and anarchy itself, only that one small figure on the balcony!

Late in the afternoon the King sent for Prince Ferdinand William Otto. He had not left his bed since the day he had placed the matter of Hedwig's marriage before the Council, and now he knew he would never leave it. There were times between sleeping and waking when he fancied he had already gone, and that only his weary body on the bed remained. At such times he saw Hubert, only, strangely enough, not as a man grown, but as a small boy again; and his Queen, but as she had looked many years before, when he married her, and when at last, after months of married wooing, she had crept willing into his arms.

So, awakening from a doze, he saw the boy there, and called him Hubert. Prince Ferdinand William Otto, feeling rather worried, did the only thing he could think of. He thrust his warm hand into his grandfather's groping one, and the touch of his soft flesh roused the King.

The Sister left them together, and in her small room dropped on her knees before the holy image. There, until he left, she prayed for the King's soul, for the safety and heavenly guidance of the boy. The wind stirred her black habit and touched gently her white coif. She prayed, her pale lips moving silently.



At last he went out into the street, muttering. "They shame us before the people," he said thickly.

In the King's bedchamber Prince Ferdinand William Otto sat on a high chair, and talked. He was extremely relieved that his exile was over, but he viewed his grandfather with alarm. His aunt had certainly intimated that his running away had made the King worse. And he looked very ill.

"I'm awfully sorry, grandfather," he said.

"For what?"

"That I went away the other day, sir."

"It was, after all, a natural thing to do."

The Crown Prince could hardly believe his ears.

"If it could only be arranged safely—a little freedom"—— The King lay still, with closed eyes.

Prince Ferdinand William Otto felt uneasy. "But I am very comfortable, and—and happy," he hastened to say. "You are, please, not to worry about me, sir. And the paper I threw at Monsieur Puaux the other day, I am sorry about that, too. I don't know exactly why I did it."

The King still held his hand, but he said nothing. There were many things he wanted to say. He had gone crooked where this boy must go straight. He had erred, and the boy must avoid his errors. He had cherished enmities, and in his age they cherished him. And now——

"May I ask you a question, sir?"

"What is it?"

"Will you tell me about Abraham Lincoln?"

"Why?" The King was awake enough now. He fixed the Crown Prince with his keen eyes.

"Well, Miss Braithwaite does not care for him. She says he was not a great man, not as great as Mr. Gladstone, anyhow. But Bobby—that's the boy I met; I told you about him—he says he was the greatest man who ever lived."

"And who," asked the King, "do you regard as the greatest man?"

Prince Ferdinand William Otto fidgeted, but he answered bravely: "You, sir."

"Humph!" The King lay still, smiling slightly. "Well," he observed, "there are, of course, other opinions as to that. However—Abraham Lincoln was a very great man. A dreamer, a visionary, but a great man. You might ask Miss Braithwaite to teach you his 'Gettysburg Address.' It is rather a model as to speech making, although it contains doctrines that—well, you'd better learn it."

He smiled again to himself. It touched his ironic sense of humor that he, who had devoted his life to maintaining that all men are not free and equal, when on that very day that same doctrine of liberty was undermining his throne—that he should be discussing it with the small heir to that throne.

"Yes, sir," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto. He hoped it was not very long.

"Otto," said the King suddenly, "do you ever look at your father's picture?"

"Not always."

"You might—look at it now and then. I'd like you to do it."

"Yes, sir."

CHAPTER XXV.

THE GATE OF THE MOON.

A CURIOUS friendship had sprung up between old Adelbert and Bobby Thorpe. In off hours, after school, the boy hung about the ticket-taker's booth, swept now to a wonderful cleanliness and adorned within with pictures cut from illustrated papers. The small charcoal fire was Bobby's particular care. He fed and watched it, and having heard of the baleful effects of charcoal fumes, insisted on more fresh air than old Adelbert had ever breathed before.

"You see," Bobby would say earnestly, as he brushed away at the floor beneath the burner, "you don't know that you are being asphyxiated. You just feel drowsy, and then, poof!—you're dead."

Adelbert, dozing between tickets, was liable to be roused by a vigorous shaking, to a pair of anxious eyes gazing at him, and to a draft of chill spring air from the open door.

"I but dozed," he would explain, without anger. "All my life have I breathed the fumes and nothing untoward has happened."

Outwardly he was peaceful. The daughter now received his pension in full, and wrote comforting letters. But his resentment and bitterness at the loss of his position at the opera continued, even grew.

For, while he had now even a greater wage, and could eat three meals, besides second breakfast and afternoon coffee, down deep in his heart old Adelbert felt that he had lost caste. The opera—that was a setting! Great staircases of marble, velvet hangings, the hush before the overture, and over all the magic and dignity of music. And before his stall had passed and repassed the world—royalties, the aristocracy, the army. Hoi polloi had used another entrance, by which to climb to the upper galleries. He had been, then, of the elect. Aristocrats who had forgotten their own opera glasses had requested him to give them of his best, had through long years learned to know him there, and had nodded to him as they swept by. The flash of jewels on beautiful necks, the glittering of decorations on uniformed chests, had been his life.

And now, to what had he fallen! To selling tickets for an American catch-penny scheme, patronized by butchers, by housemaids, by the common people—a noisy, uproarious crowd, that nevertheless counted their change with suspicious eyes, and brought lunches in paper boxes, which they scattered about.

"Riff-raff!" he said to himself scornfully.

There was, however, a consolation. He had ordered a new uniform. Not for 20 years had he ventured the extravagance, and even now his cautious soul quailed at the price. For the last half-dozen years he had stumped through the streets, painfully aware of shabbiness, of a shiny back, of patches, when, on the anniversary of the great battle to which he had sacrificed a leg, the veterans marched between lines of cheering people.

Now, on this approaching anniversary, he could go peacefully, nay, even proudly. The uniform was of the best cloth, and on its second fitting showed already its marvel of tailoring. The news of it had gone around the neighborhood. The tailor reported visits from those who would feel of the cloth, and figure its expensiveness. In the evening—for he worked only until 7—he had his other preparations: polishing his sword, cleaning his accoutrements.

On an evening a week before the parade would occur, he got out his boots. He bought always large boots with straight soles, the right not much differfectually ended the snores of the two Italians, but brought every man in the car to his feet, blinking and pale. There was the instant of bewildered suspense that always follows a shock, which was first broken by wild yells of terror from the Italians, as one of them ran, crouching between the seats, toward the nearest door, the other flung himself bodily upward and hung from the bell rope, while the still quivering air was reassaulted by a shrill outburst of Neapolitan expletives, appeals and threats.

The train jolted heavily to a halt, under the sudden application of the airbrakes, and the excited crew ran into the car from both directions, followed by other passengers, while those originally there were still asking one another what had happened.

Through all the excitement Bess had kept her eye on the man responsible for it, and he had feigned to be as much startled as the rest. Therefore, she was not surprised to see him approach the conductor, with indignant mien, demanding what this disturbance meant, and whether there were not men enough in the crew or energy enough in the management to protect patrons of the road from outrage. She was not prepared, however, to hear the man reply:

"What happened, Mr. Mason? Anybody hurt?"

"Hurt? No! Unless that dago back there has burst a blood vessel yelling! From the fragments on the floor, I should say that somebody exploded a firecracker or a Fourth-of-July bomb. An outrage, Jackson, an outrage! This is no place and no hour for practical jokes."

"Did you see who did it, Mr. Mason?"

"Certainly not! I saw no one. But if your crew can't keep persons of that sort in order, I shall take the matter to the superintendent. I've been driven out of one car by a squalling young one, and now somebody explodes a bomb in this one!"

"I'm sorry, Mr. Mason. I'll try to find out who did it," said the conductor, anxiously. Turning to Bess, he continued: "You were in this car, Miss. Do you know who did it?"

"I know no more about it than this gentleman does," she quietly replied; whereupon Mason shot a keen glance at her from beneath his brows, which she met with apparent unconcern, concluding, carelessly: "At this hour everybody's likely to be dozing."

"This makes it worse, Jackson," severely declared Mason. To her he added, with a direct look: "I had no idea there was a lady in the car. I hope you were not frightened."

"Thank you, I was not at all frightened," she indifferently returned. "One expects firecrackers at this season."

"I congratulate you on your steady nerves, madame. Most women would have screamed."

Entirely reassured as to her ignorance in the matter, he took off his hat, bowed and made a dignified exit, while she stood looking after him, a curious light in her eyes. So that, again, was James Mason! Through the open door she saw him drop off the platform and go forward, apparently to the smoking car; and a moment later, taking advantage of the excitement still centering in the sons of Italy, she slipped out and found a seat in the coach behind.

From the subsequent comments of people about her, returning from the seat of war, she gathered that it had taken the combined efforts of passengers and crew to convince the Neapolitans that they had not been the victims of a Black Hand plot, and that even when this had been accomplished, they had discovered in the car an ancient enemy, in the person of a young collegian who had previously hoaxed them, and despite his denials of any knowledge of this affair of the bomb, had threatened him with varied and picturesque vengeance.

For a moment she contemplated going to his relief, but no one seemed to take the affair at all seriously, so she kept both her seat and her counsel, and in time, somewhat delayed by the bomb episode, the train arrived in Brookfield, where Miss Wallace found her brother-in-law awaiting her at the station, and she saw James Mason no more that night.

Nor did she see his sister, except for a moment's greeting, until the next morning, when Mrs. Ford came into her room with the breakfast tray, curled up at the foot of her bed and poured forth the details of Bob Mason's latest escapade, which had shaken all Brookfield to its foundations, used as that long-suffering old town was to the pranks and vagaries of undergraduates.

The details of that affair belong to another story. Suffice it to say here that young Mason had taken advantage of his uncle's absence in the city to perpetrate a long-studied trick, involving dignified men and staid institutions in a situation sufficiently fantastic to justify his kinsman's characterization of him as "a brilliant, untetherable young comet," and the end was not yet.

"And the worst of it," she concluded, wiping tears of laughter from her eyes, "is that, while it's so funny, it's tragic, too. Bob's uncle will never forgive him for this, even if the others would. Poor Tom was here last night, positively haggard over the thing."

"Do you know him—the uncle?" asked Bess, who had been less amused than the tale warranted.

"Yes—after a fashion. Everybody does. You see, he's our leading citizen—president of the biggest bank, member of the Town Council, director of"——

"Do you like him?"

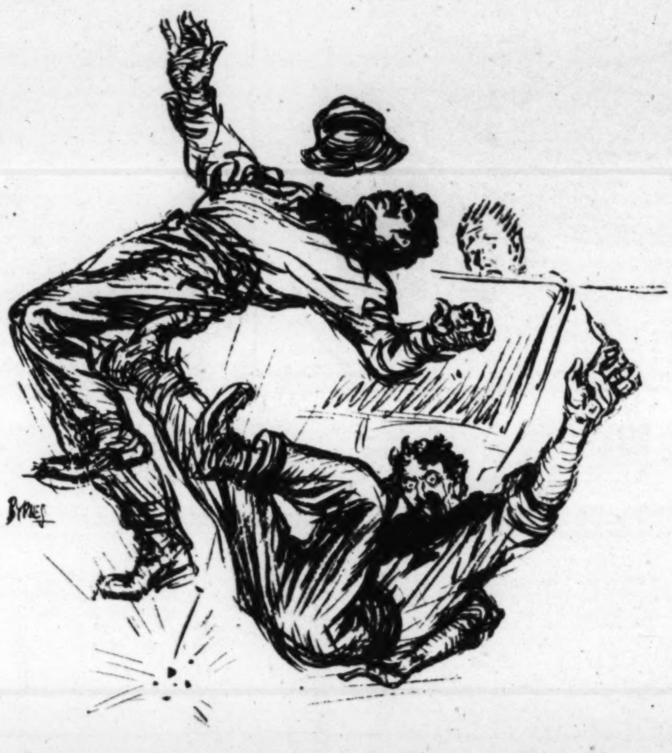
"Like him? I never heard of anybody who liked James Mason—except Tom. He seems fond of him. The men all say he's 'able' and 'square,' in the eye-for-an-eye, tooth-for-a-tooth sort of way, but everybody grants that he's a regular old curmudgeon. He's never had the least sympathy or patience with Bob's scrapes. If he had, the boy might not be so utterly irrepressible. As it is, Tom's the only person in the world who has the slightest influence over either of them. Bob's such a brilliant fellow, too."

"Is he? You know, I never saw him."

"Oh, yes, he really is! They say there's nobody equal to him in the whole college when he chooses to settle down to work—which isn't often, to be sure. And now that terrible old man"——

"What is he likely to do?" asked Bess, curiously but soberly.

"That's what all Brookfield was asked over the telephone last night. Nobody knows. Of course, Bob hasn't done much real harm this time, but he's made a lot of men look perfectly ridiculous, and they're all furious. It's the sort of thing a certain type of man hates more than anything else, and James Mason's of that type. He'll never forgive it. These men are all his associates, and it touches his pride."



A moment later a terrific detonation not only effectually ended the snores of the two Italians, but brought every man in the car to his feet.

"Hm!" commented Bess. "Perhaps it will do him good to have his pride ground down a little. I dare say he deserve it. Bob may be an instrument in the hands of Nemesis. Who knows? I'm going to get up."

"Well, I do think you might show a little sympathy for poor Tom," complained Kate. "He's heartbroken about the thing."

"It may not be as hopeless as he thinks. You never can tell," was the unruffled reply. "Uncle may have troubles of his own by night. Even curmudgeons do, sometimes."

"How would that help Bob?"

"It might afford him some satisfaction to see uncle's banners trailing in the dust, even though his own couldn't be set waving again. There is such a thing as poetic justice, Kate."

"Hm—maybe." Mrs. Ford's lips twisted skeptically. "But I don't see who's going to start the wheels."

"You never can tell," returned Miss Wallace, with a cryptic little smile. "That was a pleasing fancy of the ancients, to place a cup of poison in a man's hands and make him lift it to his lips himself, wasn't it?" Which was as near as she ever came to telling Kate about her encounter with James Mason the night before, for Bess was not one to give half-confidences, and there was that in the earlier utterances of Tom's uncle in her hearing that she would not repeat even to her sister.

"I don't know what you mean," puzzled the more literal Kate.

"I mean that I'm going to get up forthwith, and that I want you, please, to put on your prettiest frock and take me out to see Brookfield."

While Bess was dressing there came a messenger with flowers from Tom, and a note saying that he had hoped to call at the earliest hour she would permit that morning, but that, as she had doubtless heard, his brother was in rather serious trouble, and he must spend all the forenoon and possibly all day in an effort to straighten out the affair. He said he would try to call late that afternoon and asked her, in any event, to save the evening for him. He also asked her to believe that, whatever matter kept him temporarily from her side, the knowledge that she was near was his greatest help and that he was always faithfully hers, Thomas L. Mason.

The sisters were most attractive to the eye, in their light gowns and lacy hats, as they strolled through the shaded streets of old Brookfield that morning; and many of Mrs. Ford's friends stopped to speak to her, to be presented to Miss Wallace and to discuss in undertones the latest rumors concerning "the Mason affair." Public sympathy seemed to be almost wholly with Bob, although even the most obvious amusement was always hand in hand with the admission that the young scamp had done an egregious thing and probably deserved all that would come to him of punishment. Nevertheless, laughter was a running accompaniment of all these discussions and there was, too, a constant undercurrent of sympathy for the boy in his reckoning with James Mason.

Presently they came into the elm-arched main street, where they met more friends, stopping to chat in the informal fashion of small towns, and there it was that Bess, glancing back, saw Tom Mason striding toward them, his face set in troubled lines. So absorbed was he in thought that he did not even see her until she stepped before him, saying:

"I know you're too busy to talk, but I must shake hands with you."

He stopped short at that, and the effulgence that overspread his countenance at sight of her told its own story to any who cared to look. Its glow brought answering color to her cheeks, but she met his gaze directly, while she gently disengaged her hand from his long clasp.

"I got your letter," she said. "I'm sorry. Is it—very bad?"

"Pretty bad, I'm afraid," he replied in a low tone. Her glance followed his to the group she had left, and while he acknowledged the cordial greetings of the women composing it she moved on a few steps, just out of their hearing, and paused again.

"You mean—it's going hard with your brother?"

"Very hard, I'm afraid—with all of us."

"How all of you? You don't mind telling me?"

"You know I want to tell you—everything. You see, Bob's always been pretty wild. Not vicious—just spirited and untamed. And he's made a lot of trouble for Uncle James, first and last—trouble and expense. The last time he got into a scrape"——

"Yes, I know. I've heard," she interrupted. "But is Mr. James Mason so sure of his own glass houses that he dares throw such heavy stones?" Her tone was touched with mockery, and he looked at her in surprise.

"People don't understand Uncle James," he said, gently. "They think he's hard and rough and cold—and so he is, in a way. But he's had a hard, rough, cold life. And he's always been disappointed in the thing he set his heart upon. First it was the education he longed for and couldn't have. You ought to hear him talk about his one year in college!"

"I suppose he never got into scrapes!" she intimated.

"I don't know. He was probably a Freshman like other Freshmen. But it was his chance—and it was taken away from him. Almost the only real fun he ever has now is when he goes, once a year, to the reunion of that old class. That's where he was when Bob"—— There was a little pause and she did not look at him. "Well, he had to give that up. Then it was a woman whom he loved, and who was—unworthy. Then it was a great financial success, which comes to few men. And now its us. We're all there is left to him and upon us—especially upon Bob, for he is brilliant—he has centered all the deflected hopes of his warped and disappointed life. And when he had given Bob one more chance—Bob failed. That

LONG LIVE THE KING!

BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

CHAPTER XXIV.
THE BIRTHDAY.

THE Crown Prince Ferdinand William Otto of Livonia was having a birthday. Now, a birthday for a Crown Prince of Livonia is not a matter of a cake with candle on it, and having his ears pulled, once for each year and an extra one to grow on. Not of a holiday from lessons, and a picnic in spring woods. Nor of a party, with children frolicking and scratching the best furniture.

In the first place, he was wakened at dawn and taken to early service in the chapel, a solemn function, with the court assembled and slightly sleepy. The Crown Prince, who was trying to look his additional dignity of years, sat and stood as erect as possible, and yawned only once.

After breakfast he was visited by the chaplain who had his religious instruction in hand, and interrogated. He did not make more than about 60 per cent in this, however, and the chaplain departed looking slightly discouraged.

Lessons followed, and in each case the tutor reminded him that, having now reached his tenth birthday, he should be doing better than in the past. Especially the French tutor, who had just heard a rumor of Hedwig's marriage.

At 11 o'clock came word that the King was too ill to have him to luncheon, but that he would see him for a few moments that afternoon. Prince Ferdinand William Otto, who was diagramming the sentence, "Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves in America," and doing it wrong, looked up in dismay.

"I'd like to know what's the use of having a birthday," he declared rebelliously.

The substitution of luncheon with the Archduchess Annunciata hardly thrilled him. Unluckily, he made an observation to that effect and got five off in Miss Braithwaite's little book.

The king did not approve of birthday gifts. The expensive toys which the court would have offered the child were out of key with the simplicity of his rearing. As a matter of fact, the Crown Prince had never heard of a birthday gift and had, indeed, small experience of gifts of any kind, except as he made them himself. For that he had a great fondness. His small pocket allowance generally dissipated itself in this way.

So there were no gifts. None, that is until the riding hour came, and Nikky, subverter of all discipline. He had brought a fig lady, wrapped in paper.

"It's quite fresh," he said, as they walked together across the place. "I'll give it to you when we get to the riding school. I saw the woman myself take it out of her basket. So it has no germs on it."

But, although he spoke bravely, Nikky was the least bit nervous. First of all, he was teaching the boy deception. "But why don't they treat him like a human being?" he demanded of himself. Naturally, there was no answer. Maria Menard's son had a number of birthdays in his mind, real birthdays, with much indulgence connected with them.

Second, suppose it really had a germ or two on it? Anxiously, having unwrapped it, he examined it in the sunlight of a window of the ring. Certainly, thus closely inspected, it looked odd. There were small granules over it.

The Crown Prince waited patiently. "Miss Braithwaite says that if you look at them under a glass there are bugs on them," he observed, with interest.

"Perhaps, after all, you'd better not have it."

"They are very small bugs," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto anxiously. "I don't object to them at all."

So, after all, Nikky uneasily presented his gift, and nothing untoward happened. He was rewarded, however, by such a glow of pleasure and gratitude from the boy that his scruples faded.

No Hedwig again, to distract Nikky's mind. The lesson went on, trot, canter, low jumps. And then what Nikky called "stunts," an American word which delighted the Crown Prince.

But, Nikky, like the big child he was himself, had kept his real news to the last.

Already, he was offering himself on the altar of the child's safety. Behind his smiles lay something of the glow of the martyr. His eyes were sunken, his lips drawn. He had not slept at all, nor eaten. But to the boy he meant to show no failing, to be the prince of playmates, the brother of joy. Perhaps in this way, he felt, lay his justification.

So now, with the Crown Prince facing toward the palace again, toward luncheon with his aunt and a meeting with the delegation, Nikky, like an epicure of sensations, said: "By the way, Otto, I found that dog you saw yesterday. What was his name? Toto?"

"Where did you find him? Yes, Toto!"

"I looked him up," said Nikky modestly. "You see, it's like this: He's a pretty nice dog. There aren't many dogs like him. And I thought—well, nobody can say I can't have a dog."

"You've got him? You, yourself?"

"I, myself. I dare say he has fleas, and they will get in the carpet, but—I tell you what I thought: He will be really your dog, do you see? I'll take care of him, and keep him for you, and bring him out to walk where you can see him. Then, when they say you may have a dog, you've got one, already. All I have to do is to bring him to you."

Wise Nikky, of the understanding boy's heart. He had brought into the little Prince's life its first real interest, something vital, living. And something of the soreness and hurt of the last few hours died in Nikky before Prince Ferdinand William Otto's smile.

"Oh, Nikky!" was all the child said at first, and grew silent for very happiness. Then: "We can talk about him. You can tell me all the things he does, and I can send him bones, can't I? Unless you don't care to carry them."

This, in passing, explains the reason why, to the eyes of astonished servants, from that day forth the Crown Prince of Livonia apparently devoured his chop, bone and all. And why Nikky resembled, at times, a well-set-up, trig and soldierly appearing charnel house. "If I am ever arrested," he once demurred, "and searched, highness, I shall be consigned to a madhouse."

Luncheon was extremely unsuccessful. His cousin, Hedwig, looked as though she had been crying, and Hilda, eating her soup too fast, was sent from the table. The Crown Prince, trying to make conversation, chose Nikky as his best subject, and met an icy silence. Also, attempt to put the bone from a chicken leg in his pocket, he was discovered.

"What in the world!" exclaimed the Archduchess. "What do you want of a chicken bone?"

"I just wanted it, Tante."

"It is greasy. Look at your fingers!"

"Mother," Hedwig said quietly, "it is his birthday."

"I do not need you to remind me of that. Have I not been up since the middle of the night, for that reason?"

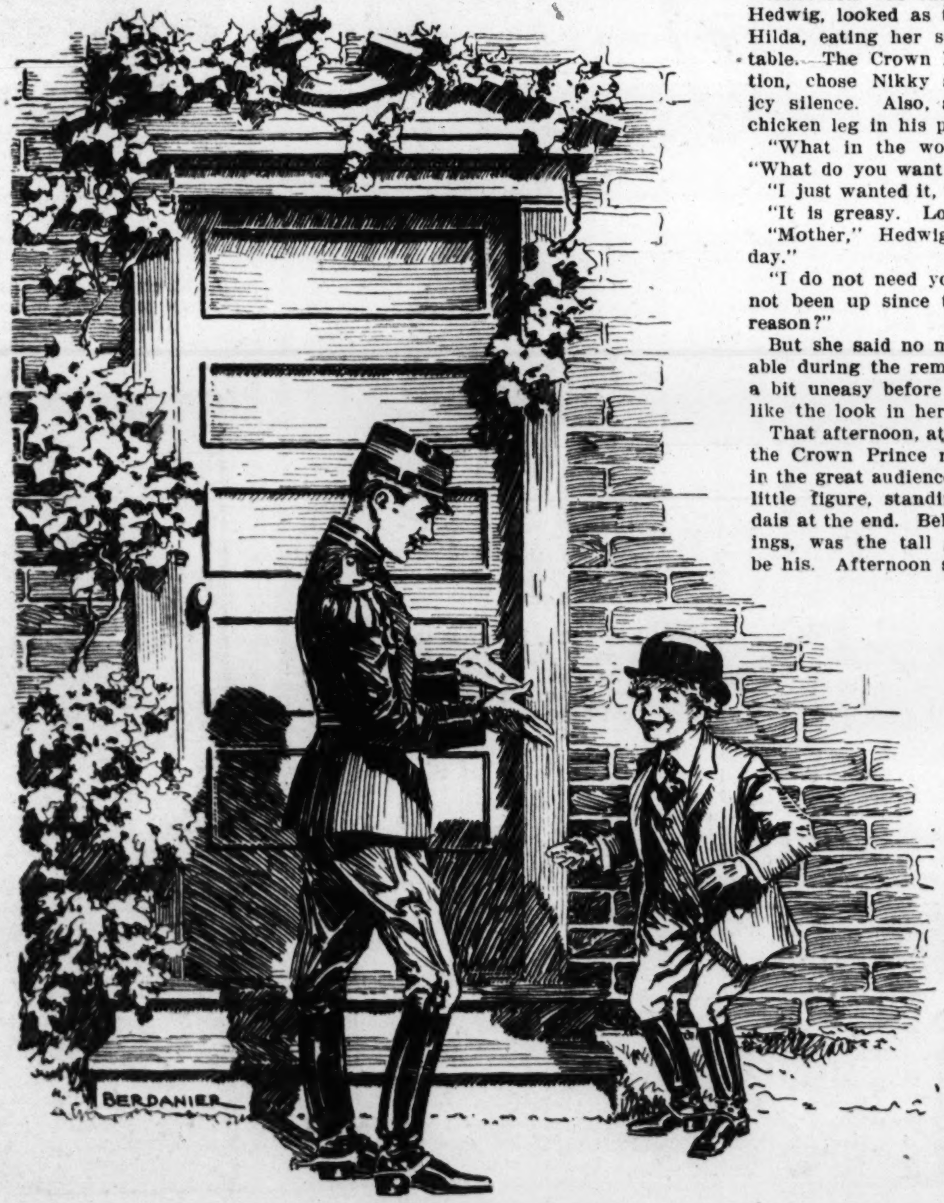
But she said no more, and was a trifle more agreeable during the remainder of the meal. She was just a bit uneasy before Hedwig those days. She did not like the look in her eyes.

That afternoon, attired in his uniform of the Guards, the Crown Prince received the delegation of citizens in the great audience chamber of the palace, a solitary little figure, standing on the red carpet before the dais at the end. Behind him, stately with velvet hangings, was the tall gilt chair which some day would be his. Afternoon sunlight, coming through the long windows along the side, shone on the prisms of the heavy chandeliers, lighted up the painting of dead and gone Kings of his line, gleamed in great mirrors on the polished floor.

On each side of his small figure the Council grouped itself, fat Friese, rat-faced Marschall, Bayerl, with his soft voice and white cheeks lighted by hot eyes, and the others. They stood, very stiff, in their white gloves. Behind them were grouped the gentlemen of the court in full-dress and decorated with orders. At the door stood the Lord Chamberlain, very gorgeous in scarlet and gold.

The Chancellor stood near the boy, resplendent in his dress uniform, a blue ribbon across his shirt front, over which Mathilde had taken hours. He was the Mettlich of the public eye now, hard of features, impassive, inflexible.

In ordinary times less state would have been observed, a smaller room, Mettlich only, or but one or two others, an informal ceremony. But the Chancellor shrewdly intended to do the delegation all honor, the palace to give



"He will be really your dog, do you see? I'll take care of him, and keep him for you, and bring him out to walk where you can see him. Then when they say you can have a dog, you've got onc, already."

"POSTER talks" have been a potent means adopted by the Department of Patriotic Education, Missouri Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense, of bringing the war home to school children of the State, especially in the matters of thrift stamps and food conservation. The idea is that of Miss F. Louise Nardin, chairman of Patriotic Education and instructor in English at the University of Missouri. One of the sets of drawings employed comprised paraphrases of Mother Goose rhymes, composed by Miss Nardin's brother, George Nardin. The drawings, four of which are reproduced here, are the work of art students at the State University.

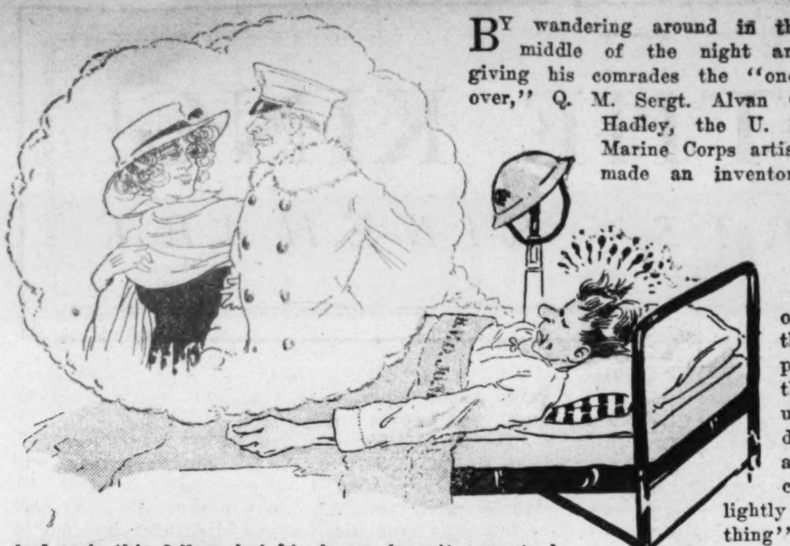
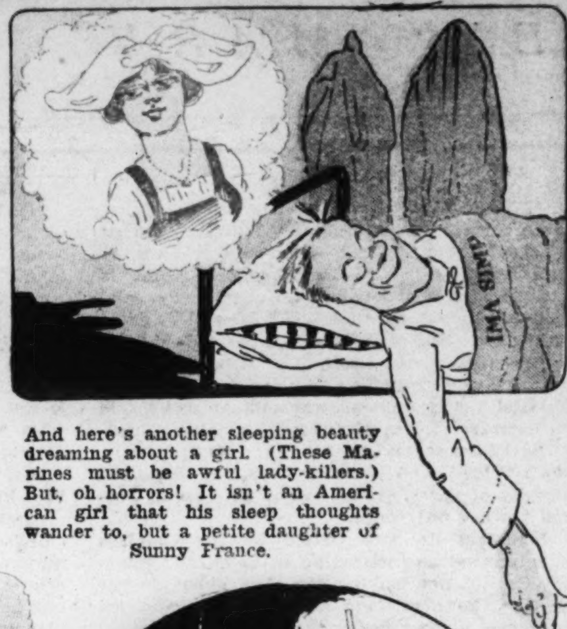
Dreams!!!

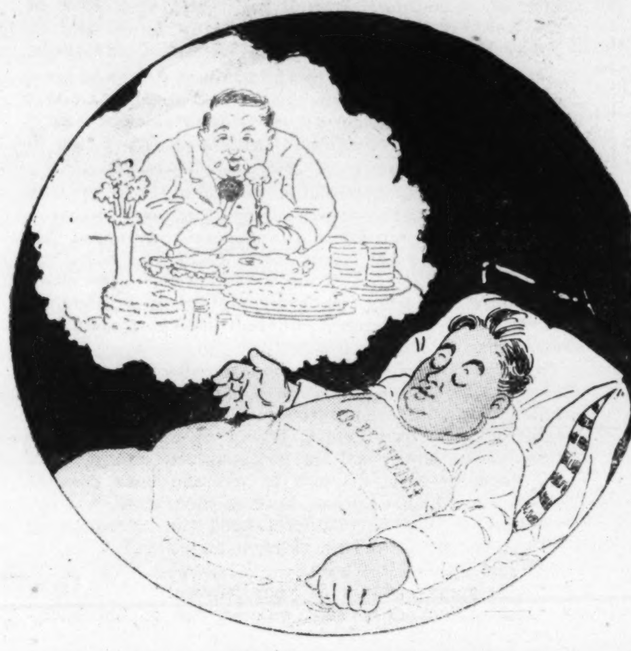
By wandering around in the middle of the night and giving his comrades the "once over," Q. M. Sergt. Alvan C. Hadley, the U. S. Marine Corps artist, made an inventory of his pals' sleep thoughts. Hadley is no psychologist, and admits that he may have slipped up while making his deductions. However, the artist believes that in camp a dreamer's fancy lightly turns to "most everything"—so he has produced the "most everything" element in his midnight sketches. The time is after "taps." The place is the cantonment bunkhouse. And the girl? Oh, well—everybody can't be lucky.



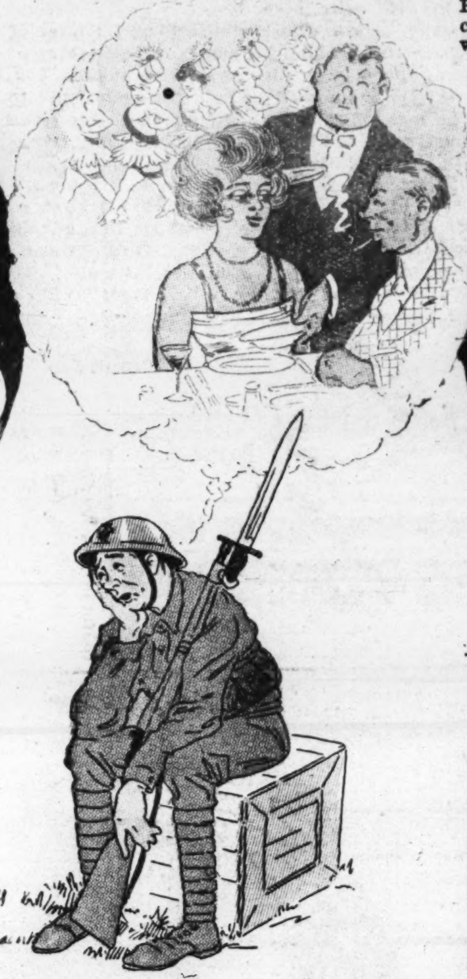
And so is this fellow, but his dream doesn't seem to be as peaceful as the other one. He sees his girl all right—in all her radiant beauty—but that handome young officer walking blithely along by her side would hardly cause a smile to appear on his slumbering countenance.



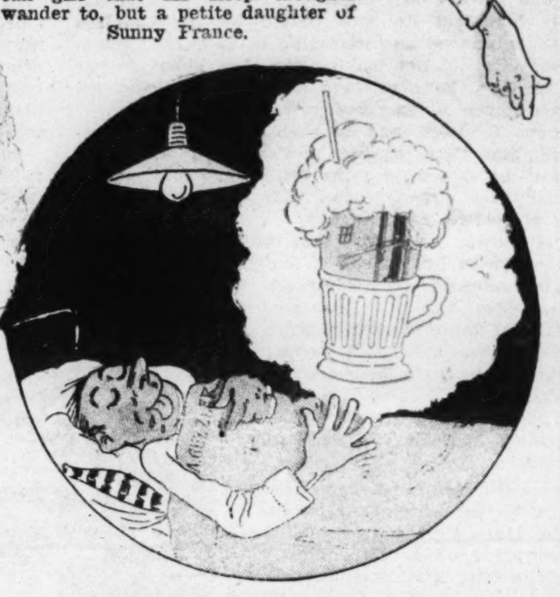
And here's another sleeping beauty dreaming about a girl. (These Marines must be awful lady-killers.) But, oh horrors! It isn't an American girl that his sleep thoughts wander to, but a petite daughter of Sunny France.



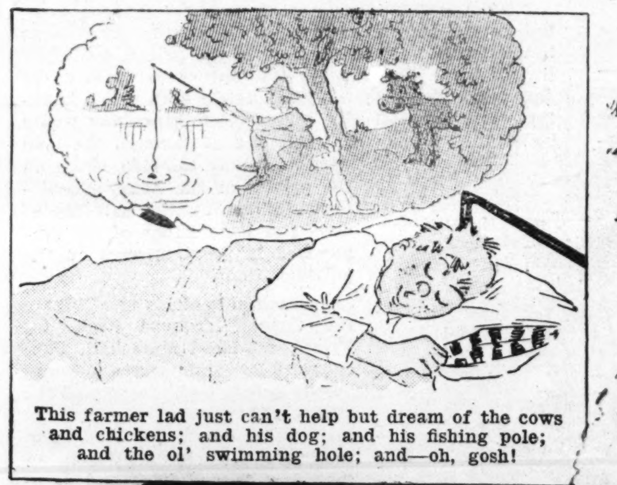
You might know that Private Tubb would have a dream of this kind. He doesn't seem to lose any weight from the "chow" that's handed out to him but, oh, wouldn't he like to sit down at his mother's table all heaped up with only that kind of cooking that mothers can do.



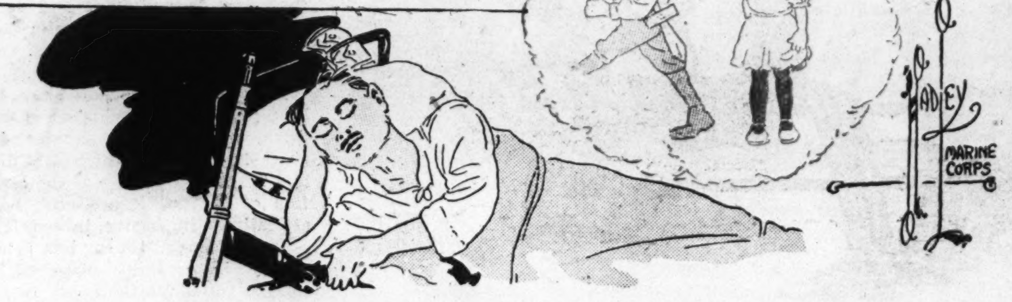
And here's that boy from the "gay white way" who, after potting a few Germans, naturally has a few day-dreams about the old days on Broadway.



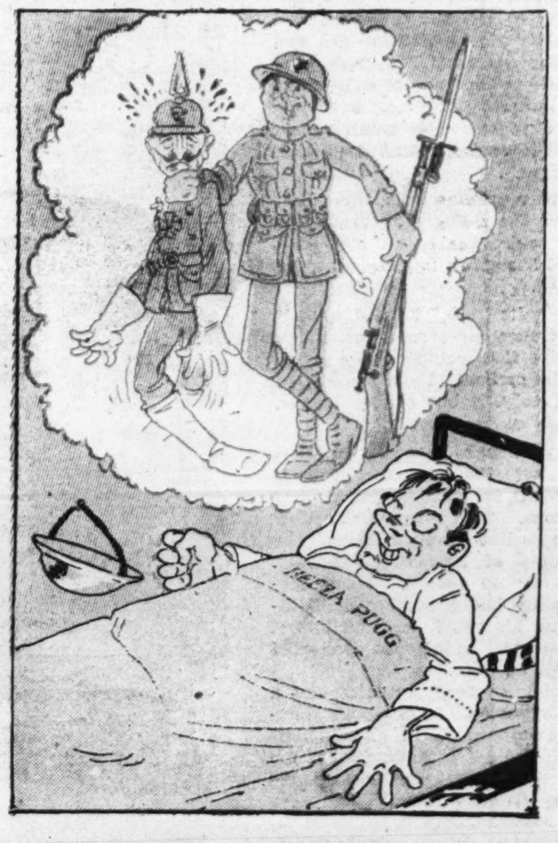
A Marine doesn't dare to dream about anything stronger than a chocolate ice-cream soda, but even that is mighty tempting after a hard day of marching round in the sun.



This farmer lad just can't help but dream of the cows and chickens; and his dog; and his fishing pole; and the ol' swimming hole; and—oh, gosh!



There are some of these kind of dreams, too. This one happens to be about a chubby-faced youngster who wears a uniform "just like Dad" and a little curley-haired girl who prays every night for her father "over there."



Whew! Lookut this roughneck! His ambitions don't run a bit high, do they? He wouldn't even be satisfied with ol' Von Hindenburg but wants to capture Kaizer Bill himself. Here's luck! We hope his dream comes true!

Cook with vegetable oil—use more vegetables—more salads

The United States Food Administration has suggested, among other things, cooking with vegetable oil. We—who make it and know how good it is—hope that you will try Wesson Oil. You may try it because it is vegetable. Or because it costs so little. But whatever the reason you begin to use Wesson Oil, we believe you will continue to use Wesson Oil because it is so good, and makes so many good things to eat cost so little.

Wesson Oil is so good that you would want it even if you felt you could not afford it—and costs so little that you ought to use it even if it wasn't so good.

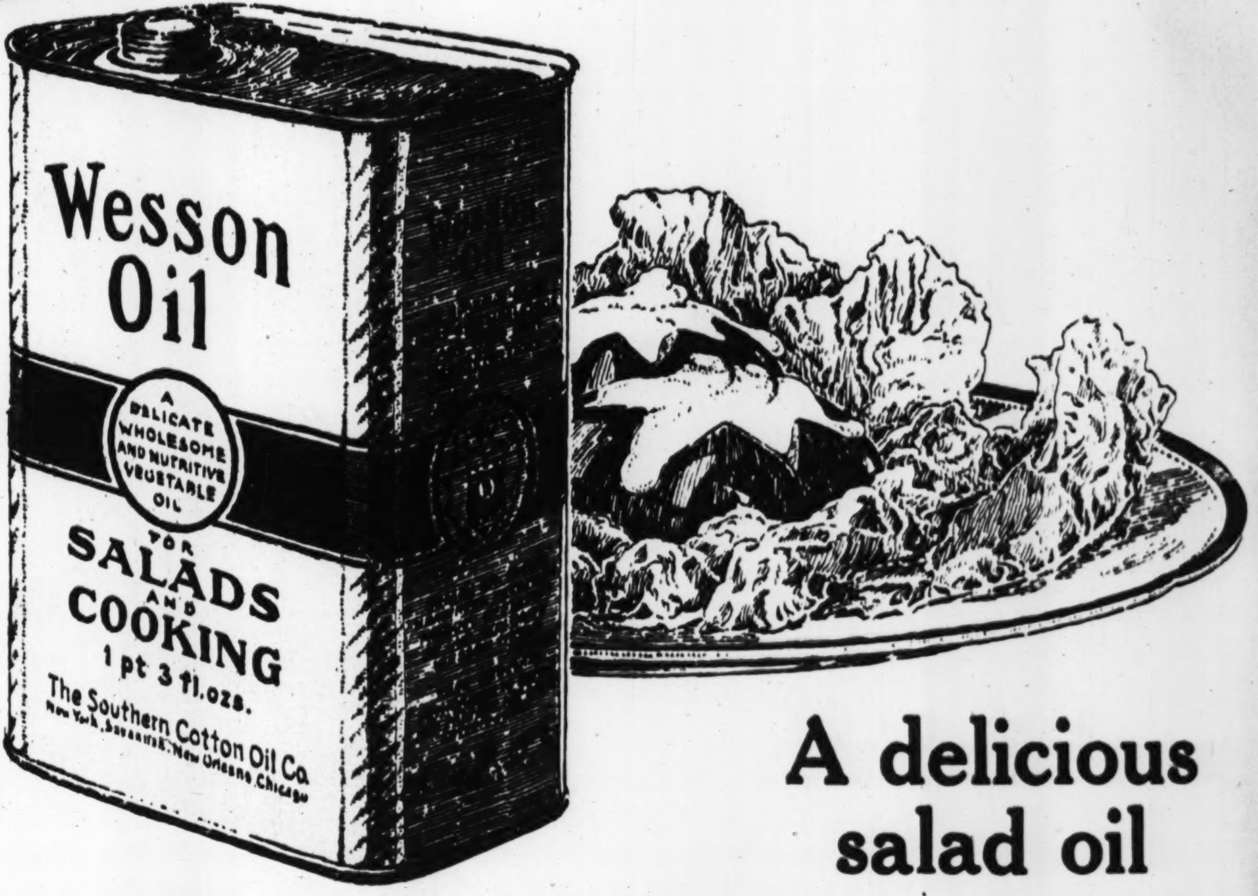
Wesson Oil



Wesson Oil
A DELICATE WHOLESOME AND NUTRITIVE VEGETABLE OIL FOR SALADS AND COOKING
1 pt 3 fl. ozs.
The Southern Cotton Oil Co.
New York, Savannah, New Orleans, Chicago

An excellent shortening

Wesson Oil is a pure, delicious, vegetable oil, so good to eat, so wholesome, so economical, and so convenient to use that you will wonder, after you have used it, how you ever got along without it.

We urge you to try Wesson Oil—to try it just once.

Add a mite of salt—Wessel Oil is unsalted—and compare its taste with the best cooking fat you ever used before. Then try it as the shortening in your favorite recipe. Compare its goodness, its food value, its convenience. And then compare its cost.

There is not a single use for a fat or an oil in your kitchen that is not a use for Wesson Oil. It saves time and trouble, as well as money, to have in one handy can every fat you need. And with Wesson Oil in the kitchen you don't need any other shortening or frying fat or salad oil.

Cooking with Wesson Oil is not a new way to cook that you must learn. It requires no special recipes. Use your own favorite recipe.

Wesson Oil is liquid, of course, and you may be in the habit of using hard shortening. That doesn't make any real difference. Use Wesson Oil just as you would use any hard shortening.

What quantity of shortening does your recipe call for? Your good judgment will tell you how much liquid that amount of hard shortening would melt down to.

Use that quantity of Wesson Oil.

And use it just exactly as you would use any other shortening.

Any hard shortening is softened in the process of mixing with flour or sugar. It wouldn't mix if it didn't soften. And the first heat of cooking would melt it anyhow. Haven't you noticed that many experienced cooks melt hard shortening first? With Wesson Oil you start with a liquid that mixes easily and thoroughly.

Add a little salt—if your recipe requires it—Wesson Oil is unsalted.

A wholesome frying fat

The United States Food Administration has suggested that you fry less—that, instead, you bake and boil and broil when you can, so as to use less fat.

Of course, when you must fry it is better to use a vegetable fat.

And we, who know Wesson Oil, believe you will find Wesson Oil so delicious, wholesome and convenient that, once you have tried it, you will never fry in anything else.

When it is just as economical, wouldn't you rather fry with a good-to-eat salad oil? Taste Wesson Oil. Compare its taste with any frying fat you ever used. Fry in it. Compare the result. And then compare the cost.

Frying with Wesson Oil is not a new way to fry that you must learn. You melt any fat to an oil long before it is hot enough to fry. With Wesson Oil you start with an oil. The only difference is in the result.

After deep frying, strain Wesson Oil (to take out crumbs of food) and use it again. One advantage of Wesson Oil is that it does not absorb the flavor of food cooked in it, and is so little altered by heating that you can use it over and over and over again and it will be almost as good the last time you use it as the first.

—all in one handy can!

Your grocer has it, or can easily get it for you

"Wesson" is the name of a method of refining vegetable oil. If it is Wesson Oil it says so on the can.

A delicious salad oil

Serve more salads. A Wesson Oil dressing does more than make them taste good—Wesson Oil is a food itself, pure, rich and nutritious.

A salad, too, is the appetizing and economical way to serve fruits, cold vegetables, bits of fish or meat that otherwise might have to be thrown away and wasted. Served with a really good salad dressing, "left-overs" are often more delicious than on their first appearance on the table.

Wesson Oil makes delicious salad dressing—French, boiled or mayonnaise. In making mayonnaise you may add Wesson Oil rapidly—you need not drop it slowly, drop by drop.

Skin Blemishes

How to get rid of them

Skin specialists are tracing fewer and fewer troubles to the blood — more to bacteria and parasites that are carried into the pores with dust, soot and grime.

Clear your skin of any blemishes caused by this most powerful and persistent enemy by this effective local treatment. Just before retiring, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap and then dry your face. Now dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this soap cream and leave it on for ten minutes. Then rinse very carefully with clear, hot water; then with cold.

Use Woodbury's regularly in your daily toilet. This will make your skin so firm and active that it will resist the frequent cause of blemishes and keep your complexion free from them.

You will find a 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap sufficient for a month or six weeks of this treatment and for general cleansing use for this time. Get a cake today and begin to bring to your skin that greater clearness, freshness and charm you have longed for. Woodbury's is for sale at drug stores and toilet goods counters everywhere throughout the United States and Canada.

TROCO

The Successor to Butter

Emphasize the Name

You are going to be disappointed if you fail to ask for Troco by name. There are many "nut butters" or "nut margarines" on the market—but only one Troco.

Not a Substitute

The users of Troco are those discriminating people who used to demand the finest creamery butter. Now they insist on Troco—not because it is cheaper but because they like it.

They say that Troco is not a substitute—but the successor to butter.

Made From the White Meat of Coconuts, Churned With Pasteurized Milk

Troco is made from the white meat of tropic coconuts—the same delicacy you use shredded on cake.

It is churned with pasteurized milk by the exclusive process which gives Troco the true creamery butter flavor.

Like Butter, Troco is high-powered energy food, as easily digested and thoroughly assimilated. Its keeping qualities are the same, in hot weather or cold.

TROCO NUT BUTTER COMPANY

Nothing But Troco

Troco is made by a company which specializes on this one vegetable product. It contains no animal oils and no preservatives—nothing but inviting vegetable fats and pasteurized milk for flavor.

Old laws, made before Troco was invented, compel us to label the carton oleomargarine. But this label is extremely misleading.

Troco is the triumph of science applied to the butter problem—helping you to live better at moderate cost.

When you buy Troco your dealer will supply you with a capsule of the same vegetable coloring all butter makers use.
